

EBENEZER SCHOOL GROUP WINS

The accurate foot work and colorful costumes of these children representing Grade 5 to 7 of Ebenezer school earned first place for the group in Class 227 of the 1958 Prince Edward Island Musical Festival. Their interpretation of the "Captain Jinks" square dance was adjudicated by Mrs. Fink at Birchwood High auditorium last Wednesday morning.

The Summer Fashion Show Delights Capacity Houses

One of the most interesting and varied displays of summer fashions was held last evening at the YMCA reception room. The show, presented by the Centennial Y's Menettes and sponsored by Holman's will also run Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

In welcoming the guests Mrs. Brian Cudmore, the president of the Centennial Y's Menettes, stated that this was the third fashion show they had presented. Their first duty was to assist their husbands, the Y's men, in their work for the "Y". In supporting "Y" work it was an investment in the youth of today to have good citizens for tomorrow.

Continuing the custom of other years tables for four were arranged cafe-style. Against a smart backdrop of spring chintz, mixed spring flowers and fan-shaped trellis, the latter interwoven with lazy daisies, the models made their appearance on a T shaped ramp.

Mrs. Ronald Atkinson's music was very much enjoyed as the fashions were modelled. There were seventy-three entrants and two intermissions. In the presentation first came the "Queens in Calico." Mrs. Leigh Donald who opened the show was described as happy-go-lucky wearing a two-piece cotton that could be worn with other separates. Of all the lovely models none could have had a more infectious smile than Mrs. Donald and, certainly, she set the tone for a happy show.

Cottons in chemise were charmingly portrayed by models who looked at ease in their chemise. Some featured half-belts to identify the waistline in front, then hung straight in back. The cottons were all easily cared for, many being drip-dry. Bright solid colors, Paisley prints and floral designs were all shown.

Mrs. Robert MacKinnon, who is usually music festivaling with this time modelling instead in a dusty rose lace over taffeta. Mrs. Gordon White was charming in polka dots. The middle collar formed the new blouson back look in back. Mrs. Stuart Chandler modelled with ecru leaf-green chemise with three-quarter raglan sleeves.

Miss Agnes Arseneault was in a Jonathan Logan dress in tonal black so right for daylight or candlelight. Mrs. Kenneth Judson in a "Precious Secret" dress wore a brightly printed top and matching hankie and softly colored gown.

Mrs. George Shelton wore a film dress and duster ensemble, both exquisitely light in blithe

200 Red Shield Workers Meet To Launch Canvass

Almost 200 enthusiastic men representing many Church denominations and community organizations, gathered at a supper meeting last evening in Zion Presbyterian Church hall, in preparation for a canvass of Charlottetown and vicinity, in the interests of the Salvation Army's Red Shield appeal.

Presiding was Lt. Col. Arthur H. Peake, general chairman for Charlottetown, who thanked the workers for their willingness in undertaking to assist the "Army" in its mission of relieving human need. Brigadier John Nelson of Saint John, divisional commander of the Salvation Army's work in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island was a special guest and he along with Senior Capt. John Carter, commanding officer for P.E.I., Lt. Bruce Robertson, youth officer, of Saint John and Lt. Carson James, corps officer of Amherst, were heard in ten-minute instrumental selections.

An interesting interlude in the meeting occurred, when the meeting was tuned in on radio station CFY and heard a brief talk from Senior Major Edith Chandler who was recently appointed superintendent of Sunset Lodge. Major Chandler's talk was heart warming and inspiring as she described a typical day in the life of the home for aged women.

Brigadier Nelson spoke briefly, recounting the early days of the Army when funds were so low that at one time when the General wished to telegraph a message he used the one word "others." "This word," said Brigadier Nelson, "still aptly describes the purpose and work of the Salvation Army"

At the conclusion of his talk, the Brigadier presented provincial chairman Norman Lovthorpe, with an engraved plaque in recognition of his many years of service on the advisory board and as a for the audience. The conveners Mrs. Ronald Woodgate and Mrs. Norman MacLeod were being congratulated on their most successful sell-out for every evening. The work of the commentators Mrs. Harold Milligan, Mrs. Ralph Manning, Mrs. David Sculley and Mrs. Brian Cudmore was very much appreciated.

To Mrs. Gerald Bowness and Mr. Wolly Coulson went special thanks. As the president said "without their great assistance, there could have been no show". Following are the various other people and firms who contributed to this wonderful springtime fashion presentation.

In Charlottetown itself construction jobs are beginning to eat into the ranks of the unemployed. The new building at St. Dunstan's College, the new wing of the Prince Edward Island hospital, the Naval Building on the waterfront, and the new Royal Bank are all making demands on the local labour force. Very soon the site of the New Baptist Church on Prince Street will also be the scene of more activity. It is understood that the old home presently on the site is to be removed before the end of this month.

Residential building will also play a part in summer building picture. Already a number of new homes are under way, some in the Brighton area and others in various sections of the city. At the present rate of decline in unemployment figures, the end of the month should see most of idle workers on the payroll once more.

Three Rotarians Tell Some Characteristics Of Jobs

Three Rotarians told their fellow members of the club at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday. Many of the characteristics of their job. The meeting was presided over by Austin Scales who introduced the speakers. They were thanked by Don Gass, co-chairman.

"If you could go through a typical day with a motel operator, you could see him as an all round maintenance man, bookkeeper, housekeeper, decorator landscaper, public relations man, snow pusher and a walking encyclopedia," Wallie Rodd said in describing his work. "Here are some of the questions I may have to answer again this summer. What makes the soil red; How do you tell a cream cow from a milk cow; Why don't we have daylight saving; Will the Woods Hole ferry run today; How far to Sunnyside; Did Anne really live at Green Gables; Is the winter in this North County one long night; Why don't we have more road signs; Can you give me some tips on the horses; Where are the Indians; When will the cause-way be built."

Mr. Rodd described the rapid expansion of the motel business here and elsewhere which he attributed largely to the improved highways and the acceptance of autos as a means of travel over long distances with a minimum of inconvenience. "More holidays and more to spend call for more in the way of comfort, which the modern motel is unable to supply."

Forty-eight distinct types of televisions are distributed by the 16 manufacturers in Canada each year and the business is expanding at an amazing rate," Art Love said in his talk on the radio-electronic industry.

Stressing the need of specialized knowledge in the field of his business activity, Mr. Love touched briefly on such items as radio, TV, hi-fi, tape recorders, educational instructions, two-way radios and fish dragger equipment, electronic church organs etc.

One item of more than casual care and attention is the equipment of ships calling in port. Repairs on such equipment must be made before the ship is allowed to proceed on her voyage. "One man cannot keep up with the knowledge necessary to make repairs on the various items mentioned," Mr. Love said.

"Since 1893 when the asphalt roofing industry began in a small way to market the roll type roofing, the general public has increased its acceptance of these products until today approximately 90 per cent of all structures in North America are roofed with some type of asphalt production." "One Don Milton said in dealing with his classification Building Products.

Local officials point out that the figures are very encouraging and credit the swift decline in the number of unemployed to the favorable weather. It is not to be taken that the 185 people who found work are all residents of Charlottetown. The figure applies evenly to all points in Kings and Queens Counties.
