

Have Hope.

The shadow of the mountain falls athwart the lowly plain,
And the shadow of the cloudlet hangs above the mountain's head—
And the highest hearts and lowest wear the shadow of some pain,
And the smile is scarcely finished ere the anguished tear is shed.

For no eyes have there been ever without a weary tear,
And those lips cannot be human which never heaved a sigh;
For without the dreary winter there has never been a year,
And the tempests hide their terrors in the calmest summer sky.

So this dreary life is passing—and we move amid its maze,
And we grope along together, half in darkness half in light;
And our hearts are often hardened by the mysteries of our ways,
Which are never all in shadow and never wholly bright.

And our dim eyes ask a beacon and our weary feet a guide.
And our hearts of all life's mysteries seek the meaning and the key;
And a cross gleamed o'er our pathway, on it hangs the crucified
And He answers all our yearnings by the whisper: "Follow Me."

—Father Ryan.

That Secret Society.

The other day, after a strapping young man had sold a load of corn and potatoes on the market and had taken his team to a hotel barn to 'feed,' it became known to the men, around the barn that he was desirous of joining some secret society. When questioned he admitted that such was the case, and the boys at once offered to admit him into a new order called 'the Cavaliers of Coveo.' It was twice as secret as Free Masonry, much nicer than Odd Fellowship, and the cost was only two dollars. In case he had the toothache he could draw five dollars per week from the relief fund, and he was entitled to receive ten dollars for every head ache, and twenty-five dollars for a sore throat.

The young man thought he had struck a big thing, and after eating a hearty dinner he was taken into a store above the barn to be initiated. The boys poured cold water down his back, put flour on his hair, sworn him to kill his mother if commanded, and rushed him around for an hour without a single complaint from his lips. When they finished he inquired:

'Now I'm one of the Cavaliers of Coveo, am I?'

'You are,' they all cried.

'Nothing more to ask?' is there?'

'Nothing.'

'Well then, I'm going to whip the whole crowd!' continued the candidate, and he went at it, and before he got through he had his two dollars initiation fee back and three more to boot, and had knocked everybody down two or three times apiece. He didn't seem greatly disturbed in mind as he drove out of the barn. On the contrary, his hat was slanted over, he had a fresh five-cent cigar in his teeth, and he mildly said to one of the barn boys:

'Say boy, if you hear any of the Cavaliers asking for a Coveo about my size, tell 'em I'd be in on the full of the moon to take the Loyal Skyfugle degrees.—Free Press.

The Trap-Door Spider.

One of the most singular specimens of insect life is the trap-door spider of Jamaica. His burrow is lined with silk and closed by a trap-door with a hinge. The door exactly fits the entrance to the burrow, and when closed, so precisely corresponds with the surrounding earth that it can hardly be distinguished, even when its position is known. It is a strange sight to see the earth open, a little lid raised, some hairy legs protrude and gradually the whole form of the spider show itself. The spiders generally hunt for food by night, and in the daytime they are very chary of opening the door of their domicile, and if the trap be raised from the outside, they run to the spot, hitch the claws of their fore feet into the lining of the burrow, and so resist with all their might. The strength of the spider is wonderfully great in proportion to its size.

Frederick Eckert of Baltimore announced his belief that there ought to be seven Books of Moses instead of five and it is probable that, if glib-tongued and persuasive, he might have made converts under the enlarged Bible that he proposed to issue. But he rashly tested his claim to divine inspiration by attempting to perform a miracle. He exhumed the body of his dead wife, and commanded her to live again. His failure ended his career as a religious leader before he had more than begun. His mistake lay in acquiring faith in himself instead of merely inspiring it in others.

An Irishman who had blistered his fingers trying to draw on a pair of boots several sizes too small for him, exclaimed, "I shall never get them on at all, until I wear them a day or two."

CATARRH.
Constitutional Catarrh Remedy
CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont. —
DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long, I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite cured of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head.

A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper. Yours truly,

W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister.
Port Elgin, Ont., Aug. 24, 1878.
