Opening lead — ace of diamonds.

Dear Mr. Becker: The strangest things have been happening to me lately. I don't claim to be a good player, and I'm sure I'm not, but the fact is I usually manage to come out ahead in the games I play in.

However, I have been in a bad losing streak recently, and it is starting to get under my skin. I not only lose when I have bad hands, but also when I have good hands. For example, look at what happened to me in this deal.

I was South and opened with three notrump. Of course, I know it was not a perfect bid, even with 26 points, since I had no diamond stopper, but it seemed to me it was the best bid to make under the circumstances.

Unfortunately, it turned out that West had a string of diamonds and cashed the first ten tricks as I unhappily kept on discarding one good trick after another. Not only that, but when West led the last diamond, I had to choose a discard from a holding of K-Q of spades, ace of hearts and ace of clubs. (East's remaining cards at this point were the A - 10 - 9 of spades.)

I couldn't afford the spade discard, which would allow East to win the last three tricks, so I discarded the ace of clubs. In high glee, West now cashed the eight of clubs — and I was squeezed again.

This time I discarded the ace of hearts, for want of anything better to do, whereupon West cashed the eight of hearts and led a spade to his partner's ace.

The result was that I lost all thirteen tricks — going down nine, 900 points — despite my 26 high - card points!

Of course, I realize you may think this hand never occurred at all, and I would not blame you one bit for thinking that. In fact, if you look at the date, you may have even more reason for disbelieving my story. Cordially yours, Constant Reader.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
