R.C. Water Safety Day Camps Over Yesterday

A total of 660 youngsters were enrolled in the Souris Day Camp which ended yesterday. The Legion Home was crowded beyond capacity at both of the closing ceremonies conducted at 11 o'clock in the morning and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The Souris Lions Club sponsored the project which is financed by the Souris Regional Water Safety Committee, the provincial department of physical education and the provincial Red Cross. Swimming and life saving badges were presented to the successful candidates. Congratulations and commendations were voiced by Melvin McQuaid, MP, and Bruce Stewart, M.L.A. Lions Club spokesmen were King Lion Ross Young, Albert Calbeck and Roy Coffin. James Bennett, acted as master of ceremonies during the afternoon. Judge St. Clapton, vice-president of the P.E.I. Red Cross, was one of the speakers. Mrs. W.W. Reid, director of Junior Red Cross, conducted four different sessions during the day, using films on bicycle safety.

Georgetown Firm To Use New Method

Officials of Bathurst Marine Limited at Georgetown have announced it has been decided to apply the Critical Path Method to the building of trawler hulls 16 to 24.

Some re-organization of the company's present methods of reporting and accounting will be necessary and the new position of "planner" created in the staff. Jan de Graaf has been promoted to fill this position. Jan de Graaf and Glendon Cameron attended the Research and Productivity Council at the University of New Brunswick for initial instruction on Critical Path Methods for a two-day course on August 10 and 11 and on August 15 and 16 Mr. Rutter and Mr. Ward of the Research Productivity Council will visit Bathurst Marine Limited to give other staff members advice on the system. A further visit from R.P.C. representative J. Kelly will be made on September 12. Bathurst Marine Limited will probably be the first shipyard in Canada to apply the Critical Path Method to the construction of vessels for the fishing industry.

The Critical Path Method or System was developed in the United States and Great Britain and has proved a very successful method of scheduling the many activities which combined are necessary to construct a complete unit, such as a ship. Briefly the system is to depict on a line diagram each and every necessary activity in their logical sequences and to determine the units of time for these activities. It is then possible to trace visually the Critical Path on those sequences through the line diagram in which any delay in one or more will make the same delay in completion of the whole work. This visual presentation makes it possible to insure that adequate labor is allocated to those activities on the Critical Path by re-scheduling sequences not on the Critical Path and thereby make more effective use of the available labor force. Some remarkable savings in time and cost have been achieved in many fields besides shipbuilding by this system.

SPECIALY COMMISSIONED Original Overture At Centre Concert

A dramatic new overture by Canadian composer Norma Becroft will open a program of orchestral concertos tomorrow night at 9 o'clock in the Confederation Theatre as The Atlantic Orchestra gives the fourth in its series of Sunday night concerts. Miss Becroft, who is program organizer of CBC Toronto's National Music Department, describes her "Piece Concertante No. 1", specially commissioned for the Charlottetown Summer Festival, follows:

"In this brief work, the orchestra is generally divided into choirs, or blocks of sound... Many of the solo instruments, however, are used in fragmentary passages of considerable technical difficulty—hence the title 'concertante'. The overall temperament of the work can best be described as dramatic."

The rest of the evening's program is in a more traditional form than Piece Concertante No. 1. The orchestra will play Handel's "Concerto Grosso", K.P. E. Bach's "Concerto for Orchestra in D", and Stravinsky's suite from the ballet "Pulcinella."

The Stravinsky work has what conductor John Fenwick describes as a "slightly antique sound."

"He chose to hark back to the eighteenth century for his musical construction," says Fenwick, "and therefore treats the orchestra as several concertante groups—principally strings, but often woodwinds—the basic melody is not Stravinsky's, but belongs to Pergolesi... it's intriguing in its use of plain old melodies... it's not a dissonant work."

Fenwick said Sunday's program is designed to dispense the idea that a concerto is a musical ance of the season in Georgetown tonight with the last performance of The Marriage Go Round at Kings Theatre. He leaves to keep previously made commitments in Montreal next week.

However, prior to his leaving Mr. Massey has been directing other members of the cast in two one-act plays to be presented each night for the next two weeks. They represent a distinct change of pace from the productions which have been seen in Kings Theatre this summer as they are definitely on the avant garde side.

First of the productions, "The Typists", illustrates the physical, moral and mental degeneration of two people employed in the same office over a long period of time. Although the entire production time is less than an hour the aging process and degeneration of character takes place during that period and is one of the fascinations of the play. Mr. Massey said it was a great challenge to any director as it calls for every acting skill possessed by the performers Tudi Wiggins and Marc Strange.

The other one-act play to be seen, "The Tiger", with Ann Butler and Mr. Strange, is a reversal of the first theme in that it portrays the regeneration of a character as a result of a woman's love for a criminal who kidnaps her.

Child's Body Recovered

The body of eight-year-old Alan Donovan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Donovan, East Royalty, was recovered early yesterday morning at Wright's Pond in East Royalty following a drowning accident Thursday evening. The child was last seen about 7:00 p.m. Thursday evening when he was playing with some other children. He apparently was playing in the vicinity of the spillway at the bridge, when he fell into the water. His shoes and socks were found at the bridge.

When the child was discovered

"It is generally acknowledged that live concerts are by far the best means of listening to and appreciating music. However, any artistic endeavor must have support and that support must be enthusiastic. It is not enough to sit back and let someone else do it. The community must be prepared to support artistic enterprise. Since the Atlantic Orchestra is the first resident orchestra on Prince Edward Island, this support must be given by the Island itself."

Mrs. Loynd also commented that "the program chosen by conductor John Fenwick have been varied and interesting."

reference in the purchasing of supplies by the captains of draggers leased from Gulf Garden Foods Limited.

"As a result of complaints from dragger captains that their purchases of supplies in the past had been restricted to an employee of Gulf Garden Foods Limited, we called on the manager of the plant, Cyril Davies, for the purpose of removing these restrictions and allowing the captains to make purchases where they pleased.

"It was felt, they agreed, that a company financed by public money should be in a position to make its purchases on an equitable basis and not operate on a 'restricted list' purchasing policy. As a result of this meeting, it is hoped that the captains will now be free to buy their supplies where they wish."
