THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JULY 19, 1892.

Mutilating the City Trees.

It seems that one of the ornamental trees near St. Paul's Church has had a large number of its branches cut off, and what heretofore was a handsome and ornamental tree has become a "relic of former days." The mutilation appears to have been done by some person for some reason best known to himself. It could not have been in the interest of this city, as the tree as it now stands is very little ornament to it, whereas before it was difficult to find a more beautiful one. Some years ago a prominent merchant on Queen Street was prosecuted and heavily fined because he cut down a tree that obstructed his view up the street, and a short time ago a contractor for moving houses was also fined because he damaged some of the branches of the trees near St. James's Church. The trees on Prince Street should have the same protection as the others, and it is to be hoped that the police authorities are able to justify their neglect in putting the law in motion against the parties responsible for the destruction of the Prince Street tree.

British Elections.

The result of the British elections is that Gladstone has a majority of about thirty six. This result is not absolutely decisive. It is, therefore, not probable that Lord Salisbury will resign before the parties have divided upon the floor of Parliament. In the meantime, a large number of election petitions will, of course, be presented, and the majority may yet be placed in jeopardy. To speculate as to Gladstone's action when he obtains the Government is, consequently, idle. He is after all, like other mortals and politicians, the creature of circumstances. All that can be certainly predicted is that, given the opportunity, he will as soon as possible submit to Parliament a measure of Home Rule for Ireland. He has declared that this is the great matter to be settled by him, if his life be spared a sufficient length of time. As he is now in his eighty-fourth year he must needs hasten if he would accomplish his purpose; and in view of the complications in which he is involved it seems doubtful whether—hasten as he may—he can possibly reach the end he has in view. The developments of the next few months will be watched with the deepest interest.

More Favoritism.

When the Commissioner of Public Lands was taunted in the Legislature with favoritism in dealing with the public he readily admitted that he did not pretend to treat everybody alike, and added that in this respect he was like the Almighty. Passing by the irreverence of this language, we are compelled to say that the crooked dealings of the Land Office with the people of this Province has evidently been incited by the example and teaching of a very different personage. Mr. McMillan may plead, like the mother of our race, that the inclination to transgress did not originate in his own breast—that someone who claimed to be wiser than his fellows persuaded him to act as he has done. He may, indeed, be much more "sinned against than sinning" in the matter of the unequal reductions. But having accepted the office of Commissioner of Crown Lands, with all its responsibilities, he will have to suffer the consequences of the acts he has been weak enough to sanction at the dictation of his leader.

As we have already said, nothing but the publication of the full list of discounts would give a complete idea of the favoritism that has been practised. In addition to instances already given on Lot 65, we may mention that the accounts standing in the names of Angus McCannell, Dugald McEachern, Neil McEachern and some others were paid off in full, without any discount whatever. William Ross paid off three accounts receiving only the legal discount of 12 per cent. Duncan McDonald got a reduction of 35 per cent.; Archibald B McDonald 30 per cent., and Wm. Foley 34 per cent. In another part of the country we find that John Martin, of Stanhope, Peter Proud, Jas. G. Hughes, Peter McGrath and Richard Mahar, of Covehead, are only allowed the actual 12 per cent., while their neighbor, Isaac Sellers, gets the handsome reduction of 41 per cent. Moving eastward, we see that such men as Patrick Morris, John Pleadwell, John Owens, Augustine McDonald and William Murphy, of Portage, are cut off with the 12 per cent., while Robert Carmichael gets 18 per cent., and Angus McDonald 45 per cent. In the same section, John Moynagh Neil McAskell and Alexander McNabb are made to pay the last cent, getting no reduction at all. Then, look at Ve non River. Thomas Hynes pays his account in full and gets no discount. James M. Hynes pays a large amount and is allowed only 4 per cent. William Jenkins gets 29 per cent., James Weatherbie 36 per cent., Norman McPherson, 30 per cent., John F. Dogherty, 25 per cent., while Anthony O'Donnell and Patrick O'Donnell get no discount. In the western part of Queen's County, as indeed everywhere else, the same favoritism is observed. William Oakes, Duncan McKinlay, John McLeod, Donald McLeod and Malcolm Gillis get the 12 per cent. only. John McKay and Henry Wigmore get no discount, while 20 per cent. is allowed on the farms standing in the names of Alexander Buchannan and Neil M. Matheson. In Prince County the same shameful favoritism is shown. We have only time now to give the cases of two well known men. Joseph O. Arsenault pays off an account, getting the exact 12 per cent., while A. E. Gallant in settling for a farm is allowed 26 per cent.

How long will the people tolerate such shameful mismanagement of our public business? The unequal treatment meted out in the Land Office affects all those who had already paid in full for their land as well as those who have been dealing with the Land Office within the last year. The demoralization caused by the malpractices of the last year will make honest administration difficult in future; but honest management we must have at whatever cost.

Notes and Comments.

—The three occupants of a baloon named "Jupiter" which ascended on Monday last have apparently gone to Jupiter. The bodies have not been found.

—The New York Press remarks that "the ready aid which went from Canada to the sufferers by the St. John's fire has done away with the unfriendly relations between the provinces and will probably result in bringing Newfoundland into the Confederation." The Press is, perhaps, too hasty. But the Newfoundland people cannot fail to see where their true friends are, and also that the people of Canada are not yet, as they have been taught to believe, in a state of ruin and decay as a result of "Confederation."

—A local paragraph in this morning's Guardian contains a charge that THE EXAMINER published in its telegraphic column a stale announcement regarding the death of Premier Robson, of British Columbia. Our Contemporary claims to have published the same notice a fortnight ago. We have only to say that the news came in our regular telegraphic despatches, and that the same paragraph appears in yesterday's issue of the St. John and Halifax papers as a "special despatch" from London. We desire, particularly, to explain that the telegrams published under the head of "Special despatches to THE EXAMINER," are those which really come to us on the day of issue. Our special telegrams, short or long, are separated from other matter by a heavy dash. For instance, if we received a short telegram about the English elections, we would not, in order to make it look long, clip a forecast of Gladstone's Cabinet from an exchange and add it to our despatch. Our morning contemporary is not so particular. The provincial papers, which arrived by last night's mail, contain the names of those who are expected to take office under Gladstone, and this list appears holus-bolus this morning, under the head of "Special despatches to the Guardian"!

Hon. A. B. Morine writes to the Halifax Herald:—

"A thrill of genuine gratitude has been felt by all at the splendid promptness and generosity of Halifax. 'He who gives quickly gives twice,' the old motto says, and the fact that while the smoke still hung thick above us, the princely people of Halifax were concocting plans for our relief has thrilled us all, and made us deeply thankful. As a Nova Scotian, I am proud that the city by the sea has done so nobly for its suffering sister's unfortunate inhabitants."

The Bishop of Newfoundland appeals to all Churchmen and says:—

"Those who were in opulance before the calamity are looking around for a means of living. We therefore cast ourselves upon the sympathy and benevolence of our fellow churchmen in England and America to relieve our distress, and we pray that He who has taught us that 'it is more blessed to give than to receive' may move the hearts of our brethren abroad to generous help in our behalf. Our chief aim is to rebuild our cathedral, and restore it, if possible, to its pristine splendor. The losses of our other buildings and private property sink into insignificance in comparison with this—our pride and our joy. The cathedral of St. John the Baptist was a noble structure. It was designed by Sir Gilbert Scott, who, it may be remembered, was also the architect of Edinburgh Cathedral, and was regarded by him as his most satisfactory effort. Nearly half a century has elapsed since its foundations were laid by the late Bishop Field, and the labor, means and devotion of three generations of churchmen have been spent upon it—during the proverbial three episcopates. It was so recently as 1885 that the choir and transepts were consecrated by our present bishop, Doctor Jones. This was a house of God "exceeding magnificence," and regarded as the finest specimen of Gothic architecture in this western world. The cost of the cathedral was not less than half a million dollars, (one hundred thousand pounds sterling). The cost of the last portion greatly exceeded the estimates, and in order that the work of completion might not be arrested, and that the cathedral might be dedicated to Almighty God as the offering of free hearts, some generous churchmen guaranteed the payment of $100,000 (£25,000.) Provision was recently made by an insurance scheme for the redemption of these bonds. To carry on this scheme local resources have been very heavily taxed, and in its present distress our small community is quite unable to assume any further obligations. On the other hand unless immediate action be taken even the walls now remaining will become useless. Under these circumstances it is that we venture to appeal to the aid of our fellow churchmen in other dioceses. Ours is more than a merely local claim, for in the history of the Church of England in the western Hemisphere St. John's, Newfoundland, stands out as a prominent landmark. Near the site of the cathedral of St. John the Baptist in this city was celebrated in this new world the first Anglican service according to the order of the book of common prayer, and the Anglican communion is now appealed to to restore this fair house of God to commemorate this event."

The last census of Newfoundland gives the population as 197,934. It also reveals two interesting facts, viz., that there is no immigration to the colony, and that the males are over 3,200 in excess of the females. Of the total population above stated, 193,553 are native born, leaving only 4,660 as coming from outside countries. Of this number 1,565 were born in England, 1,112 in Ireland, 382 in Scotland, and 1,163 in other British colonies. Of "foreigners" there are 363, the greater part of whom are Americans. Despite the fact that there are so few people from the United Kingdom, there is a good deal of race prejudice and feeling, which is transmitted; but a generation or two will remove much of it. The greater male population is accounted for by the fact that the young women of the colony find ready employment as domestics in the United States, and they go thither in large numbers. There is, of course, a considerable emigration of young men, but it is not so large as of women. The population engaged in the fisheries is given at 53,502 in the census of 1891, which is a decrease of six thousand as against the number so employed at the census taken in 1884. There are only 1,545 exclusively "farmers," but, of course, a large number of the persons engaged in fishing also cultivate their own land.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Queen Square School.

SIR,—If the letter of your correspondent "A Well Wisher," in yesterday's issue of THE EXAMINER, concerned myself alone I would not think it worthy of a reply. He has, however, chosen to attack Queen Square School, which he probably means by St. Patrick's School, and as there may possibly be other persons besides "A Well Wisher" who are so silly as to think that the work of the city schools is to supply students to the Prince of Wales College, a few words may not be out of place. The entrance examination to the Prince of Wales College is not the examination designed to test Queen Square or any other school. There is a special examination for the city schools, for all the pupils of these schools, and by the results of that examination they should be judged. It would be most absurd and unfair to make an examination which is not obligatory, and which is taken by a few out of schools of many pupils, a test of the work of those schools. A school may be as efficient and be much more useful in a community, though a pupil from it should not enter a college as there are many who do not desire to do so. They do not attempt to pass the entrance examination or to gain "matriculation honors" as your pompous correspondent has it.

I do not know what he means by "autocratic in the examinations which of late he has been presiding over." If taking measures to prevent fraud is what he qualifies as autocratic, it is evident that "A Well Wisher" needs very much the "stimulus" of honesty.

JOHN MACSWAIN.

The Prince Street Tree.

SIR,—The cutting and mutilating of the tree on Prince Street, referred to in your issue of Saturday, demands explanation. The tree referred to is a companion to one on the opposite side of the street, and was planted very many years ago by the late Mr. Moore, and before being destroyed was one of the prettiest in the city of Charlottetown. Why it should have been cut up requires explanation. The only parties who have authority to interfere with trees growing on the streets are the civic officials and if this tree was cut and lopped by their authority, they surely can explain and justify their conduct. If the cutting and lopping was done by a meddlesome person, he has a right to be punished as the law directs, and thus teach this class of persons to attend to their own business. The police authorities being the guardians of the city, have a right to ferret out who did the damage and prosecute him. It is to be hoped that they will do so.

The Water Street Nuisance.

SIR,—Do the city authorities intend leaving that old building at the head of the Steam Navigation Company's wharf? As a resident of Water Street, and one who is inconvenienced to a great extent, I protest against the obstruction and nuisance remaining there any longer. Is His Honor the Stipendiary Magistrate off fishing or away on his summer vacation, or what is the reason no action is taken?
