Labor Income At Record Peak

OTTAWA, Nov. 16 (CP) - Canadian labor income climbed to a record monthly peak of $922,000,000 during August, 11 per cent higher than the $833,000,000 in the corresponding month a year ago and two per cent above the July total of $905,000,000.

The Bureau of Statistics reported Saturday that substantial gains in each month this year over the previous year boosted the cumulative total for the first eight months to a record $6,980,000,000 from $6,244,000,000 a year earlier.

In the eight-month period, labor income in manufacturing increased to $2,347,000,000 from $2,132,000,000 a year earlier, and utilities, transportation, communication, storage and trade to $1,764,000,000 from $1,592,000,000.

For finance and services, including government, the cumulative totals in income rose to $1,525,000,000 from $1,363,000,000 and construction to $570,000,000 from $454,000,000. Income for primary industries - agriculture, forestry, fishing, trapping and mining - increased to $542,000,000 from $490,000,000. Supplementary labor income rose to $332,000,000 from $213,000,000.

Compile Facts On Canadian Family Life

OTTAWA, Nov. 16 (CP) - The breadwinners of more than 160,000 wage-earning families reported earnings in 1951 of less than $1,000 a year. In contrast, the heads of 41,000 families showed annual wages of more than $6,000.

These and other facts about family life in Canada were outlined recently in a Bureau of Statistics analysis based on last year's decennial census.

The analysis showed: 1. A trend towards smaller families in Canada. 2. A boost of almost 700,000 in the number of Canadian families during the last 10 years.

3. Newfoundland's families are larger than those in Quebec, along the home of Canada's largest families.

The Bureau estimated that in 10 years, the number of families in Canada jumped to 3,207,000 from 2,525,000 in 1941, when the last decennial census was taken.

In that period the size of the average family dropped to 3.7 persons from 3.9. The decline showed up in every province, except Newfoundland.

Analysts suggested one reason for the drop was the large number of post-war marriages. A large number of families had barely time to get a good start before the 1951 census.

Quebec, which had an average family of 4.5 persons in 1941, stepped back into second place with 4.2 persons. Newfoundland reported an average family of 4.4 persons, unchanged from the previous census.

Size of the average family in Ontario dropped to 3.4 persons from 3.6; Manitoba to 3.6 from 3.8; Saskatchewan to 3.7 from 4.1; Alberta, 3.7 from 3.9; British Columbia, 3.3 from 3.4; Prince Edward Island, 4 from 4.2; Nova Scotia, 3.9 from 4; New Brunswick, 4.1 from 4.3.

Families By Provinces. Number of families by provinces in 1951 with 1941 figures in brackets: Quebec, 836,000 (648,000); Ontario, 1,163,000 (909,000); Manitoba, 191,000 (166,000); Saskatchewan, 196,000 (190,000); Alberta, 223,000 (176,000); British Columbia, 300,000 (199,000); Prince Edward Island, 21,000 (20,000); Nova Scotia, 145,000 (124,000); New Brunswick, 112,000 (93,000); Newfoundland, 75,000 (66,000).

In more than 65 per cent of the families, there was only one wage-earner. About 26 per cent had two or more.

The largest group - 492,000 families - showed that the head of the family earned between $2,000 and $2,500 annually.

Between $1,000 and $2,000 a year was earned by the heads of 482,000 families; $65,000 between $2,500 and $3,000; 299,000 between $3,000 and $4,000; 109,000 between $4,000 and $6,000.

Powis Castle Now Property Of British Public

WELSHPOOL, Wales, Nov. 16 - (Reuters) - Powis Castle, 800-year-old landmark and showplace of the fabulous wealth brought home by Clive of India in the 18th century, today became the property of the British public.

The National Trust, a non-profit, non-subsidized government agency set up to maintain Britain's ancient homes, acquired the red-walled mansion under terms of the will of the Fourth Earl Clive, who died Nov. 9 at the age of 90.

For the first time, the public will be able to inspect both the 70-bedroom castle and the fortune of jewels, carvings and other treasures which the original Clive brought home after his career as Britain's foremost Empire builder.

Clive, through his military and administrative gifts, established India for the Crown and built up a personal wealth by methods which make the present day "protection" racketeer seem like a Boy Scout operation.

He tested the soundness of his business methods as a boy Shropshire, the son of an impoverished country squire. He organized an army of playmates and sold "insurance" to all storekeepers in the area so that their windows would not be broken.

As the leading power in India 25 years later he found local tribal princes willing to pay much more handsomely to insure peace was kept.

His trophies included one from Britain - a jewel-encrusted golden sword presented by a grateful public in appreciation of his military victories over Indians and the competing empire builders of France.

He gave up soldiering for administrative work in 1757, after achieving fame by freeing the 150 odd Englishmen crammed into "The black hole of Calcutta" by a local prince, Suraj-Ud-Dewlah. He also took the city, dethroned the prince and put his own nominee in charge.

By modern standards Clive would have been a candidate for prison, but a parliamentary inquiry, formed in 1764 to investigate charges that he had unscrupulously furthered his own ends, concluded instead that he had rendered invaluable services to the throne.

The wealth and lack of excitement of Clive's later years were too much for him. He took to smoking opium and in 1774, in a fit of depression, he used a pistol to end his life.

Australians Find U. S. Market Uncertain. MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 16 - (Reuters) - Australia's trading experience with the United States has shown it to be an unreliable market, Commerce Minister John McEwen said in a statement made public Saturday.

McEwen said he could imagine nothing more catastrophic for Australia's economy than to get full access to North American markets at prevailing prices only to find the whole structure topple overnight through some domestic political pressure from U. S. producers.

Report Shortage Of Engineers

WINNIPEG, Nov. 16 (CP) - Canada's unprecedented industrial growth is faced with a serious shortage of electrical, mechanical and civil engineers, Dr. J. B. Sterling of Montreal, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, said Friday.

Canadian universities are graduating about 1,700 engineers a year, he said, but this is "far short" of the number needed to replace those retiring. Authorities estimate about 500 more graduates a year could be absorbed.

In Winnipeg during a tour of institute branches, he addressed the annual dinner of the electric section of the Winnipeg branch.

This shortage of engineers, he said, is due partly to lack of accommodation in some universities, and to the lack of students going into the course.

There also is a "tremendous" steel industry's greatest in any single month of its history. It raised the 1952 production to 74,010,497 net tons, Steel says, and exceeded a monthly record set last March by 385,800 tons.

Steel reports that the industry's leaders hope controls on use and distribution of steel can be ended three months before their scheduled expiration next June 30.

"Some metal-working plants think their only steel supply problem in the first quarter will concern bars over an inch in diameter," the magazine says, and added that a new Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. Bar mill in Pittsburgh should begin easing their pressure around the second quarter.

Plate demand also continues well ahead of supply, Steel reported, and demands for shared plate 3/16 or more inches thick is "especially strong."

U. S. Steel. CLEVELAND, Nov. 16 (AP) - The steel industry's 1952 output probably will be only about 11 per cent under its all-time high despite last summer's eight-week-long country-wide strike, Steel Magazine says today.

Production may reach 93,500,000 net tons of steel for ingots and castings the Weekly Journal of Metal-working reports. This compares with 105,200,000 tons in the record year of 1951 and 96,800,000 tons in 1950, the industry's second biggest year.

October's 9,790,000-ton output was
