Of Special Interest to our Farmers

Preparation for Seeding. (From the Farmers Advocate.)

The return of spring brings to the farmer a measure of anxiety about the spring work on the farm, and especially in regard to the operations of seeding. He knows that much of the success or partial failure of the prospective crop depends upon the preparation of the soil and the character of the seed sown. It is not necessary to remind the wide-awake farmer of the wisdom of having his implements and tools looked over, repaired if repairs are needed, and put in first-class condition for their work, to have the teams and their harness well prepared for their part, and to have the seed grain cleaned and ready to be taken to the fields as soon as the land is sufficiently dry to work satisfactorily. All these things will naturally suggest themselves to the man who is watching every point with a view to making the best use of the time for seeding when it arrives.

It is generally conceded that, as a rule, by far the best results are received from the earliest sown grain crops, especially in the case of spring wheat and oats, while in regard to barley and peas early sowing is more generally approved of now than formerly. As early, then, as the land is sufficiently dry to work without poaching it is well to make a start with the cultivation and preparation of the seed-bed, which should be well worked and stirred to a depth of at least three inches, and it is doubtful whether there is any advantage in the case of land that was plowed in the fall in working it to a greater depth than four inches. We are persuaded that a large proportion of Canadian farmers especially in the older provinces and on clay or clay loam soils, are sustaining heavy losses every year from inferior crops owing to imperfect or insufficient cultivation of the land in the preparation of the seed bed. The probability is that in nine cases out of ten the failure to produce reasonably profitable crops is not nearly so much owing to the lack of sufficiency of the elements of fertility in the soil as to the fact that the mechanical condition of the soil has not been made such that the crops can appropriate them and use them for their development. In far too many cases the implements used are not calculated to do effectual work in breaking up the land, stirring and pulverizing it so as to make a proper seed-bed. In some cases this is due to the unsuitable construction of the implements, and in others to their not being properly sharpened and kept in the best condition to do thorough work. To skim the land with a jumping cultivator which cuts only here and there the width of its hoese, leaving one half the surface soil unbroken and unmoved and making an imperfect seed-bed, is to court failure in the harvest unless the season be exceptionally favorable. A protracted drouth may defeat the best of cultivation and management, but the probabilities even in that case are largely in favor of the well cultivated field, other things being equal. The farmer in his seeding operations will do well to prepare for the worst possibilities of either excessive drought or excessive rainfall by thorough cultivation and thorough drainage; then, having done his part to the best of his ability, he has no delinquencies to regret, and has good grounds to hope and trust for a satisfactory outcome. So great faith have we in the benefits of thorough tillage that we are willing to believe the time is coming when the cultivation of grain crops will not end with the seeding operations, but will be continued till the crop is half-grown. In view of the manifest advantages of hoeing in the case of roots, corn, and garden stuff, why should we doubt that similar tillage would produce proportionate results in other crops? We are fully persuaded that this idea might profitably be carried out in most grain crops to the extent of harrowing them once or twice after the plants are above ground, or even before they are "brooded," as the Scotch say, if the land has been packed by a heavy rain and is in danger of baking. The only reasonable objections to this course is in cases where clover seed has been sown, and even in that event it is a question whether more of the clover plants would not perish in a baked soil than in a looser and friable bed. Winter, wheat, too, is often greatly benefited by a good harrowing in the spring, followed by the roller.

The difficulty of securing a catch of clover in some districts, and especially on clay soils, is to many a perplexing question and one which will bear discussion, as it is a serious matter when repeated are met with, the regular rotation of crops being interfered with and continued cropping resorted to, the land being thus depleted of fertility when it should be recruiting. No doubt the lack of humus in the soil is largely accountable for this difficulty, and it is certain that top dressing with short manure worked into the surface soil is one of the best measures known for securing a catch of clover, but it is obvious that the supply of manure on the average farm is insufficient for this and the many other purposes for which it is required.

Tailor-Made vs. Factory-Made!

Take up the printed announcements of makers and importers of ready-made clothing, and when they strive to give emphasis to the alleged merits of their clothing they invariably tell how nearly they approach to tailor-made.

Here are some quotations—

'Elegantly tailored' 'Cut and finished equal to ordered work,' 'equal in quality, fit, and finish to suits made to order, or similar statements.

Then tailor-made clothes are different to imported factory-made, otherwise there would be no need to make comparison. If tailor-made were not the better clothes they would not be held up as the ideal to which the ready-made strive to reach

The fact is there is a great deal of difference between a factory-made imported suit and a tailor-made in style and durability.

The man that is indifferent as to the appearance of his clothes when he buys them and when worn a month, may be satisfied with a factory-made, but if he has regard to looks and economy, he will buy tailor-made garments.

For those who are not disposed to give the prices usually paid for clothes made to special order, and are not satisfied with the imported ready-made clothing, we have made, and are daily adding, Suits and Overcoats of superior workmanship that we are selling as low in price as imported makes of inferior quality.
