

S. N. Kays Opens Remodelled Store On 25th. Anniversary

Modern Styling And Lighting Provides For Shopping Convenience

The noticeable trend to modern styling is well illustrated in the renovations which have been done at the grocery store of S. N. Kays, on the corner of Pownall and Richmond Streets.

The transformation in the appearance of the store has been effected by Mr. Kays to commemorate the 25th anniversary of his establishing the business and the high degree of success he has attained.

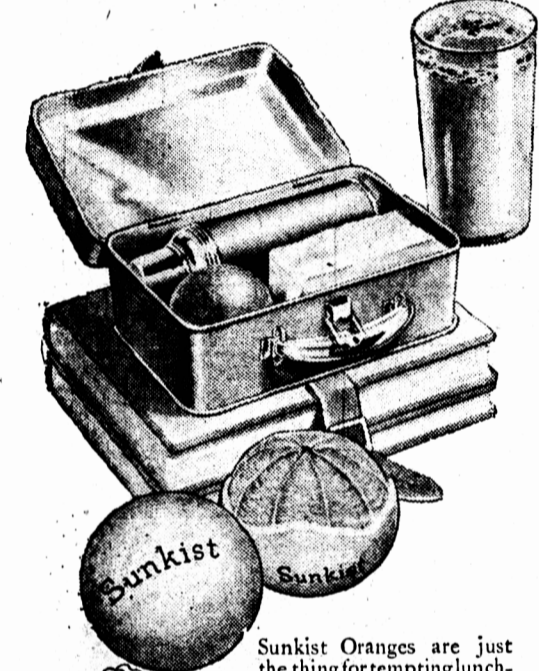

A completely new and colorful front has two large show windows which permit plenty of light and sunshine to reach the interior. Inside the new entrance there is a complete change from front to rear. Up-to-the-minute fluorescent lighting offers a daytime effect at all hours, and since they are set in a modern block-type ceiling the lights are able to give maximum illumination.

Old counters have been taken out and one modern serving counter installed on the right hand side. New 'island-type' display counters effectively show the merchandise offered and at the same time permit easy access to any part of the floor area. The front serving counter is of pleasant light-colored plywood with a clean, sparkling arborite surface and wide sweeping semi-circular ends.

The rear of the store holds the meat section where a modern refrigerated sales "showroom" has on display a wide selection of cooked and uncooked meats of all varieties.

In addition there is ample shelf space for all the canned goods and staples of a well stocked grocery.

Canadian Welfare Worker In Greece

The following are excerpts from a diary kept by Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova of the Unitarian Service Committee during a field trip to Greece.

August 2 — Left Salonica at 8.00 a. m. after a typical Greek breakfast: Turkish coffee and two miniature sweets. 1½ hours of jeep ride on a hard gravel road. In Kilikis, the Director of the Welfare Centre was expecting us in his office, and after drinking the traditional welcoming coffee, he politely answered all our questions. Yes, in his nomos of 208 villages, there were 19 with complete crop failure and 5 where repatriated refugees still live under tents. It is well known, he sadly added, that proportionately his area suffered more from guerrilla warfare than any other part of the country, and there are 5145 orphans. Would he be allowed to suggest the two villages of Thivounon and Spourietri for our clothing distribution, as their suffering was particularly acute? We accepted this proposal.

In the nearby Government warehouses we found out 21 boxes of clothing, blankets and soap, shipped from Athens on Government trucks for our distribution. What a thrill for me to see them like good old friends waiting for us! Lovingly I contemplated the markings of our Ottawa, Montreal and Winnipeg Branches; with delight I looked at the large inscriptions in Greek and English on each one of the cases, reading "Donation from Canada."

We had the up-to-date lists of the Welfare Centre for the two chosen villages, and after three hours of back-breaking sorting we finally started the most exciting part of our job—the preparation of the individual bundles! Each of the 43 families in Thivounon and of the 68 families in Spourietri were to receive a personal parcel, made up according to the number and ages of every family member! We gave one blanket to less than 6 people in one family, and two blankets, if there were more than six. Every person received four cakes of soap — truly necessary contribution since skin diseases are raging in the villages! Then the garments were chosen and shoes and underwear, to make each bundle a gift "they have never before received from any other relief organization." The name of the family was pinned on the outside for easy identification, and off it went to the mountain of the other ready parcels along the wall.

While I was watching with fascination this assembly line, I could not help but think of the long chain of hard work, patience and good will which had been necessary to make all this possible. These thousands of garments which we were putting into individual bundles, had been donated from all over Canada by people who heard me speak of the plight of Greek repatriated refugees and it had taken many days of volunteer labour in our Unitarian Service Committee collection centers to sort, pack, stencil and strap all these goods.

We arrived back in Salonica at 9 p.m. exhausted, dirty and hungry, but what did it matter? Tomorrow we would carry help to two isolated suffering frontier villages.

August 3. The stories of Thivounon and Spourietri are very much alike: because these villages refused to collaborate with the Germans, and later on with the guerrillas and communists, they were ransacked and pillaged and burned. Casualties were very high, and almost every single family lost at least one male member in the fierce, horrible fighting.

In May 1950 the Government repatriated them to what once had been their homes. All the houses we saw were newly rebuilt, including the school. Because these villages are high in the mountains and their fields are poor, the people used to live on cattle raising before the war. They had 350 large and 2,000 small animals then. Today, they have 50 large and 30 small ones left! Can you imagine how poor they all are? "If you find 200 Drachmas (1c) in my house", a woman told me, "you may have my head." She did not exaggerate—she spoke for all the village. With this in mind, you may perhaps picture a little better what a blanket, a winter coat, warm underwear mean to these repatriated refugees! It will take

Carle-Stewart Wedding

"The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stewart, Montague, was the scene of a quiet Fall wedding on Labour Day, September 3, at 2 p.m., when their elder daughter, Hazel Ruth, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Carman Douglas, only son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Carle, East Florenceville, N.B.

The impressive double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. P. L. Richardson.

A background of gladioli formed a beautiful floral setting for the wedding party, and baskets of white Gladioli and mammoth white Dahlias were artistically arranged about the living room.

The bride was lovely in a dusty rose gabled suit with brown accessories and wore a corsage of Better Time roses. She was attended by her sister, Mary Fay, who wore a powder blue gabardine suit with navy accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

The groom was attended by his cousin, Arnold Wightman, Montague.

Following the ceremony a delicious buffet luncheon was served in the dining room, which was beautifully decorated with mauve and white Gladioli and mauve and white Asters.

The table was centered with a two-tier wedding cake, which was topped with a miniature silver vase filled with tiny carnations, lighted on either side by white tapers. The bride's cake, topped with a miniature basket filled with lilies of the valley and orange blossoms, was cut in the traditional manner by the bride and groom.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. P. L. Richardson, and was responded to by the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Stewart chose a gown of black crepe with black accessories, and wore a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Carle, mother of the groom, wore a beige suit, with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Amid showers of confetti and best wishes, the happy young couple left on a honeymoon trip to Halifax and other points in Nova Scotia. On return they will reside in East Florenceville, N.B.
