Georgetown Nominates New Mayor And Town Council

Georgetown will be governed for the next two years by a new mayor and council which received unanimous nominations yesterday. Mr. P. L. Boudreau, prominent merchant, will start his fifth term as mayor and chief magistrate of the King's County capital, and will bring to this office a fund of knowledge and experience gained during previous terms. His full slate of councillors were unopposed in the nomination day proceedings, as was the newly nominated mayor.

The following will compose the new town council: Ray W. Solomon, merchant; Nelson W. Hanson, agent; Lawrence S. Batchelder, King's County gaoler; Emerson Lovell, diesel engineer; C. Adolphus Scully, assistant King's County gaoler; and Thomas F. Renton, retired C.N.R. locomotive engineer. Councillors Renton, Solomon, Scully and Lovell have previous experience as council members and have served as council committee chairmen while councillors Batchelder and Hanson will bring to the council administrative experience gained by being members of the executives of various organizations.

For the new mayor, it will be his fifth term as Georgetown's chief executive, his last term of office having been completed two years ago. During his previous term in office many innovations and improvements were accomplished including the erection of the community centre and a monument to town council and Community Welfare League co-operative effort. Also during his previous terms in office the town hall was renovated and painted, a new fire-hall erected, sidewalks and crossings improved, and stop signs which also successfully carried on negotiations with the late Premier Jones and District members resulting in the pavement of Kent and Water Streets. Mayor Boudreau is a veteran of the R. C. M. Police, and Councillors Batchelder and Scully are overseas veterans of the second World War.

Mayor Percy L. Boudreau

New Bishop

jects the gospel of Christ. It denies Christian precepts and scorns Christian ideals. It would, if it could, drive God out of his world, Christ out of his church, the immortal soul out of man.

Even in our western world thousands no longer profess belief in God. Millions do not serve him. To many Christ is not God, the church is only a human organization heaven and hell are not realities.

ISOLATES RELIGION

"So widespread are the effects of this materialism that, to a large extent, it has isolated modern living from religion. Religion lives and is practised only in spite of modern environment. Even among good people, there is created confusion of thought and paralysis of will.

This total and determined materialism can only be met by a total and determined Christianity."

Guests at the consecration ceremony and dinner that followed included Hon. Henry D. Hicks, premier of Nova Scotia, Hon. Colin Chisholm and Mr. Justice J. D. O'Reilly, Archbishop R. Robichaud, W. J. MacMillan, K.S.G., Bishop W. J. Smith, Bishop K. R. Turner, Bishop J. R. Gagnon, Monsignor P. J. Nicholson and Rev. Douglas MacEachern, brother of the new bishop.

A dinner for Bishop MacEachern was tendered by the clergy of the Antigonish diocese following the consecration.

Archbishop Panico replied to the toast to the church, saying that Bishop MacEachern takes up residence in a territory long since introduced to the Gospel of Christ by his name-take, Bishop Angus Bernard MacEachern, and by a long line of distinguished bishops.

CONTINUES MISSION

"He goes to continue a mission carried out so well in the past, the Christians and Christian endeavors of outstanding stature have flowered not only for the edification of Prince Edward Island, but for Canada and all the world," he said. "Not the least of its contributions to the church has been the island's gift of Cardinal McGuigan to the west, to Ontario and to the Universal Church."

Continued Archbishop Panico: "I am reluctant to conclude this discourse without a word about this diocese of Antigonish and the university in which we are gathered. Long before my arrival in Canada I had heard of the faith and zeal of Antigonish diocese. Wherever I have gone news reached me of this small but great university. The Holy See itself has described your work of adult education as a 'providential movement.'"

"You have shown the world that when the church helps man with his temporal problems she is but fulfilling her mission to save the whole man body and soul. You have demonstrated that charity at its best means helping men to help themselves, helping them to become master of their spiritual destiny through controlling their own temporal welfare. May your efforts in the field of adult education grow and flourish. Let your prists at home and those who leave you to labor elsewhere cooperate devotedly with a work which is indeed 'providential'.

TRACES HISTORY

Most Rev. Norbert Robichaud was one of two clerics toasting the diocese of Charlottetown. Speaking in French and English, he traced the history of the diocese and lauded the great religious spirit that has marked its long history.

Right Rev. G. J. MacLellan, vicar capitular of Charlottetown diocese was co-sponsor of the toast. He spoke of the history of St. Dunstan's University and its distinguished forbear, St. Andrews, and of the contribution these universities have made to the church in Canada.

In a brief response liberally sprinkled with humorous references to his great size, Bishop MacEachern thanked the Holy See and its representative for the honor conferred and all those who had assisted in this consecration.

Liturgical music for the ceremonies was provided by the male choir of St. Ninian Cathedral under the direction of Rev. T. G. Lynch.

The Fourth Degree Guard of Honor was drawn from Knights of Columbus assemblies through the Maritimes. Contributing were Sydney: J. F. Chaisson, Howard Cathedral; Maurice G. Gagnon, St. Michael's; D. H. MacPherson, St. Stephenson; G. Baldwin, F. MacLean, Ted Boutilier, D. McKay, and M. Kelley; Charlottetown: B. Gallant, L. B. Doyle, T. A. Campbell, P. Murnaghan, J. A. Kelly, G. H. McGuigan, and Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan; Halifax: Len Buckley, Keith Powers, Bill Downey, George Armstrong, Dud Chisholm and Colla Cahill; Antigonish: G. R. Chadwick, D. P. Chisholm, A. R. MacDonald, D. J. MacEachern, John Forbes and C. J. MacNeill.

Monsignor P. J. Nicholson, president-emeritus of St. FX, and long-time friend and counsellor of Bishop MacEachern, gave the address to the new bishop on behalf of his fellow clergy.

REGRET EXPRESSED

He expressed regret that the diocese was losing a priest of mighty stature and ability but said, "We are consoled that the gifts which endeared you to us as a priest will assure your success, under God, and as a bishop."

Most Rev. J. G. Berry offered the toast to the new bishop. "We are living," he said, "in an age of drastic social change and of some social disorder."

"Bishop MacEachern is able and understanding and well-equipped for these times. He is capable, not only of sound leadership but planning and accomplishment as well."

"The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, Montague branch was held at the home of Mrs. Nell Hooley Monday evening. The president, Mrs. Hooley presided and opened the meeting in the usual manner by observing one minute silence. Roll call was answered by eighteen members, and there was one visitor present. The minutes of the annual meeting in December were read and approved.

Correspondence included three letters from service personnel thanking the auxiliary for Christmas gifts. Three bills in connection with the Christmas gifts were read, and on motion, all bills were ordered to be paid.

The sick committee reported that no calls had been made during the month.

The committee was asked to buy a gift for a Montague service man who is presently home on sick leave. After considerable discussion the members expressed their willingness to canvass for the Red Cross campaign in March.

The financial report was read by the treasurer, Mrs. Gerald McCarron.

Plans were finalized for sponsoring series of card parties in the Legion hall and a committee, comprising Mrs. Archie Hickey, Mrs. Leonard Gillis and Mrs. Nan Nicholson, was appointed to attend to the details for this week's party.

At the close of the meeting everyone enjoyed a delightful social hour of contests and singing. The program was arranged by Miss Florrie Beaton, Mrs. Jessie Shaw and Mrs. Atwood MacDonald. Pianists for the evening were Mrs. MacDonald and Mrs. Hickey. Contest winners were Mrs. Lyle Boehne and Mrs. John Gaudet.

Montague's Mayor B.H. Yeo Returned By Acclamation

"Mayor Bruce H. Yeo was returned to office by acclamation at civic nomination proceedings held in Montague yesterday. Mayor Yeo, a prominent motion picture exhibitor, now enters his third term of office as chief-magistrate of the town of Montague. His career in public office has been an outstanding one. It was during his term that a major street paving project was undertaken, and which today, although not completed, stands as a monumental work to his energy and enterprise. During his term of office also, the final outstanding debentures on the concrete pavement in the town were paid off, and at the present time Mayor Yeo has inaugurated a new program of sidewalk construction.

Mayor Bruce H. Yeo

Nine candidates nominated for councillors in the six-man council. These included the six councillors of the past term, namely for ward one, south side, S. S. Hessian, Q.C.; M. C.
