"Community development is the phase of the program where local people are organized, plans for development made and resources taken to improve communities and areas. We now have in operation six pilot areas. During the next few weeks this number will be increased by four areas to make ten total. This means that a very large portion of the province will be under the resources of the development program. At the same time we anticipate additional to the staff of the division of research so that this community development effort can become more expanding and practical operation."

NEEDS BEEN
"Our experience over the past months has demonstrated beyond any reasonable doubt the need for training of our people if we are to make progress. Our resources development program, from the very beginning, started as a training program in which local people took courses to learn community development methods. This program has attracted wide attention in both Canada and the United States. In fact, the study manual which was used and is still being used, a manual which was developed by our research division, has been studied by training officials at the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington and will get some very wide use in the United States.

The handicraft training program, some training in small business management and a continuation of training in community development are first steps in the program. They are already well underway.

"The entire operation of the resources development program will be under Mr. Daley's supervision. Training at the Essex County Agricultural School in Massachusetts, undergraduate and graduate work at Tufts University in Boston and experience in teaching in adult night high school qualify the new director for these many operations."

HUNGRY FOR TRAINING
"It is my personal feeling that in this province we are and have been hungry for training and education. Our resources program has proven this beyond any doubt. I am completely convinced that the ultimate solution of our basic economic and development problems lies in a solid training program for all of our people. I look forward with great enthusiasm to the unfolding of this effort and I invite private citizens, organizations and business to share with us any ideas, experience or skills they may have."
