Gov't May Face Hot Issue In Civil Service Problem

By KEN KELLY Canadian Press Staff Writer OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government may find itself juggling a hot management issue early in the new year.

The problem is a hangover from the Liberal regime of former prime minister St. Laurent who in February, 1957 instituted a two-year study of the civil service aimed at overhauling the creaky machinery of the 40-year-old Civil Service Act.

Mr. St. Laurent put Arnold D. P. Heene, then Canadian ambassador to Washington, at the head of the civil service commission to direct the inquiry.

Mr. Heene is understood to be preparing his report for submission to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservative government by the end of this month. Mr. Heene may make recommendations on a number of thorny difficulties in relations between the government and its 152,000 employees, including appeals from management decisions affecting individual civil servants.

But a firm recommendation on the prickliest — the arbitration question — would surprise a number of observers and officers of some of the staff associations.

The major staff associations are firmly ranged on the side of collective bargaining and submission of unresolved difficulties to arbitration by an independent body.

Mr. Heene's directive from Mr. St. Laurent clearly opposed arbitration. It is not apparent whether Mr. Diefenbaker takes the same position with regard to all wage is-

After rejection by the commission of general wage boosts last October, he replied to a staff association demand for arbitration that he couldn't recommend such a course to the cabinet.

WHO IS BOSS? The staff associations want greater clarity with regard to the commission's position in negotiation of points at issue. They say it isn't clear in discussing salary questions who has the final word in setting salaries.

They urge that the commission be clearly designated as the government's spokesman. This would dispel the idea that treasury board, a committee of cabinet ministers and senior financial advisers, has overriding authority.

They also want written into law machinery for appeals from decisions affecting individual civil servants, with appeal advocates to help the civil servant put his case before the appeal authority.

FROMM BROTHERS ARE CONTINUING their extensive program of advertising silver fox and its mutations. In the latest edition of "Women's Wear Daily" there is an ad taking up three-quarters of a page, which shows a lady wearing a "two-skin drap-around" silver fox creation. Here is some of the wording:

"This silver-deep, silver-bright fur is the result of patient years of selective breeding. It wears its pedigree proudly; is being acclaimed by fashion editors, retailers, and the fashion world for ushering in a whole new era of elegance. Silvers such as these are but one radiant facet of the new Fromm crop that includes pearls, platinums, and a host of exciting mutations, climaxed in the glorious Fromm Golden Spectrum. Our new design concepts are now ready, each marked with the famous Fromm blue ribbon and pedigree medallion.

The above furs are on display with Reynard, Inc., 1474 Peel Street, Montreal. Our fox farmer friends, who made such a great showing at the recent provincial Silver Fox and Mink Show, will be pleased to see that Fromm Brothers are carrying their torch in advertising, and we are quite confident that it means a comeback for silver fox!

To show the diversity of Fromm's organization, there is a half-page ad in the same issue of "Women's Wear Daily" as follows: "Fromm announces a special 'on ranch' auction of approximately (the first of the season's) 60,000 mink pelts, in all mutation color phases and standards, to be sold at Hamburg, Wisconsin, on Saturday December 6'.

VIOLET MINK Schroeder Bros. minkery, LaFarge, Wisconsin, are announcing a new member of the Azure mink family (EMBA natural pale grey mutation mink) to which they have given the name of 'Violet' because they say its natural pale grey coloring is enriched with enough blue to match the bluest diamond. They have been developing this type for a couple of years, and are now offering 1,000 extra large dressed skins in an EMBA collection. It will be on sale by the New York Auction Company on February 9, 1959.

The New York Auction Company has voted a stock dividend of 4 percent, payable on December 24. This brings 1958 payments to 4 percent in stock and 70 cents in cash, and will still leave the treasury comfortably well off.

One of the latest ladies coat collars for winter wear is blue fox, which is said to have attracted a lot of attention and will, no doubt, be widely copied.

JUMP THE GUN L.L. Berger, Inc., Buffalo, New York, is going after early Christmas gift business in fur scarves this season. The store is promoting the idea of giving a fur scarf gift early, so that the women can enjoy wearing it now and during the busy pre-holiday season.
