A New Book.

"The Doctrine of the Cross." A contribution to the Theory of the Christian Life, by the Rev. E. O. Scrymgeour, B A. (George Bell & Sons, London, 5, pp. 183).

This book, the size of which, as the author, observes, bears no proportion to the labor expended on its contents, will be welcomed by all those who are interested in the religious and philosophical questions of the day. The title chosen is rather misleading. From it we should not anticipate such a profound philosophical argument as it presents, and it might commend the book to many who would be quite unable to appreciate its contents; for although, no doubt, written pro bono publico, it is specially directed to those comparatively few, who seek a deeper explanation than is usually presented in theological works. The author endeavors to meet those demands of the modern critical spirit which proposes to be no longer able to satisfy itself with that presentation of the chief Christian Doctrines which afforded consolation to their forefathers. In so doing, he of course admits the justness of those demands,—recognizing them indeed, as the result of a proper attitude towards an accumulated mass of traditional beliefs, and in fact necessary, if such beliefs are to maintain ther vitability, or become truly our possessions. The book falls into two parts, in the first is worked out a theory of the universe, and in the second this theory is restated in the terms of Christian theology. Starting with an explanation of that great production of the modern intellect, the conception of law, as the key to the understanding of the world, he proceeds to show that the conflict of nature, the condition of organic development, finds its interpretation or a corresponding conflict of ideas, the the condition of ideal developement. This conflict he transcends in the conception of "the community of consciousness," a faint illustration of which is seen in the mutual assistance that can be rendered to one another by those who have communion, i. e., amity of spirit with each other. This community of consciousness as the basis of our moral life is named the ethical idea; as exhibited in Christianity it is the Christian idea; as the animating principle of Christian life, Redemption, the Doctrine of the Cross. It is the conception of God as Creator-father with whom we come into communion when we have insight into the direction of the world's developement, who in the Christian life revealed by Christ has shewn that ideal developement in the moral sphere, which by Redemption overcomes in the conflict with weakness or sin, and through love leads all into perfect communion with one another, which is at the same time perfect communion with God.

That the book will fulfil the design of the author is doubtful; but as a contribution to the philosophy of religion it is valuable and the most profound that has come under our notice. To those who read Principal Caird's book on this subject, published about two years ago, this volume will be of interest, and it is well worthy the careful study of anyone to whom speculative thought is not unknown, as well as to those who as yet have found no solution of the problem presented by life and the world.

A CURE FOR SLEEP WALKING.—A correspondent writes: Having been troubled myself about ten years ago, with the habit of getting up and walking about while asleep, and knowing how disagreeable and dangerous it is, I hasten to give a very cheap but effective remedy for sleep walking. Every evening, before retiring, place on the floor in front of the bed some towels soaked with cold water, or else a big washtub filled with cold water. When the somnambulist gets up and puts his feet into the water he is sure to wake, and will prefer to creep into the warm bed again rather than stroll around like a ghost. After a few surprises of that kind sleep walking looses all its charms. I tried this plan during six weeks, and attempted to leave the bed four times during that period, but was soon recalled to my senses by the cold water, and since then have been entirely free from somnambulism.

Methodist Conference of New Brunswick and P. E. Island.

OPENING SESSION.

FREDERICTON, June 28.—The ninth annual session of the Methodist Conference of New Brunswick and P. E. Island opened here in the Methodist Church at 9 a. m. to-day. Rev. Douglas Chapman, the retiring President, in the chair.

After the usual devotional exercises, the Conference proceeded to the election of a President by ballot. On the fifth ballot, Rev. John S. Phinney, now of Sackville, was declaired elected.

Rev. R W. Weddall was elected secrtary and Rev Robert Wilson, Journal Secretary.

Rev. Mr. McKeown moved that the Conference Missionary Meeting be postponed till Tuesday evening next, when Revs. Dr. Douglas and Dr. Young, visitors to the Conference, may be able to be present. The resolution was voted down.

The alleged irregular transfer of Rev. Benj. Chappell from the conference to that of Toronto was discussed.

Ex President Rev. Mr. Chapman said he had protested against Rev, Mr. Chappell's removal, but had been over-ruled by the transfer committee,—The matter was allowed to drop.

The Contingent Fund Committee was then nominated as follows by the President: Rev. Messrs. Smallwood, Pickard, Shenton, Wilson, Condon, Marshall, Ackman.

The Conference then adjourned till 4 p. m., to sit with closed doors for the examination of character.

The Conference sat in secret session this afternoon and there was considerable committee work done. This evening the annual Missionary Meeting was held, when spirited addresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs. McKeown, Wilson, Betts and others.

Some sage has observed that "It was better to have lived and been old when the world was young than to live now, though young when the world is old." Be that as it may, we would not care to live in either age without being insured against rheumatism, unless we had a supply of that never failing remedy, St. Jacobs Oil. Mr. Joseph Fihe, No. 230 Preston street, corner of Walnut, Louisville, Ky., says:—"I have used St. Jacobs Oil in my family for two years past, and have never found anything that it would not cure; there must, of course, be some limit to its powers, but I have not reached it yet, and I can say that I do not believe there are any muscular ailments, nervousness or inflammation that it will not fail to cure. My boy Theodore fell down and sprained his foot; it swelled to two or three times its usual size. I applied St. Jacobs Oil and in half a day he was well as ever. It cured me of rheumatism and my wife of neuralgia

"My darling," said a fond husband, 'I really believe my rheumatism has wholly disappeared!' She—"Oh, I am so sorry! Now we shall never know when the weather is going to change."
