The Bicycle Railroad Will Soon Have a Practical Test in New York

The newest thing in transportation is soon to have a practical test in Queens Co., N. Y. It is a bicycle railroad, and its chief advantage over other varieties lies in the minimum weight of the cars which will run upon it. The average weight of an express train on a steam railway, having a seating capacity of 200 persons is 200 tons, an average of a ton a passenger. A train of bicycle cars of the same seating capacity will not weigh over twenty tons, or about 200 pounds to a passenger.

About a year ago a mile and a half of bicycle railroad was finished near Patchogue, L. I., and since then hundreds of people have ridden on it, many of them railway experts from all over the country. The general opinion seems to be that the system will work and that in time it will revolutionize methods of transit.

Hitherto in order to secure the maximum of speed and safety the weight of trains has always had to be greatly increased. When everything possible has been accomplished a train propelled by steam which can go from New York to Chicago over the New York Central in twenty-four hours is considered a marvel, while a speed of fifty miles an hour, including numerous stoppages, is counted very good time. It is claimed that on the bicycle railroad a mile a minute, including stops, will be a very low rate of speed, while an express train will be able to make 100 miles an hour and appear to be accomplishing wonders.

This possibility of great speed is due to a number of advantages which the new method of construction holds over all others. Friction is reduced to the minimum by the cars running on only two wheels, one at each end, and on but one track; the motors and cars may be built very lightly because there is no possibility of their jumping the track, and the motive power is electricity, the limit of whose propelling power has not yet been discovered. To further insure safety from rear-end collisions the system may be laid in block sections in such a way that a train passing out of a section destroys the current in that section automatically, so that a following train cannot run into that section until the train ahead shall have passed through another section. By this device trains must always be at least two sections apart.

Finally, the new road will cost less than any other style of construction. So far the trolley road is the most inexpensive. To build it costs about $60,000 a mile, or about half as much as a steam railroad. The bicycle railroad will cost only $25,000 a mile. To run a trolley line costs about twelve cents a car per mile, while the new line can be operated for an average of eight cents.

Seeing by Electricity.

Prof. Alexander Graham Bell is spending the hot months at his summer place in Nova Scotia, engaged in a series of investigations which will no doubt have important and perhaps sensational results. His outdoor work is devoted to experiments in "aerial navigation," in connection with Prof. Langley of the Smithsonian Institution, while in his laboratory he is endeavoring to demonstrate a problem to which he has given a great deal of thought and in which he thoroughly believes. It is to harness electricity to light, as it has been harnessed to sound, so that people may be able to see a great distance, just as the telautograph enables them to write and the telephone enables them to speak at a great distance. Prof. Bell firmly believes that it will be possible some day to see from Washington to New York as easily as one can convey the sound of the voice that distance. He insists that the fact has already been demonstrated and that it only remains to construct the apparatus necessary to bring the possibilities of the discovery into actual and practical use. This is exceedingly difficult—much more difficult than the construction of the telegraph instrument or the telephone, for the reason that the vibrations of light are so much more rapid than the vibrations of sound. But Prof. Bell is confident that he will soon be able to discover a diaphragm sufficiently sensitive to receive the vibrations of light and produce the effect necessary to convey the impressions to the human vision.

Glass Coloring in Germany.

One of the methods resorted to in making colored glass objects is to take a mass of white glass from the melting-pot, on the end of a blow-pipe, and then immerse it in another pot containing molten glass of the desired hue. The latter then constitutes a mere film on the outside of the globe, dish, lantern, or other object which the blower is about to make. Other plans are also in use. A new one is reported as having been tried in Germany, and as giving very satisfactory results.

The blower has a piece of apparatus of this description: An upright sheetiron cylinder twenty inches in diameter is surmounted by a horizontal one. The former is so arranged that an iron ladle may be inserted in it, near the bottom. The upper cylinder has doors at its ends, one of them allowing the operator to introduce his work and support his blowpipe on a crotch. This device is placed inside a furnace, and when the workman is reheating an article for the last time, an attendant puts a spoonful of certain chemicals in the ladle and puts the latter in the lower cylinder. Fumes then rise, and in these the object is rapidly turned over and over while at a red-heat. A beautiful tint and luster are thus imparted. The chemical mixtures employed in this work are not described and possibly are trade secrets.

A New Idea in Foundations.

How to handle quicksand that underlie places where foundations are to be built has long been a perplexing problem for builders and engineers. It is announced that a German experimenter has tried blowing very dry, finely powdered hydraulic cement through tubes into the sand. The air current causes the sand and cement to mix thoroughly, and although it takes some weeks to fully set, the result is eminently satisfactory. Under ordinary circumstances, quicksand is so difficult to deal with that a simple and effectual means of handling is welcome.

A Correction.

"Yes, but I made one little alteration, I said, 'With all thy wordly goods I thee endow.'"—Life.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The correspondent of the Times in Tien Tsin says: "Chinese officials appear careless of the fate of the empire. They are devoting their chief attention to personal interests, contracts for arms and the like, regardless of utility. The people are equally indifferent, they suffer more from the Chinese soldiery in Moukden and vicinity than from fear of the enemy. The Russian officers have received instructions to adopt a conciliatory attitude towards their British colleague. The Times has this despatch from Yokohama: "Two American torpedo experts have a contract with China to destroy the Japanese fleet. They have been promised $1,000,000 for each squadron destroyed, payment for each merchantman in proportion. At Chee Foo it is reported there has been three days fighting at Talian Wan without decisive results.

GENERALLY PRESCRIBED!

The Idea that Bright's Disease cannot be cured Proven to be a Fallacy.

QUEBEC, Nov. 5—Local physicians are much gratified over the letter of Dr. A. G. McCormick, of Richmond, this province, testifying to his cure of Bright's Disease, by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Since the introduction of the remedy in this city, many physicians have not hesitated to prescribe the pills, and numerous cures have been the result. This latest testimony, coming from so well known a medical man, proves that the local men were right in changing the old-time remedies for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Hence their jubilation.

"I never knew what it was to live before dearest," said Algernon, as he kissed the tips of his flance's fingers and then her lips."

"And yet you seem only to be living from hand to mouth," replied "Dearest."—Yonkers Statesman.
