Baptist Federation Council Sessions End

The Baptist Federation of Canada Council concluded its 1951 sessions at a banquet held in the Charlottetown Baptist Church Hall on Friday evening, with Council members, Island Baptist ministers, the Charlottetown Baptist Church Board of Deacons and their wives, members of the Men's Association and invited guests attending.

Presiding at the banquet was Dr. J. A. Clarke, chairman of the Church's Planning Committee, and the blessing was asked by Dr. M. F. McCutcheon, Montreal. Greetings were extended to the Council by HON. A. W. Matheson, Provincial Minister of Health, A. K. MacPhee, Chairman of the Island Board of Deacons and City Councillor C. M. Cox.

In response to these greetings, representatives of the three Baptist conventions across Canada spoke briefly. They were the Maritime Convention, Rev. A. J. Langley, Halifax, General Secretary Rev. Thomas MacDormand, Toronto, and Rev. Edgar Bailey, Edmonton.

The Federation President, Dr. G. F. MacNally, Chancellor of the University of Alberta, complimented the Charlottetown Baptist Church pastor, Rev. J. D. Davidson, and members of his congregation for the memorable welcome given to the Council.

Rev. Leland Gregory of Toronto, led the hymn singing in the musical programme, and soloists were Mr. Barry Bugden, tenor, and Rev. Edgar Bailey, bass. Accompanists were Mrs. G. Elliott, Full and Mrs. J. D. Davidson. Ladies of the Charlottetown Baptist Church prepared and served the banquet under their committee of Mrs. A. K. MacPhee, Mrs. D. N. Bell, and Mrs. B. Stantford. The meeting closed in prayers conducted by Dr. W. C. Macnum of St. John, N. B.

BBC To Include Province In Broadcast

The story of the Prince Edward Island artery Abegweit will be told in an activity broadcast over the British Broadcasting Corporation in connection with the Canadian visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Max Robertson of the special events section of the BBC made a round trip on the big ferry yesterday and made an on-the-spot recording of the trip which will be shown back to England to be included in a special broadcast of the Royal Tour. He described how the ferry cleared the port at Tormentine and how it docked at Borden. Captain W. C. Irving participated in the special broadcast when he explained the procedure of docking the vessel as he pulled her into Borden.

Guards Air Supply For Diver Husband

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4. (CP) - In the average family the wife's job is to keep her husband well fed. But pretty Mary Bieber goes a step further - she sees to it that her husband Carl keeps breathing.

Most of the time Carl works as a switch foreman with the railway. Then for three months of the year he goes back to what he claims as his first love - diving. While he works far below the surface of the water, his wife maintains a constant vigil to see that his supply of air never stops.

Dressed in blue denim long and rubber boots, Mary never leaves the boat while her husband is working. She guards the telephone connections with Carl and keeps a weather eye on the three helpers who man the air pump.

Before Carl enters the water, Mary and the helpers aid him in putting on the heavy swim clothing he must wear. This is followed by the rubber suit, 20-pound boots and a final good-luck kiss before the big metal helmet is clamped over his head.

"Unusual? Sure my job's unusual," says Mrs. Bieber. "But I like it and my husband feels he can trust me more than anyone else. He isn't wrong about that either."

Carl says he loves the business and wishes he could do it the year round. He first started diving nine years ago while in the Canadian Navy.

Both he and Mary admit to a few narrow squeaks. One of the most frightening was last winter when he was working below the ice in the Assiniboine River. The swift current swept him off balance and he had considerable difficulty finding his way back to the place where he had entered the water through a hole in the ice.

Another time he was barely conscious when pulled to the surface. He slipped his suit in sixty feet of water while repairing submarine nets on the East Coast.

Dickie Bros. rom Truro won four firsts, two seconds, two thirds, one fourth, a fifth and a sixth. The Edward Dickie herd had two firsts, one second, a third, a fourth and two fifths.

Two American Senators Spend Honeymoon Here

Prince Edward Island has turned out to be a stop on the "un-announced honeymoon destination" of two American Senators, George Wesley Tarlson and Winifred Julia Wild, whose wedding was described in a New Hampshire newspaper as "one of the most charming and certainly the most unusual wedding ceremony ever held in Concord."

Senator Tarlson of Louisiana and Senator Wild of Jackson spent the week-end in Charlottetown. They were married a few days ago in Concord and their honeymoon was last until the 1st of May. The young couple visited the Prince Edward Island Travel Bureau on Saturday and said they were having a wonderful time and enjoying their visit to Prince Edward Island.

Their friends Governor Sherman Adams and Mrs. Adams spent a holiday this past summer in Prince Edward Island when they were guests for a week at Links Inn where they enjoyed golfing at Green Gables Golf Course. Governor Adams was one of the guests at the wedding of the two Senators who was in a position to tell them of the charm of the Island province.

A partial account of the recent wedding of the Senators and which was published in the New Hampshire Sunday News is as follows: "One of the most charming and certainly the most unusual wedding ceremony ever held in Concord was witnessed by hundreds from all over New Hampshire today when two lawmakers, Senator George Wesley Tarlson, 47, of Louisiana and Senator Winifred Julia Wild, 53, of Jackson, made history by being the first New Hampshire senators joined in matrimony and the first couple to be married in the State House Senate Chamber.

"Governor Sherman Adams was joined by such political dignitaries as U. S. Representatives Chester Merrow and Norris Cotton and former Gov. Robert O. Hood, and their wives to see the wedding performed by Oscar Polhemus, pastor of the Haverhill, Mass., Methodist church. The Senate Chamber was lavishly decorated with palms and ferns, and large orchid-colored chrysanthemums against a backdrop of evergreens. It was in this same Senate chamber that the couple first met and began their romance.

"So many guests came to the wedding that many of them had to stand outside the Senate Chamber during the wedding ceremony. "After the reception Senator Tarlson and Senator Tarlson (they are both Senator Tarlson now) slipped quickly away for an un-announced honeymoon destination. "It seemed that everyone who was 'anybody in politics' was on hand for the big shindig. They came from Milan, near the Canadian Border, and most of the towns and cities between there and the seacoast. Most of them were Republicans, but there was a sprinkling of Democrats. "The bride and groom had a tendency to do some clowning at the reception. When photographers gathered around the 800-pound wedding cake, he obligingly leaped backward and opened his mouth in the manner of a baby sparrow. "The bride displayed a sense of humor during the day. When a photographer asked for a picture of an attendant adjusting her veil, she told him, 'A widow has no attendants. I guess you've never been a widow...'

National Dish? U. S. - - - Ketchup Columnist Says

By Hal Boyle NEW YORK, Nov. 4. (AP) - Americans are a strange nation of people united by a democratic constitution and a red cement called ketchup.

It is doubtful which has done more to hold them together. Long debates have been held on what is the great American dish. Apple pie? pumpkin pie? fried chicken? turkey with cranberry sauce? the hamburger? the hot dog?

All these have their passionate defenders. But to any one who regularly travels in these United States, there can be but one answer. The great American dish isn't a dish at all. It's a bottle, a bottle containing the flavor in widest favor - ketchup.

Ketchup, also known as catchup and catsup, is no more native to these shores than folks named Smith, Jones, Johnson or O'Connell. It is an immigrant, it originated in Malay. It was made usually of mushrooms, unripe tomatoes and ripe tomatoes, and was used to flavor soups, meat and fish.

Only after migrating to America, however, did ketchup come into its own. Here its ingredients are tomato puree, vinegar, spices and sugar. And the scarlet, gooey-semi-fluid graduated from a flavoring substance into an all-purpose food. Your true ketchup fan today will eat it through a straw. He will pour it on everything from chicken-a-la-king to ice cream, and only an iron tradition keeps some enthusiasts from using it to cool their coffee.

In times of prosperity the poor man uses it to anoint everything on his hand plate. In times of hardship ketchup is the poor man's surest fodder. He can go up to a cafeteria counter, ask for a cup of hot water, take the steam-jug cup to the nearest table, pump some ketchup in it - and he has a bowl of tomato soup for nothing. "During the last depression,"

Florida cafeteria owner told me, "that ketchup soup trick almost caused me to go broke. I think it started with a Yankee visitor, but he sure did spread the custom fast through the south." What explains the overwhelming popularity of ketchup? Many restaurant owners have a cynical answer. "Because it's free," they say. "Anything that's free is bound to be popular." But I don't think that is the real explanation. I think the reason is partly psychological - part of mankind's old quest for certainty in an uncertain world. A man goes into the average small restaurant and orders meat loaf and hash-browned potatoes. When his loaded plate is brought, he looks uneasily at it. Doubt surges above his hunger. What is in that mysterious mess before him? Where did it come from? What is in it? He takes a tentative taste, and his doubt immediately deepens. Has the cook played a Halloween trick on him? He sighs, reaches for the ketchup bottle, and covers the plate from edge to edge. No matter what heady taste of glue the menu item had before, it is drowned in the all-enveloping flavor of ketchup, a flavor as changeless as the U. S. bill of rights.

No, Americans don't turn to ketchup merely because it is free. They reach for it because it is the constant friend of people who must eat out in strange places.
