THE GREEKS AGAIN DEFEATED.

The last hope of the friends of Greece that she would be placed in a more advantageous position to negotiate a peace, as a result of some successful fighting at the last, seems to have been dissipated. Our despatches of to-day announce that her troops have, after a stubborn contest, been driven out of Domokos. The Greek soldiery have fought bravely when called upon to do so. But they seem never to have been called upon at the right time or under favorable circumstances. It is impossible to acquit the Greek authorities of mismanagement and bad generalship. If the reports are correct the Greek soldiers went to battle half starved, not because there was not food enough, but for lack of proper commissariat arrangements. Divided councils evidently prevailed. Inexperienced and incapable men were given the command, and the Greeks who went to battle joyous and gallant, in the confident hope of victory over the infidels, have been decisively beaten. Their fate is another proof of the wisdom of the poet's caution, "Beware the entrance to a quarrel." While it is true that they have strong and sympathetic friends at their back, the fact that they have been so completely overcome by the Turkish army must operate to their disadvantage when the heavy demands of Turkey are being considered.

UNION WITH NEWFOUNDLAND.

Having rendered his Province a notable service by correcting the errors of members of Parliament in respect to the P. E. Island railway and setting forth clearly and ably, our strong claims to railway extension, Mr. Martin has turned his attention to the highly important National question of Union with Newfoundland. Men of all parties must agree with him that the early consummation of the proposed union is much to be desired. From the Imperial point of view it is important that the key to the doorway of British North America should be in our great confederation. For the people of Newfoundland themselves no change that we can imagine would be more advantageous than admission to Canada upon fair terms. Possessed of freedom of trade with Canada, the price of every necessary of life would come to them at a reduced price and a stability would be given to their trade and their commercial institutions which these can never have while dependent merely upon the uncertain results of the cod and seal fisheries. So far as Canada is concerned it is highly desirable that her territory should be rounded off by union with "ye ancient colony." The interests of the Empire at large, of Newfoundland in particular, and Canada as well, all lie in the direction pointed out by Mr. Martin, and we hope that the Liberal Government of Canada will follow Mr. Martin's advice.

The news that Mr. H. C. McLeod is to be general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, will be received with the greatest possible pleasure by Mr. McLeod's numerous friends in this Province, of which he is one of the talented sons.

Montreal Gazette: The objection to the plebiscite is not that the country is not ripe for prohibition, or that some revenue will be lost by prohibition, but that the thing, when it is taken, will be absolutely worthless. No one who reads the report of Mr. Laurier's remarks to the liquor trade representatives can believe that he is a prohibitionist in principle. It is evident that, like nine-tenths of the members of the House of Commons, he looks upon prohibition as impracticable. Do the prohibitionists expect to get prohibition from a parliament that is opposed to prohibition? Would they look for free trade from a protectionist parliament, or for protection from a free trade parliament? In their illogical zeal for this plebiscite, it would appear that they would.

HON. G. CRGEW. HOWLAN.

Lieutenant-Governor of Prince Edward Island, born May 19th 1835.

Appointed Member of Island Executive 1866; Commissioner to Washington 1869; Ottawa 1873; London 1890. called to the Senate 1873; appointed Lieutenant Governor 1894.

Ten thousand seashells out the wave
Lie broken on the strand
For every one that yields its pearl
To grace a monarch's hand

And myriads of the forest throng
Are born to bloom and fade
While one fair sapling towers aloft,
The weary traveller's shade.

So, in the higher range of life,
Some merely live to die;
They venture not, or lag behind
While others pass them by.

Thine was the ear to hear the call,
Thine was the nerve to do,
Thine was the brave and hopeful heart
Which held the end in view.

Now thine the power to nobly wield
The sceptre fairly won;
True patriot! Helper of thy kind!
Grand work, and grandly done!

There are whom earth's great honorings
But dwarf or far outshine;
Not so with him whose brother love
Doth honor Love Divine.

May lessons of thy bright career
Out-glow on every heart;
Thou! all who share the gifts of Heaven
May aim to act thy part.

And may thy hearty clasp of hand,
Firm step and genial smile
Leave impress yet for many a day
On fair Prince Edward Isle.

Wiltst eye, upon its history's page,
Bright as the Diamond when,
Shall Governor Howlan's name gleam forth
Nigh that of Britain's Queen.

ESTEEMED EXCHANGES.

Ottawa Citizen: In 1894 Great Britain spent $2,667,000 in buying horses abroad, and of this amount $881,251 came to Canada. We would have a much longer share of the trade if farmers would improve the quality of their wares.

Montreal Gazette: Speaking about prohibition, it is noted that when the prohibition candidate was defeated in Winnipeg on the 27th ultimo, the chief prohibition journal rejoiced that another Liberal had been elected to Parliament to support Mr. Laurier. This sort of thing makes the anti-smile.

Hamilton Spectator: "The trouble is not so much the increase in the tax on tobacco and products. Increases of that sort are adjustable, and the extra duty comes out of the pocket of the consumer. The trouble lies in the fact that the bungling tariff tinkers, in fixing the excise charges, have so increased the same that it will be cheaper, as the tariff now stands, to import the manufactured article and pay the customs duty than to bring the raw leaf and pay the excise duty. It is very unfortunate for Canada, and exceedingly unfortunate for the Tuckett employes and the citizens of Hamilton generally, that the fiscal management of the country has been put into the hands of a lot of amateurs."

Dairy and Creamery.

No butter scored perfect at the National Creamery Butter Makers' annual meeting at Owatonna, Minn. The highest score for separator butter was made by H. M. Miller of Randolph, Ia., who got the gold medal. His butter scored 98.5. It is to be noted that the prize butter from gathered cream did not score so high as the separator butter. The gathered cream butter scored only 96.16 points, and even then there were those who declared that the man who got the medal for it, Mr. Herman Bock of Minnesota, had a separator concealed somewhere about his creamery.

Now, in the beginning of spring, watch every appearance of leek, ragweed, wild garlic, wild parsnips, camomile or any other malodorous weed and root it out of your pastures. It will save your reputation as a milk producer.

The man whose herd of dairy cows averages, each for a year, 305 pounds 10 ounces of factory made butter, likewise yielding milk and butter enough for all his family, feeding nine calves and leaving some milk to sell besides, has no reason to complain. That is what one up to date dairyman's cows are doing.

If a cow is dried off too quickly when near calving time, part of her udder often inflames, thickens and afterward will not produce its due quantity of milk. This is what is known as defective quarter. Frequent bathing with hot water attended by gentle rubbing and kneading of the defective part, will sometimes restore it to usefulness.

The milk rate war on routes leading into New York city has become subject for action by the interstate commerce commission. Certain railway lines have been in the habit of charging exactly the same freight on a can of milk shipped 90 miles as on one shipped less than 40 miles. The dairymen near New York complained that this was an injury to them. There was no way of reaching any of the roads except those passing through two or more states, as New Jersey and New York or Pennsylvania. These could be dealt with under interstate commerce law, and they were thus brought to book. The commission decided that for distances less than 40 miles the proper freight charge was 23 cents per can of 40 quarts. For the second group of distances, over 40 and under 60 miles, a rate of 26 cents per can was fixed. For distances between 60 and 90 miles, 29 cents; over 90 miles, 32 cents. For cream 18 cents more per can is charged than for milk over all distances.

Dr. Clift, of Charlottetown, whose advertisement appears in every issue of this paper, has just cured a case of diabetes and Bright's disease of kidneys, two of so-called incurables. Therefore, where a patient is well known here but don't want name mentioned, as diagnosis was made on Pacific slope by well known doctor, who said incurable; and as patient came 3,500 miles and has just gone home rejoicing, all people afflicted with so-called incurable diseases (see adv.) will please advise Dr. Clift from criminal intent in publishing facts for their benefit.
