

NRC'S LATEST PROJECT

Workmen are putting finishing touches on this giant 150-foot radio telescope at Algonquin, Ont. The telescope will probe the heavens for radio signals from stars so distant they cannot be seen even with aid of powerful optical telescopes. The project is one of the recent achievements of the National Research Council celebrating its 50th anniversary this month. (CP Wirephoto from NRC)

Premier Verwoed Assassin May Have Visited Canada

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dimitri Tsafendas, possibly the same man who assassinated Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoed of South Africa, has a record of mental illness and immigration troubles in the United States, which he first entered by crossing the Canadian border from St. Stephen, N.B.

The immigration service said it has provided to the state department, for relay to the South African government, a lengthy record on Dimitrios Tsafendakis, who also spelled his name Dimitri Tsafendas, and several other ways.

The records show the man visited the United States at least seven times from 1942 to 1947 as a merchant seaman during and just after the Second World War. He was in hospital in Boston and in Charleston, S.C.

He was described as a native of Portuguese Mozambique, 46 years of age. Tsafendakis is listed in immigration records as born Jan. 14, 1918, in Lourenco Marques, Mozambique.

DEPORTED THREE TIMES

He was deported on three occasions and four other times as he was permitted to ship out as a merchant seaman. Immigration records show:

Tsafendakis first entered the United States at Calais, Me., Dec. 9, 1942, by walking across the ice of the St. Croix River from St. Stephen, N.B. He was picked up by immigration officials for illegal entry two days later.

Admitted to Boston Psychopathic Hospital April 3, 1943, he was transferred later to the Metropolitan State Hospital at Waltham, Mass., where he remained until June 24, 1943. Again, on March 18, 1946, he was taken to the Boston hospital and was transferred to Grafton State Hospital, where he remained until July 31, 1947. He was deported for the last time in September, 1947.

In September, 1944, he had been treated at Roper Hospital, Charleston, S.C., and the immigration board ordered him excluded from the country on mental grounds. He nevertheless was able to return several times as a merchant seaman before his hospital treatment and final deportation.
