HOW TO WIN HER LOVE.

The Interesting Discovery of Mr. Cornelius Hennepin.

"Aha!" exclaimed Cornelius Hennepin. "Here is something that I have long been looking for—'How to Make Your Wife Love You!'"

That was the headline over the article that he had started to peruse. He pulled his glasses out of the case, fastened them upon his nose and cried: "Virginia! Virginia! Come here. I want to read something to you."

When his wife arrived, he said: "Here is a little article that may interest you. I haven't read it through, but from the way it starts out I judge that the writer knows what he or she is talking about. 'How to Make Your Wife Love You.' That's the heading. Now, let's see what it says: 'Never come home with a sour look and yell. 'Is dinner ready?' as if you were addressing a slave.' I never do that, do I, Virginia? 'Always treat your wife with as much consideration when you are alone as when company is present.' I think I follow that rule, don't I, Virginia? 'Never try to start a cheap laugh by saying that your wife proposed to you or roped you in.' I have never done that, have I, Virginia?" Mr. Hennepin asked. "And yet," he bitterly continued, "you do not love me as you ought to. I am only 22 years older than you, and there is no reason why you should not regard me with the utmost affection. These very words ought to convince you that I am an ideal husband. But let me continue: 'Do not chew tobacco all day and expect your wife to meet you at the door with her mouth all made up for a loving kiss, and, above all, do not grumble if she should ask you for the price of one of those lovely hats in Plumleigh's window.'"

"Confound these advertising dodges!" exclaimed Cornelius Hennepin. "If the papers don't stop lending themselves to such schemes, I'm going to stop my subscription!"

Late the next afternoon a boy with a bandbox rushed up the Hennepin steps.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Trying to Please Employers.

Mistress—I am surprised. You say you were married six months ago, divorced three months ago and remarried your husband last night.

Domestic—Yes'm. You see, at the first place he had they wanted a married man, so we got married; but the next place they wanted a single man, so we got divorced, and I came here. Now he's found a place where they want a man for gardening and wife to cook, so we got married again, and I'm going there with him.—New York Weekly.

HIS TIME HAD COME.

So Thought a Quebec Man Until
... Efficacy Fills Cured
Him of Bright's Disease

QUEBEC, Jan. 9.—Narcisse Mangy, of 169 St. Ann Street, this city, considers himself an extremely fortunate man. He has come through the ordeal of Bright's Disease alive.

Bright's Disease is an extremely fatal disease of the kidneys. The sufferer lingers on, growing weaker and weaker, slowly and miserably dying. Once it fastens itself upon a victim, there is only one hope to save him—Dodd's Kidney Pills. But they never fail.

Narcisse Mangy says: "I have suffered Bright's Disease for over five years. Doctors told me I would never get well. I thought my time had come. A friend told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have just finished the fourth box and am cured."

If you have catarrh, don't dally with local remedies but purify and enrich your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

When a man dies, for years the light he leaves behind him lies on the paths of men.—Longfellow.

A Poet's Melancholy.

Once upon a time a poet, through unfortunate speculations upon the bourse, became exceedingly prosperous and, his head being turned, ate three meals per day right along thereafter.

In consequence he grew in girth until he could not see his lower extremities. "Alas!" he observed one day to his entourage, "what were sadder than a poet who cannot scan his own feet?"

It would seem indeed that he had already ceased to be a poet and was fast sinking into the mere humorist.—Detroit Journal.

At the Minstrels.

Tambo—Why is Oom Paul like an out of date gun?

Bones—Because the British can't fire him.

Tambo—No.

Bones—Because they didn't know he was loaded.

Tambo—Not right yet.

Bones—Give it up, then. What's the answer?

Tambo—Because he is a smooth Boer. Terrific crash on the bass drum.—Baltimore American.

Poetry and Groceries.

He lives in north Georgia, and he writes poetry, and in a letter inclosing a poem he says: "I want to sell you this poem. I'm going to keep on writing poems until I get money enough to start a grocery store."

Well, a first class grocery is all a poetical establishment needs to keep it running.—Atlanta Constitution.

Third Day Out.

"You ought to be over it by this time," said the seasoned traveler, trying to persuade his friend to come to the table, "and your stomach should be as tough as oak."

"But it isn't," responded the land-lubber, with a feeble effort to smile. "It's sick o' more."—Chicago Tribune.

A Welcome Change.

Mrs. Henpeck—I don't see how you could marry again if I should die, for before we were married you used to say there was not another woman in the world like me.

Henpeck—That is just what might induce me to take another wife.—Life.
