"Why couldn't he?" asked Prickly Porky. "Because mother's look smart. Nobody could catch her. No, sir, nobody in all the Great World could catch her," boasted the small Chick. Prickly Porky grinned. "Maybe you're right," said he. "I hope so. Well I'm hungry." At that, Little Lone Chick looked frightened again, and prepared to run. The dull little eyes of Prickly Porky almost twinkled. "I told you I don't eat baby birds," said he. "What do you eat?" piped Little Lone Chick anxiously. "Watch me, and you'll see," said Prickly Porky. He climbed a tree.
