

time and strength over her cooking. Her table was always bountifully supplied and unusually varied. A little was thrown into the boiling vegetables and meats to increase their tenderness. The whole family were gaily and yellow complexioned, especially on a tinge of rose and red, which shone on their lip. They had bad teeth, and were troubled with stomach difficulties. Much as I disapproved of such a common use of the article, I supposed it harmless, when just such quantities of soda are so commonly used to sweeten the sour milk or cream, and thereby cause the desired effervescence, and considered its baneful effects by their acidity neutralized.

The English, I believe, use soda—though perhaps not as freely as we do. The first time I heard of Soda biscuits, the receipt was sent me as "a very wholesome article of food, the soda being such a sweetener of the stomach, and the cream of tartar a purifier of the blood". A physician recommended me to feed my babe on fresh cow's milk, with the addition of a little soda to prevent acidity. Many make frequent use of it to prevent or cure acidity of the stomach.

Shall we away with it entirely? I have been convinced theoretically—but the "saleratus jar" stands on the pantry shelf—(husband says, not to be filled again.) "Accidents will happen," is the motto of families. Now and then the rising dough stands a little too long, and we fear the saccharine fermentation has passed, and the acetous will develop itself in the process of baking. The "flat" status is then very convenient. O, when straws are present, and a little rises the tenderness and puffiness of "muffins," or "pancakes," and "cup" or "sponge cake," when perhaps my failure even in the appearance of an article would be more readily excused than my success. As for bread however, there is seldom need of any alkali in its composition.

Of biscuits, the best are light rolls, waffles and muffins, if people require, hot cakes can be baked to suit the taste, and of perfection with yeast. Then there are puddings, buns, rusks, loaf-cake and gingerbread are raised in the same way. Will not some of our housewives who are so ready to call this one particular an laudable error, give us some of their experience on this head?

If we give up the use of alkalies entirely, our table arrangements must be somewhat simplified, and its variety abridged, and those who gather about it must make up their minds to train up their appetites accordingly.—ELISE, Waukesha, Wis.—Country Gentleman.

GLEANINGS FROM LATE PAPERS.

THE TELEGRAPH FROM SEASTOUP TO LONDON.—A telegraphic despatch dated Balaklava, Wednesday evening, was received at the War office at half-past twelve o'clock on Thursday. The delay in the transmission of the message was due to the fact that the wire from the Cape Kaliakra (where the wire dips into the Black Sea) and Yarna, a distance of two miles, are not yet connected. It is not, however, believed, is the wire carried into Balaklava from St. George's Monastery. When the telegraph is again up to the summit of the mountain, the trenches is already laid down, the field officer in command during the night will, at the same moment, announce a sortie to Lord Roberts and to the Prime Minister in Downing-street.

THE £200,000 AID TO THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.—We have a special telegraph from Quebec, that Mr. Caley's proposition for £200,000 to be loaned to the original guaranties to the Grand Trunk Railway, was carried this morning at two o'clock. The vote was in the affirmative by a majority of thirty-nine in favor of the proposition.—Toronto Leader, 4th.

ATTENTION TO BULLS NIAGARA FALLS.—A few days since the Buffalo Democracy gave an account of the capture by a party of the employees of the Railroad Suspension Bridge at Niagara, to measure the depth of the Niagara river at the suspension bridge, under the fall. The suspension bridge was suspended by 100 wires, was parted from the wire by the force of the current, as soon as it entered the water. The cause of the accident is not yet ascertained, the result of a second trial. He says to the editor: "After your loss, another attempt was made with a similar iron of about 40 pounds weight, attached to the end of the suspension, so as not to impede the fall of the weight. I then let the weight fall from the Bridge, a height of 200 feet. It struck the surface fairly, ly, with the point down—must have sunk to some depth, but was no longer out of sight than about one second, when it made its appearance again on the surface about 100 feet from the bridge. It was a small chip, until it was checked by the wire. We then commenced hauling in slowly, which made the chip strike the wire, and the wire in turn struck it, and ended the sport. I am satisfied that no metal has sufficient specific gravity to pierce that current—unless with the momentum of a bullet. The velocity of the velocity of the iron when striking, must have been about equal to 124 feet per second—and consequently the force of the impact would be 15,680,000 opposed to the current was about 50 superficial inches. This will give an idea of the strength of that current, and at the same time hint at the plan forces that have been used to scoop out the bed of the Niagara river."

The Canadian estimates for the year 1855 are:—Anticipated revenue $4,256,000; anticipated expenditure, $4,252,500.

The Canadian liquor law contains one peculiar provision:—Any married woman can, with or without the consent of her husband, prosecute any illegal vendor of liquor." Thus the law has been brought into operation.

The Post Office money order system in Canada has been improved and extended. Some of $100 or less may now be sent forward at the rate of one-half per cent, upon the amount of the bill.

W. O. Smith and S. K. Foster Esqs., recently ran the election for Mayor of St. John, N. B. Upwards of 1800 votes were polled, viz. 972 for Smith, 836 for Foster. The new Mayor was sworn in on the 6th inst.

A large ship laden with Railroad iron arrived here on Tuesday evening last. Nova Scotia is happily prosecuting her Railways with every prospect of a successful issue, while the sister States are less unfortunately in the net of Jackson & Co.

Commodore McAnuley and a party of his officers have been assailed by a rabble in Havana, with shoutings of "Death to the Yankees." The United States Consul would be highly popular in Cuba.

The outbuildings attached to the old Government House at Toronto, are being pulled down, and the site is to be placed as a residence for the Governor General.

MATRIMONY AND THE MAINS LAW.—The young ladies of the Illinois Institute, at Wheaton, Du Page county, recently passed the following resolutions:—"That we, the undersigned young ladies of the Illinois Institute, pledge ourselves not to keep company with or join in the sacred bonds of matrimony, with any young gentleman who is not in favor of the Mains Law, or some other prohibitory law." It has generally been the custom for ladies to "wait till they are asked"—especially young ladies still at school.

By Telegraph to Halifax.

New York, May 19, 1855. The Steamship Bill passed yesterday evening. Liverpool dates to the 5th May.

Consols quoted at 88½. The Bank rate of interest has again reduced, and is now 4 per cent.

Flour and Grain market firm. Advance in Flour one shilling per barrel; Wheat, three shillings per bushel; One one shilling per quarter. Tea market dull.

The Allies were gaining ground. An attempt has been made to assassinate the Emperor Napoleon.

ADDITIONAL ITEMS.

Dates from the Crimea to the 4th inst. The Bombardment of Sebastopol had slackened. The American Mail Steamer dates to the 5th and from the Crimea to the 4th inst. We give the Telegraphic Despatches from New York, as they appear in the daily papers, who brings, which is far from satisfactory. We must, however, wait for our own English Mail, more fully to give us later and more reliable intelligence, in the present state of the War. The truth is, it takes a long way to make or bring out good generals; and a forty days' march is not a short one. We have been given to drill and manoeuvre troops for Parades or reviews, or even to bring them into action, and then to be sent back to the theatre to produce a Napoleon or a Wellington. Neither the French or English have been engaged in wars of late, except occasionally, as upon a limited scale, in India and Algiers, while the Russians have kept up a constant warfare in the Caucasus, Georgia and Persia, with the Hungarian War in aid of assistance, and one or two wars with Turkey. In addition to this her whole character and Government is modelled upon strict military principles, and she has been compelled to keep from 80 to 100 thousand men under arms, and to keep under the warlike people of Poland. However strong may be our desire for peace, it seems almost enough now, that the love of it has led to too great remissness as to the necessity of being prepared for war. The leaves of pure Christianity is not yet sufficiently diffused, to restrain the passions of ambition and lustre, at work in the heart of a Despot with sixty millions of souls at his command.—Christian Messenger.

CALIFORNIA.

The Steamship Illinois arrived at New York on the 13th inst., with about seven hundred passengers and $1,116,000 in treasure. She brings dates to the 17th April.

On the 20th of April, the Golden Age struck on a sunken rock off the South-west end of the Island of Quing, near the Commodore landing body, and it was deemed advisable for the safety of the passengers, mails and treasure to be taken aboard the vessel, and to be secured. A smooth, sandy beach having been selected for the purpose, there was a strong probability of the ship being off.

Bain's California Store very dull, and money tight. Several mercantile houses had failed.

The miners were doing well, but owing to the scarcity of coin very little dust reached the market.

The Mint had not resumed operations. Bain had failed to bring large numbers of clerks and mechanics to the mine.

The news from Kern River is as contradictory as ever, but the diggings are represented by no means so rich as at first represented.

The Know Nothings were successful in the city elections all over the State. At San Jose, however, they had been defeated by a general vote.

The steamer Sunrise, and one of the steamers of the California Steam navigation Company, were on a steady trade for $200,000. The steamer Sunrise had been sailed off from the river trade.

The Baltimore American says that the cost of living in that city is fully one hundred per cent. higher than it was ten years ago; and even at that calculation, it is said to be fully twenty-five per cent. less than in Philadelphia at the present time.

HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Saturday, May 26, 1855.

In expectation of the arrival of the Mail by the Steamer Lady Le Marchant which has just arrived, we have delayed issuing our paper to a later hour than usual, to lay before our readers the news of the day, which we have hastily extracted, and will be found on the 6th page.

The Amateur Concert in behalf of the poor, came off Tuesday evening, there was not a numerous attendance as we had anticipated and could have been better understood, as we professed no knowledge of Music, we shall be excused from offering any criticism on the performance.

We can only state that, those who are considered of good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's entertainment: one of the best proofs of the audience being greatly gratified, was the applause that the pianist, increasing towards the end of the performance in both number and strength. Our opinion as to the good tendency of the evening's entertainment, is based on the taste of the people has been often expressed, and they lose nothing of their charms, when we see the talent that good judges expressed themselves highly pleased with their evening's