MR. AND MRS. STERLING A. JENKINS

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Young Couple

A quite wedding took place at the home of the bride, 210 Convent Street, Summerside, on Saturday, May 17th, 1958 at 4:00 p.m. when Thelma Jean Cameron, became the bride of Sterling Arnold Jenkins of Mt. Albion. Rev. C.W. Passy performed the dougle ring ceremony.

The bride was attended by Miss Joyce Buell as bridesmaid, while William MacDonald was the best man.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. James E. Somers, the bride looked very youthful and lovely in her wedding dress of white nylon with blue forget-me-nots over satin.

She wore a matching blue net headpiece and mitts and white shoes. She carried a white prayer book, with streamers of double true lovers knots topped with a corsage of Tawny Gold roses.

The bridesmaids dress was of flowered tangerine nylon with white accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums.

A reception for the immediate families was held at the bride's home, following the wedding.

MARY HAWORTH

This Man Is A Bounder

Dear Mary Haworth: Ten years ago, when I was 26, I had an affair with a teen-age girl that lasted two years. At first I believed that I loved the girl; but as the affair progressed I realized that I wasn't in love, and broke off. She was heartbroken as I was her first love.

Rerently a man visited my place of work and introduced himself as the husband of that girl. He had quite a bit of information about me that he had gathered through the years.

Sally (I'll call her) had confessed the affair to him before they married, he said; and he had been looking for me ever since, to do me bodily harm. He tried; but, as I am the bigger man, I whipped him.

HAPPILY MARRIED

Now he has written me a letter, saying that he is going to have me arrested. He claims there is no statute of limitations, to erase my offence against the girl; and that he can prove my guilt. Also he is going to bring my parents to trial, he says, because they left the girl unchaperoned, alone with me, in their house.

The problem is, I am now a happily married man with three children; and my wife doesn't know about this situation—past or present. My principal concern is, does the man have a legal case against me and my parents? If he hasn't, how can I persuade him that making a big scandal about it is silly? G.Y.

HIDEOUS EXPERIENCE

Dear G.Y. What a hideous experience this girl has had, in respect to significant men in her life. First your cowardly betrayal of her foolish trust, in casting her aside when you realized that you didn't care for the conquest you had made — after winning her heart by giving the impression that you loved her too.

And second, her marriage to this morbid bounder, her husband, who is threatening you about her past. He is no avenging angel, of course. Somebody ought to set him straight on that point.

Rather he is a morally sick man, obsessed with evil fantasies in regard to sex-fantasies that are fueled in part by his wife's confession of adolescent misadventure, perhaps. But mainly, however, his pursuit of the subject is due to a psychopathic bias —to a vindictive cussed streak; to a malicious appetite for tormenting people "in his power."

TOO MUCH A BUSYBODY

In his screwball way, he is enjoying his busybody role, gravedigging about the past, determined never to let it rest. All things considered, he probably deserved a punch in the nose, plus a kick in the pants, when he came pestering you with his crackpot sense of mission.

And now that he is threatening you in writing, I think the wise rejoinder is to discuss the whole story with a good lawyer, to get legal guidance in slapping him down, once and for all.

In short, don't run from the problem he poses. Face up to the accounting with poise. Behave manfully, with blunt courage, candor and dignity, in stating your case to professional advisers; and also, in explaining the wretched business to your wife—if this seems necessary to shut up the fellow.

Keep him at a distance. Don't lower yourself to the gutter level of a confidential exchange with him—in terms of trying to persuade him that it's silly to make a scandal. If he is given to understand, via a lawyer that you are discussing his threats with the proper authorities, you probably won't hear any more from his corner.

So much for that. But the problem of his wife remains unsolved. Since you contributed to her predicament, perhaps you ought to discuss your sin with a clergyman, and make peace with your conscience, and offer repentant prayers on her behalf. It might mark a turning point for the better for both of you. — M. H.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Granddaughter Has A Happy Twelfth Birthday

With her two grandmothers in attendance, as it was on the day she came to us, Granddaughter today celebrated her twelfth Anniversary of birth. There were no cherry blossoms at Alderlea this time to mark it in memory, but white lilacs smiled in the sunlight and a first white iris unfurled a pretty bloom.

"She's going on thirteen now" Mack teased. "You know", he grinned, "high heels and earrings."

"Don't be silly, Mack'" she chuckled, "why I'm only twelve today!"

She is an important miss at this farmstead, being the first lass to come to it in a period which had extended well over a half century and remains still the only granddaughter of the name.

It was a fitting birthday morning—this, all gold and bright and full of the June-time.

"How is it that girls get more gifts on their birthday than boys? Mack commented thinking things over. James patted his head.

"They don't really" he smiled. "Or if they do, I guess it must be to make up in part for their not being born a boy."

"Could be" Mack nodded.

Granddaughter is an obedient child, old for her years, and to us in the home she seems to be a lass o' pairts. Blessed always with a liking for books, in which she can lose herself completely, she nevertheless has a good hand at the housekeeping and can take care of a meal or tidy a room faultlessly. She can handle Alex with a motherly air too and it is interesting to see the broad smile flash with which he bids her welcome, when the afternoon returns her from school

True to her sex and age, one of her major concerns now is a wish to follow faithfully the current whims of those of like years in the matter of dress. While we can appreciate this, indeed know how deeply the matter can disturb a youngster, it sometimes occasions us a chuckle.

"With that Dutch dress, when there is red in the bodice and the trimmings, shouldn't you wear socks in that shade?" we suggested on a recent school-morning.

"But Nanna" she replied obviously shocked at the thought "NO ONE wears red socks to school now! White, they wear—or a pastel shade."

"But YOU could wear red socks, couldn't you?"

She shook her head. "Oh no, I couldn't—I just couldn't," she said.

We giggled, harking back to the steady "diet" of long black cottons—or the bare feet, of our equal-to-Grade 7 and indeed later days of those bygone summery school-years.

"And now for the mangel seed Ellen. Where is it?" James asked coming by on quick steps through the morning. He sniffed. "Have you something baking?" he queried. "Then perhaps you would come and hold the horse I've been using at the marking, while I harness another to put with him for the hilling—it won't take long." He glanced at the clock. "Doesn't it beat everything how the time slips away!" he offered.

And winged hour succeeded hour and vanished, and the peace of eventide was here. It is a nice evening subtly brightened still with a remnant of the afterlight and perfumed with lilacs scent. And we think, how perfectly for her this pleasant June day ends, which at Alderlea has marked our little maid's twelfth Anniversary of birth.

Until tomorrow — — — Diary Good-night.

HAPPENINGS

The Right Reverend Monsignor A.K. MacIntyre of Cranbrook, British Columbia, is at present visiting in Prince Edward Island. He is staying with his brother in Selkirk and seeing many friends and relatives in Selkirk and the surrounding districts.

Miss Jennie E. MacNeill, M.A. assistant to Miss Edith M. Read, M.A., of Branksome Hall school, spent part of her childhood on Prince Edward Island, during her father's ministry in this province.

The Branksome Slogan, the school's year book, for 1958 contains a remarkably fine photographic study of Miss MacNeill. One receives the impression that along with the keen intellect there is a most pleasant personality—in fact quite a marked sense of humor.

Miss MacNeill under the guidance of the renowned Edith Read of Branksome is already known as a leading figure in educational circles.

The Home Economics and Garment Parade will be held by Grades VII, VIII and IX of the Home Economics department of the Queen Charlotte High School in the auditorium June 19th at two o'clock.

morrow. The girls of the Home Economics department will be wearing the clothes made in class. There will be a demonstration of manual training by the boys. Refreshments will be served and Mrs. Alta Acorn is the Home Economics teacher.

Young Prince Edward Islanders are making a very fine showing in various homemaking skills They will no doubt enjoy reading about a contemporary, a young Texan, who has been honored as a Homemaker. Aloma Qualls of Wichita Falls, Texas, was named Young Homemaker of the Year by the Girls Clubs of America. She has been a member of the Northside Girls' Club since she was six, and has been cited as "Representative of all Girls Club members now learning the skills which will prepare them for their future role of homemaker."

Miss Lucy Adams, a bride-elect was pleasantly surprised on Thursday evening at the apartment of Misses Wanda Rodd and Sylvia Silliker, Summerside when she was tendered a miscellaneous shower.

The hostess were assisted by Miss Elizabeth Ramsay who placed the many lovely gifts. After they had been opened by the bride, the good wishes read by Miss Rodd.

FORTUNE BRIDGE W.I.

The regular meeting of the Fortune Bridge Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Townshend. Meeting opened by singing Ode followed by Mary Stewart collect.

Roll call was answered by nine members, there were four visitors present. The minutes of the last meeting were read by secretary and approved, financial report given by treasurer and adopted.

The secretary read correspondence and tickets to sell for Kinsmen Service Work was given out, discussion on members to attend convention was held.

School committee reported a new pencil sharpener was needed for Junior department. Collection of $2 was taken up and Mrs. Henry Townshend invited members to her home for July meeting, lunch to be served by hostess.

Mt. Allison Graduates Married In Kensington

Bright June sunshine and a profusion of white chrysanthenums and pink carnations combined to provide a lovely setting in the United Church, Kensington, Saturday, June 7th, for the wedding of Miss Helen Margaret MacKay, Moncton, only daughter of Rev and Mrs. Alexander MacKay, Kensington to Mr. James Milton Gibson, son of Mrs. G.E. Gibson and the late Mr. Gibson, of Moncton, N.B.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by Rev. Lewis M. Murray who also supplied appropriate nuptial music.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Margaret Murray sang effectively Malotte's setting of "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love".

The bride, who was given away by Mr. James S. Mason, Moncton, looked winsome in a floor length gown of white silk embroidered tulle. The fitted bodice featuring a scooped neckline bordered with tulle and pseudo pearls closed in back with tiny covered buttons.

Long sleeves tapered over the hands. A bustled back enhanced the bouffant skirt worn over bridal satin. The shoulder length veil of bridal illusion fell from a crown of crystal pleated tulle encrusted with crystals over seed pearls.

She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses encased in gladioli. Her only jewellery was a necklace of cultured pearls, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. Harold Randall, Moncton, matron of honor, was attractively gowned in imported ice blue satin brocade made on princess times with low neckline and full ballerina length skirt, draped in back.

She wore matching blue headdress and mitts and carried a nosegay of vari-colored roses.

Mr. Gary Gibson and Mr. Harold Randall ushered the guests to the pews marked with white satin bows and lilies of the valley.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Cecil Gibson, Moncton.

Mrs. MacKay, mother of the bride, was attired in a two piece dress of white and blue figured silk with rose and navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

The groom's mother wore a Dior blue dress with navy and white accessories and had a corsage of Talisman roses.

A reception for more than eighty guests was held in the assembly room of the church with the senior Woman's Association in charge of the catering. Miss Shirley Scholfield Fredericton and Miss Rena Thomas, Moncton, served the bride's table which was centred with the traditional three tiered wedding cake flanked by white candles in silver candleabra.

Mrs. H. Caul, Toronto, aunt of the bride and Mrs. F.G. MacLellan, sister of the groom, presided over the tea table with its floral centerpiece of pink tulips and other spring flowers.

Rev. L.M. Murray proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responed.

Numerous telegrams of good wishes were read by Rev. A.E. Haley of Cavendish.

The bride has been employed as an officer with the Civil Service Commission, Atlantic Region and the Boom with the Unemployment Insurance Commission of the Atlantic Region. Both are graduate of Mount Allison University.

They left on a motor trip to New York and other American and Canadian cities. For travelling the bride donned a sea blue sheath dress with three quarter length coat and white accessories. On return they will reside in Moncton.

Before marriage the bride was guest of hoor at several social functions where beautiful gifts were presented from church and other organizations.

DRIVERS STRIKE

TORONTO (CP) — Seven hundred coal drivers and loaders went on strike Friday against 19 Toronto coal firms to back up demands for wage increases and other benefits. The strike, endorsed Wednesday by Local 352 of the Teamsters Union (CLC), is expected to cut off supplies to some industrial firms. However, the union said some drivers will receive permits "on a rotation basis" to allow them to deliver coal to hospitals and institutions.
