REPORT ON THE LORNE HIGHLAND WHISKY:
"We have visited the bottling stores of Greenlees Brothers, and have selected from the vats, samples of their Lorne Highland Whisky, and have subjected them to careful examination and analysis.
The samples were very fragrant, mellow, and of pleasant flavor, and possessed all the characteristics of pure and well-matured Scotch Whisky of the first quality."

The Iceboat.
AIR—Bonnie Dundee.
I.
Come man my tight clipper, unreef every sail,
And fly her bright streamers, that float in the gale,
For the morning is brilliant, the breeze whistling free, I'm bound on a cruise, on the bright frozen sea.

Chorus.
Success to our cruiser, she flies like the wind,
And leaves every trouble and sorrow behind,
With hearts of the bold, and with wings of the free, We sweep o'er the deep, o'er the crystalline sea.
II.
All hands, there, a-board, your canvas close haul, I stand by the helm, all prepared for a squall,
The morning let go!—now come peace or come war,
Good speed to the cruise, of the fleet
"Trafalgar."

III.
Our skiff is a clipper, that sails on a
wind,
And leaves the light drift, and the storm cloud behind, Nor heeds the deep fathoms below her—not she,
She sweeps o'er the deep, o'er the crystalline sea.
IV.
Like a cloud in the tempest, a scud past the sun,
Like the wings of the sea mew, stretched waveless we run,
And swift be that cruiser, aye fleet may he be,
That rivals our speed, on the crystalline sea.

V.
Britannia may boast of her rule o'er the waves,
And navy triumphant, the tempest that braves, But we in the West, of Dominion the free!
Have bound the wild waves, in the crystalline sea.

VI.
They boast of Baloons, that uptraverse the sky,
And Royal Regattas, round harbors that ply;
But of all nimble racers, that fleetest give me,
The light fairy skiff, on the crystalline
sea.
Ch'town, Jan. 29 1883. McALBYN.

CORRESPONDENCE.
We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions or statements of our correspondents.

To the Editor of the Examiner.
DEAR SIR,—In the Patriot of January 4th, which came to hand, I noticed a correspondence signed "Piscatus," in which statements are made concerning me in my official capacity as Fishery Warden. The statement per se are foundationless, and in addition carry on their face party-bigotry, narrow-mindedness, incompetency and ignorance—the trade mark of their author.
Needless for "Piscatus" to make any signature—the one signature that characterizes his writings is indelibly on their face, that of intolerable egotism and ignorant bravado.
Doubtless, however, the object of "Piscatus" in making an anonymous signature was to lead the unsuspecting public to believe that the statements have been written by a truthful statements. To those who have never seen the writings of this renowned pedagogue who bellows forth his fancied ability in elaborate panegyrics, over the signature of other men, the statements may appear rational and demand notice, which are my reasons for noticing his attack, and not that "I witness that stern joy which warriors feel in foeman worthy of their steel." To the ungentlemanly remarks upon Mr.
A. C. McDonald and Dr. E. B. Murratt, I pay no more attention than to the growl of a sick spaniel or the roaring of a bull, either of which is suggestive of something, —his of nothing but disappointment and baffled rage. "Piscatus" says "he enquired of the foreman of a certain lobster factory could he give him any knowledge concerning lobster spawning." (The italics are mine.) What perspicuity! What grace! How much unlike the gentlemen who of late so materially raised the moral and intellectual standard of Dundas? And yet this hero of lost causes with the placidity and unparalleled audacity says I am "an ignorant and in the camp of the admirers of of the N. P. is a member." I am of opinion had the Local Government granted the petition of a certain individual, who in said petition declared himself to be a truthful man for which reason two-thirds of the solicited signatures were refused—the camp of the admirers of the N. P. would have retained another ignoramus; but now being frustrated in every attempt to obtain a public position, he humbly petitioned for the Inspectorship of schools, he vents his fury on me, in the form of a vehement philippic, which could have originated in the mind of none other than the dastardly "Piscatus." And now this consistent author concludes by requesting me to gain information concerning lobster spawning, and publish it through the columns of the "esteemed Patriot"—that sheet which, when the Local Government was stronger than at the present day, and when he "humbled himself" by canvassing signatures, that "he might be exalted" to the Inspectorship, he denounced in the most ignominious terms, but now sees fit to laud to ethereal heights.

"Oh Inconsistency! thou art a Jewel!" In conclusion, I would suggest to "Piscatus," for his benefit, that he exercise his lofty mind on something else, and leave lobsters "alone in their glory," else sad experience may teach him that "discretion is the better part of valor," and "those who know nothing fear nothing," and "fools rush on where angels fear to tread." Noble "Piscatus!" Your political character is too checkered to enter into a political discussion. Sooth your ruffled feelings, and remember "a still tongue makes a wise head."
Yours truly,
STB.—OFFICIAL.
"From or near Dundas."

To the Editor of the Examiner.
MY DEAR SIR,—The following thoughts are not solely or merely mine. The great Philosopher Locke asserted that there were no innate ideas in Man; but, for several reasons of my own, I am not prepared to place implicit confidence in him, nor in any other Whig Politician; "quicquid dicit aut erit, aut non," as Horace says in the person of Tiresias. I cannot feel certain whether some of my views and opinions are innate or acquired: I say with Saint Paul, "I cannot tell: II Corinthians, chapter 12, verse 3. But they are mine, either by birth or by adoption, or by both. I remain, my dear sir, yours very sincerely, VICH DROMUL NAN ORB.

Text from II Timothy, chapter 3, verses 1 to 5.—"In the last days, perilous times shall come; for men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blas-phemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fiere, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away!" To the above five verses, I do not add the sixth verse, which (as I need scarcely say) is equally true; but it does not apply so specifically to what I have here to say, as do the preceding five verses. Social relations are those which invite mankind into communication, for natural profit, pleasure and usefulness, as between parents and children, husbands and wives, masters and servants, rich and poor; conflict and antagonism are so rife in our days, that the family institution is threatened with destruction. Good men stand aghast, when they contemplate the probabilities of the near future, and enquire, wondering, what such a great upheaval and disintegro-tion can signify, and why such a self-evident process of destruction should be allowed to flourish, or even to exist. Two distinct types of so-called civilization, are in active conflict at present; that type which tends to disintegration and social decay, is the prevailing one. What and from whence are these two types, which are struggling for the mastery? The one is of Divine origin and institution, from above, and is based or formed upon the supremacy of the Divine Being. The other is of the earth, earthly, from below, professing to advance, not the happiness of all, but of the greater number only. Neither of these two types of civilization, at present conflicting so bitterly and adversely to each other, is new in principle; both of them took their start in Paradise, the one from above, the other from below; the products respectively of good and of evil; the knowledge of the latter, (evil), being attained by our first parents, on their disobedience. The supremacy of the Almighty was then and there contested; the power of evil was established, as a competing item, by the surrender of Eve to that inducement to sin, which came in her way. The two types are the very antithesis to each other; they diverge at every stage of growth, and terminate in hopeless separation: the one is subordination law, and order; the other is disobedience, lawlessness, and disorder: the one represents and embodies the decrees and the Will of the Almighty; the other adopts the suggestions, and expresses the Will, of the great spirit of evil, Satan, the Serpent. The one is the Communion of Saints; the other is the Communion of Satan, communism and rebellion, "Tria juncta in uno." The one is King, or Monarchy, the other is Democracy.

Knowing, as I do, that all editors prefer short scribbles, I do here, as Burns says, "quat my pen," but I have at least as much more to say as I have said on the subject of my Text, and I must beg you to insert the continuation, so soon as I hand it to you, before your readers have time to forget the beginning, or, as is the present fashion to say, "the commencement."
Yours, very sincerely,
V. D. N. O.

*NOTE.—"And now, lest I may seem uncivil, To plague you with this dranting drivel, Renouncing all intentions evil,
I quit my pen!
The Lord defend us from the Devil!
Amen! Amen!"
—Vide Robert Burns.

The Great French Remedy, Dr.
LeDuc's Periodical Pills.

For the cure of Leucorrhoea or White's Excessive or Painful Menstruation, Green Sickness, Falling of the Womb, Catarrh of the Uterus or Vagina, Hysteria, Pain in the Back, or Piles, or for the purpose of invigorating and giving tone to the Generative Organs, two pills should be taken twice daily, or in very enfeebled conditions, one pill three times a day. To effect cures in chronic cases it will be necessary to continue the use of the remedy for some months. A reasonable trial will create sufficient confidence in the remedy to insure its being taken until a permanent cure is effected.
