

The Callaghan Murder.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

THE inquest on the body of Patrick Callaghan was resumed by Coroner McLeod last evening. Following is the evidence taken:

ABRAHAM DOOLAN (sworn).—I live on Mount Edward Road, about two miles from the Cemetery. I have seen Patrick Callaghan twice. I have lived there only since last fall. I know him slightly. I saw him last about the 1st May. I heard of his death in town. I was not at the Cemetery since 1st May till last Sunday. I went out to see the sight. I had no dealings with Callaghan except when I was called upon to join a note with Henry Swan for $33, which Swan borrowed from him. The note was payable in three months. I cannot write. Mr. James Welsh was witness to the note.

HENRY SWAN (sworn).—I saw Callaghan last on Sunday, three weeks ago. We passed our place. I think he was coming from church. I was well acquainted with him. I heard of his death last Wednesday—the day he was brought to town. The last time I was at the Cemetery was about the 29th April, previous to last Sunday. I had money transactions with Callaghan. I owed him at the time of his death a note for $33, payable in three months. I owed him nothing besides that. I have seen no suspicious characters on the road that I could tell.

HARRIET McDONALD (sworn).—I live at Patrick Berrigan's, East Royalty. I have been there since 1st September last. I know where the Cemetery is. I don't know how far Berrigan lives from the Cemetery. He lives four miles from Charlottetown. I saw Callaghan twice. I saw him the first time in town. The last time I saw him was over by the Cemetery, about two years ago. I never saw him since. I heard of the murder last Wednesday. Patrick Berrigan, Jr., was over there and told me when he came home, sometime in the afternoon. There was no one present but his father and I. Wednesday night, and Tuesday night, and Monday night, and Sunday night, and Saturday night I was in town. I went back on the next morning. I left Berrigan's each evening between half-past 6 and 7 o'clock. Took about one and a half hours to walk. Took the St. Peter's Road. On Monday evening (25th) I passed the Cemetery. John McQuaid was with me. We crossed the Railway track and came in the Malpeque Road. We travelled west and passed the keeper's house about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. We went close to the house, by the well. I looked at the house. I did not notice anyone there. There were folks in the Cemetery. McQuaid is a boy. I said in town all night and went back on Tuesday morning at 7.30 o'clock. On Tuesday night I went to town again. John McQuaid went also. He came after me with a horse. Wednesday morning going back I went by the St. Peter's Road and went alone. Got there at 7.30. I heard of the murder in the afternoon. I had business in town. I have no relations in town. Stayed at Mrs. McQuaid's. No relation to John. I came in to see a girl, a friend of mine, every night. Am staying at Berrigan's yet. Do not come into town every night. Patrick and Thomas Berrigan live with their father where I stay. I was not examined here before, but Mr. Curtis and Mr. Tomlin were out and I made a statement before them. Saw Callaghan last about two years ago. Never heard about Callaghan having money. Was never in his house. Going in and out I met no one I knew in particular. I meet country folks in carts. I met no man or woman walking. I met a man two weeks ago to-day whom I supposed to be Thomas Inman. I met the same man on Douse's Road one evening about four or five weeks ago, he asked me what time it was. He was about five feet high, but I am not positive. He wore a soft felt hat pulled over his eyes. He was about 19 or 20, with smooth face. I did not notice his complexion. I thought it was Inman. I have often seen him at Mrs. Thorne's in Charlottetown. I was at one side of the road and he was at the other. He was like Inman in appearance; but I will not swear it was him. Two weeks ago to-day I met the same person. I met him at Bridges' second gate on St. Peter's Road. He was coming towards town. He did not speak to me the last time. I never spoke to him at Mrs. Thorne's. When I went home they always asked me did I see anyone on the road. I said I met a rakesh looking fellow, whom I thought was Inman; and they said the police were after him. If the cap had not been over his eyes I would have known him. The second time he had his hat over his eyes. I did not look much at him. I heard folks saying that Thomas Inman was talked about for this scrape. There is a servant man at Berrigan's, and no other girl but me. The man was home these nights when I left. I went to town of my own accord. I was not sent to town. John Riley is the servant man's name. I heard nothing of the keeper of the Cemetery being missing before the news of the murder. I could identify Inman if I saw him.

JOHN RILEY (sworn).—I am a servant man at Mr. Berrigan's. I was at the Cemetery last Sunday week. Mr. Patrick Berrigan was with me. I did not see Callaghan. I noticed the house. I saw nothing particular except the wheelbarrow filled with manure, and a line he had been working with. I saw Callaghan last on Easter Market day. I know nothing about him at all. I never told he had money. I had no conversation with him. I spoke to him last day making time at Berrigan's—2 years this summer. I heard no remarks at all about Callaghan so far as money is concerned. I owed him no money. I never worked with him. Patrick Berrigan, my master, was about an hour at the Cemetery on Sunday. I asked Berrigan would he come into the house. He said he would not like to go in while Callaghan was away. He thought he was at church. I did not notice the doors particularly. It was about 12 o'clock when we were there. Berrigan and I came away together and went to Mr. Henderson's. I heard nothing there that Callaghan was missing. I belong to Dublin. I have been here two years this August. I saw a wheelbarrow with manure in it and some on the ground, and a line and a spade sticking in the ground. I saw no basket with potato sets. Nothing struck me as unusual. If I had been there and known him well it might have, but I suspected nothing. I noticed no footsteps about the door.

PATRICK BERRIGAN, JR. (sworn).—I was examined before at this inquest. I went security for a man who had borrowed some money from Callaghan between the 1st and 11th of April. It was for James Roper, whose land joins mine. The amount was $50, with the interest added; it comes due in October or November. Callaghan wanted it due the last of October, but Roper said that was a bad time and wanted to have it fall due in November. However, they said they would arrange together and let it run till November. I had transactions with him myself for $107.50; paid him in full about the 1st of April. He took the money and put it in his pocket. I paid him at Mr. Rackam's. When I gave him the money he said it was a pleasure to deal with a man like that and he threw me half a dollar. I walked home with him. He told me several times he had a considerable sum of money in the Bank—the Savings Bank, I believe. That was the only money transaction I ever had with him. Have seen Callaghan's writing. (Being shown some writing could not identify it as his writing.) Attorney General reads blank receipt prepared in favor of Patrick Berrigan for interest. Asks witness what it means? He replies: Cannot say; have not the note with me; made no payments of interest to him; the interest was included in the note. When I got the money I told him I would pay principal and interest when it became due.

EDWARD BERRIGAN (sworn).—I am a son of John Berrigan. I work at the EXAMINER Office. I am 16 years of age. I was at the Cemetery last about two years ago. I was at the Cemetery Station on Monday week (25th May). I imagined I saw two or three persons looking out of the window of the keeper's house. I thought since that I saw them. I was in the train. I got on at Royalty Junction. I looked at the house and now think I saw some faces looking out of the window—two, I think. It was the window nearest the Royalty Junction. This was 6 o'clock in the evening. There was something on the window. I think there were brown blinds on the windows. A good many people got on board at the Cemetery Station. I did not know them. There were both men and women. I went out to my father's on Saturday night.

JAMES PUNCHER (sworn).—I was at the Cemetery on Monday week, Queen's Birthday. I went into the house and got a cup of coffee to the table to give a drink to some ladies at the well. I went in the back door. It was shut but not locked. There was a sleeper lying outside the door, but it did not keep the door shut. I don't think I removed the sleeper. I went in in a hurry and got the cup in a hurry and came out to the well. I didn't notice anything more than usual. Everything was upside down, as it had been whenever I was working there. I noticed no fire. I did not see Callaghan. I did not call him. I was not in the house half a minute. I noticed no watch. I brought the cup back and came out again and shut the door. I was in a hurry. My horse was outside in the buggy. George King told me before I went in the house he was missing for two or three days so I did not expect to find him. I thought he might be away for a cruise. I knew him right well. Had not seen him since last winter. I thought nothing about entering his house while he was away. Everything was upside down. He would leave his house open while working around the graveyard. I never knew him to leave his door open when he left the premises altogether. I was there between four or five in the afternoon. King merely mentioned Callaghan's absence to me, but did not seem to think seriously of it. There was another man with King. I took notice of nothing outside. There were blinds on the windows from the under ash. I did not look out the window while inside. A young lady was with me. There were several other ladies there who made me get the cup for them to get a drink. They went out and came in by train. I left them there. I was surprised when I heard the old man was killed, but I had no idea he was in the house when I was there.

GEORGE KING (sworn).—I was at the Cemetery on Monday, 25th and part of Wednesday, 27th. I told a number of people Callaghan was missing. I told Sherry and Punchard on the 25th that Callaghan had been missing for three days. Mr. John Prowse told me he had been missing. There were parties enquiring for him. Mr. Watson had been out on Wednesday previous, and sent his man out twice on previous Wednesday looking for him. Mr. Prowse told me this. Prowse asked me had I seen him. I said no—not up to that time of day—that would be about 11 o'clock. I have not worked at the Cemetery before for two years. I am a gardener in summer time, and work with Mr. Lemuel Wright in winter time. I saw people at the Cemetery after the train arrived in the afternoon. I saw no one before except Pat Cahill who was working with me. I could not see the house from where I was working, near Brackley Point Road. I saw a man and woman on the road on the 27th about 10.30 o'clock. They were between the railroad track and the well. That was after Mr. Longworth was there. He did not tell me. I did not know it till Mr. Henderson told me. The man drew a bucket of water, and the woman came up to him; and when they saw me coming they went in on the track leading from the well to the keepers house inside the fence. The man had gray pants, black coat and black hat. The woman was all in black, and slightly built; the man was stout but not very tall. I did not know him. I did not notice their face. This was after Mr. Longworth passed me. I left the Cemetery after the fire on Wednesday evening. I went down to the house with Isaac Henderson to see Callaghan's body.

WILLIAM MIDDLETON (sworn).—I was well acquainted with Callaghan. I was so between four and five years. We were always friends. I went very often to see him. I was there last Sunday fortnight, 17th May. I noticed he had a watch and chain on. He had a common watch with long links, German silver. There were two pieces of money on it, a sovereign and a half sovereign, as well as I could judge. The chain was a sort of yellow cast. It was not quite white. I never handled it but saw it often. I never knew he had a revolver. He never told me he had. He never told me he was afraid of being robbed. He said they broke into his house a couple of years ago, and that they expected money, but he said he never kept more than two or three dollars in his house at a time. He told me the money he got from the Company he never took out of town. He banked it, and the money he got for jobs in the graveyard more than kept him. He said they would get no money if it was robbing they were after. That Sunday I went there was in the afternoon. He said he had been in Chapel. I stayed till 6 o'clock, for he pulled his watch out and said, "It is just 6 o'clock." I never owed him any money. He told me he lent money in different directions. He said he had $1000 with Judge Young. I live a mile from his place; I keep a shop and did his jobbing work; I am a blacksmith. He said he was not going to stop at the Cemetery longer than this Fall; that he was going to notify Judge Young for his money and live on it. He said he had about $4,000 and he could live on the interest of it. He told me Berrigan had paid him some money. He told me he had a lot of work to do in the graveyard, but he was going to put in his potatoes the following Monday. He said I have lent a lot of money through the country and never lost anything by lending. He said I got money I did not expect last week from Berrigan. Cannot remember whether he said Berrigan owed him more money. Never told me whether he lent money in direction of Rustico. Told me no names of farmers he had lent money to. I helped him to hang a gate this spring, but there was only a hook on it, nothing like the gatebolt produced. I asked him why he came over so far for me to help him hang gate. He said there were people around him who wanted to borrow small sums of money which he had refused, and he did not care about asking them. He mentioned no names. Never told me that he was afraid of some fellows whom he had secured against making a raid on him.

JAMES LEWIS (sworn).—I knew Patrick Callaghan. He gave me for safe keeping papers and documents more than once. I have them all now. (Asked to produce them. He exhibited them. They were a receipt from Judge Young for $1,700, dated May 6, 1884, stating that it had been deposited with the Judge at 6 per cent. Also Dominion Stock certificates for $600.) There are all the documents he left with me. I owed him nothing. He left notes of hand with me at first, but he got them and they are included with the others. I have opened the watch chain and a coin attached. I noticed it one Sunday afternoon this spring when I was out there to a funeral. I noticed only one coin, but would not be certain. I never thought he kept much money in the house as he used to add to that note of Judge Young's every year. When he asked me to take his papers first, I told him I did not know whether they would be safe, but he insisted upon it. I live a good distance away, but we often used to go out there. I have known him ever since he went to the Cemetery. He knew me about the Market. I know of no other sums due him besides these. I never called for the interest on the bonds since he gave them to me. Adjourned till Wednesday evening at 7.30 p.m.

Death of John McLean, Esq., Belmont, Mass.

At your request I have endeavored to reach the facts connected with the supposed murder of the late John McLean, a native of Brown's Creek, P. E. I. So far, everything is a mystery in connection with his death. The only thing his friends are positive of is that he is dead, and nothing more. This morning I went to Everett to see his brother, Mr. Angus McLean, because no particular attention was paid to the affair in this city. From him I learned as follows:—John McLean lived in Belmont, and was a contractor and builder. Belmont is a few miles outside of Boston. On May 9 he was engaged at work on a building on Alden Street, in this city. At 4 p.m. on that day he left his men at work, and went out to purchase some lumber, but did not return. It is reported that on that night he was seen in the Fitchburg Railway Depot, but nothing more was heard of him until the morning of May 25, when his body was found floating at the head of Lewis' Wharf, in Boston Harbor. His brother identified him, although he had been in the water for a long time. An inquest was held, and the verdict was "Death by Drowning." The matter, however, is not yet settled. His friends are of the opinion that he met with foul play, as he was known to have a considerable amount of money on his person at the time. If McLean has been murdered by any party or parties, they were certainly very generous, for they left his watch and some small change in his pockets. Boston detectives are now at work on the case, and although they are not a very talkative class on men, they feel confident that they will arrive at the real facts ere long. There is one drawback, however, and that is the length of time intervening between his disappearance and the day on which his body was found. Mr. McLean was a native of Brown's Creek, P. E. I., where he spent his early days. He was forty-eight years of age, and leaves a widow and six children in Belmont. He was a man of considerable business ability, and succeeded in building up a good business for himself in his adopted country. Many of his relations are still living at Brown's Creek, P. E. Island, and one brother lives in Halifax and another here. I have not the slightest doubt he met with foul play, although decomposition was too far advanced for the Doctors to detect any signs of violence. Medical examiner Harris, who viewed the body, gave it as his opinion however that the man was perfectly free from the influence of liquor when he met his death, no matter what the cause. Murders and suicides are not an uncommon occurrence in this country every day in the week. Sometimes they can be counted by the dozen. Still they create no alarm. Every body seems to be too busy to pay any attention to them. As an illustration of this fact I quote what one of the leading daily papers said when McLean's body was found. Here it is:— "The badly decomposed body of a man, supposed to be that of John McLean, 45 years old, of Belmont, who has been missing since the 9th inst., was found floating in the water off Lewis wharf this morning."—Globe, May 25th. Concerning anything further come to light regarding the case, I will let you know. While regretting the death of any body from P. E. Island, let us hope that if McLean was murdered the guilty parties will be detected.
