Supply Ships Sail For Arctic

QUEBEC (CP) — Three federal government supply ships left here today on the first leg of a 12,000-mile trip to remote weather stations in Canada's Arctic.

Headed by the powerful ice-breaker d'Iberville, the Maruba and Gander Bay will rendezvous with two other ships near the top of Hudson Bay before pushing further north in the Arctic's maze of ice and islands. The ships are carrying more than 4,000 tons of food, fuel, medicine, and other supplies for delivery to five jointly operated Canada - United States weather stations.

SOME of the stations will be serviced by special landing barges while others, less accessible, will have their supplies flown in. The d'Iberville will attempt to be first Canadian ship to reach Eureka, on the west coast of Baffin Island and only 700 miles from the North Pole. Ice-jammed channels throughout most of the year make the venture mainly a matter of timing.

SPRING MUSIC

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — The cracking of ice floes, normally a sign of spring, was heard here at a watery spot late in February. All winter a robin or two was seen around the outlet of the spring, and a warm spell late in winter usually brings out the frogs.

Dismembered Body of Montreal Boy Discovered; Suspect Sex Fiend Slaying

MONTREAL (CP) — The mutilated torso of a six-year-old Raymond Trudeau was found Sunday jammed into a back suitcase in a midtown LaSaguetiere St. rooming house.

Police said they are seeking the last occupant of the room where the torso was found for questioning in the gruesome slaying. They identified him as Lucien Picard, aged between 35 and 40, a machinist by trade. Police said he was last known to have been in the room Friday night.

A number of other persons from the district were released after questioning, police said. The macabre discovery followed by little more than a day the finding of the boy's head, legs and hands—stuffed into two cardboard boxes — on the Montreal waterfront, a quarter-mile away from the rooming house.

The little boy, who would have been given a birthday party by his parents Saturday, was described by police as the victim of a sadistic sex maniac.

REPORTS indicated the torso was discovered Sunday by persons living in the rooming house. They had apparently noted a strong odor coming from the room.

Investigating, they found the suitcase. They took it to a back shed and opened it to find the torso inside.

Discovery Saturday of the other parts of the body was made by Roger Levesque, a 24-year-old trucker, on his way back to work after breakfast. The boxes were lying in a garbage heap in front of a produce market.

"I saw toes protruding from one of the boxes," Levesque told police. "I tore off the string and then called the police."

The market area, on the edge of Montreal's financial district, is usually busy on week days but almost deserted on Saturdays. Police said the boxes apparently were dropped there sometime Friday night or early Saturday.

BOY IDENTIFIED The body was identified at the morgue by David Trudeau, the boy's 34-year-old father, and George Chandler, his uncle. Chandler had to be helped from the morgue after viewing the body.

HUSBAND WATCHES AS U. S. AIR FORCE PLANE PLOWS INTO HOUSE, KILLS WIFE

ST. ANTHONY, Nfld. (CP) — A husband on his way home from work watched in horror Saturday when a United States air force amphibian plane plowed into his house, killing his 28-year-old wife in a shower of splintered timbers.

The plane, an SA — 16 twin-engine land-or-sea craft, skittered through a wooden fence, across Harold Simms' tiny garden and smashed into his small frame home after the pilot tried desperately to lift the aircraft and its 11 passengers from the fog-shrouded waters of St. Anthony Bay.

Mrs. Simms was killed when a wing of the plane sheared through the house. The injured persons aboard the amphibian were removed from the wreckage and taken to the Grenfell Mission hospital nearby for treatment. None was believed in serious condition.

Simms had been making for the house when the plane loomed out of the fog shortly before 9 a.m. EDT. As he watched from 200 yards away the amphibian flattened the fence, cut a furrow through his garden and slammed into the house. House and plane were completely wrecked.

A truck driver on a road near the house looked up to see the plane heading toward him. He shifted frantically into reverse and gunned out of the way by inches.

A woman friend of the Simms and her infant had left the house only moments before the aircraft struck.

There was no fire. The pilot said afterward he had cut his engines when he saw that a crash was inevitable.

COMPLETE WRECK The names of those aboard the plane were not immediately released. Some were thrown clear of the wreck but all suffered cuts and bruises.

Simms worked for a fish plant near his home. This village in the extreme north of Newfoundland is where humanitarian Wilfred Grenfell established headquarters for his chain of mercy outposts through the northland.

Red China Rattles Sword

TOKYO, (AP)—Red China's commander-in-chief said Sunday in a sword-rattling speech that his country is resolved to conquer Formosa and liquidate Chiang Kai-Shek and will brook no interference from other countries in doing so.

Peiping radio broadcast the text of a speech by Gen. Chu Teh commemorating the 27th anniversary of the founding of Red China's army. Formosa, stronghold of Chiang's nationalist, is guarded by the U. S. seventh fleet.

Three Injured In Ship Collision

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP)—Three merchant seamen, injured in a collision in the foggy St. Lawrence river Friday night between the United States warship Pittsburgh and the British freighter Slaney, were in hospital here today.

The injured men are: Lawrence Huxley, 18, Sheffield, England, fractured skull; Ralph Grizot, 22, Everton, Liverpool, England, fractured collarbone; and Thomas Hamilton, 28, Liverpool, fractured ankle.

Eight other members of the Slaney's 15-man crew suffered minor injuries when the 17,500-ton cruiser smashed into the side of the coastal freighter. No one on the Pittsburgh was injured.

The development was blessed by Msgr. N. A. Labrie, Roman Catholic bishop of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Premier Duplessis and Premier Smallwood pushed buttons that drilled the first cars of ore from the new mine into the hold of the S. S. Hawaiian, a freighter bound for Philadelphia. Mr. Duplessis tipped in a car of ore from the Quebec section of the development and Mr. Smallwood a car from the Labrador area.

Eventually the company hopes to move 20,000,000 tons of ore a year in 100 ships.

Premier Smallwood said the northernmost corner of the North American continent where the ore deposits are located is one of the "great storehouses of minerals wealth unexploited in the world today." No one would guess the mineral wealth of both sides of the Quebec-Labrador boundary.

He referred to the fact that the iron ore deposits straddle the unmarked boundary and said he wants to get together with Premier Duplessis to settle the boundary issue.

Labrador, a 112,000-square-mile area on the northeastern tip of Quebec was ceded to Newfoundland by Britain when Canada was still a colony. The concession later was confirmed by several judicial decisions. However, no boundary line between Quebec and Labrador has ever been marked.

Mr. Humphrey thanked the Quebec-Labrador boundary.

Kidnapped

Allied authorities are hunting for further clues which might reveal whether Dr. Otto John, the vanished chief of the West German intelligence service, was kidnapped by the Reds or went to East Berlin voluntarily.

The names of those aboard the plane were not immediately released. Some were thrown clear of the wreck but all suffered cuts and bruises.

Freak Windstorm Blasts Destructive Streak Through Section of N. B.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A freak windstorm blasted a path of destruction through an isolated section of New Brunswick early Sunday leaving a trail of partially wrecked buildings, blocked roads and splintered hydro poles in its wake.

The five-minute storm, described by residents as a small tornado, was accompanied by a severe electrical disturbance. The airport weather office at Saint John said they had no record of the wind because it passed about 15 miles to the southwest.

A one-storey house at the Saint's Rest village range was lifted from its foundation by the wind and dropped six feet from its base. The startled occupant, James Keating, was in bed when the house rose into the air.

The small frame building settled down with a smack, tilting toward the back. Mr. Keating was besieged with flying cans and bouncing furniture. He ran to the door shouting for help and was assisted by his neighbor, Wilfred English. No one was injured but the house was left in shambles.

Hydro poles along the road leading to Saint's Rest rifle range were blown down, with snapped wires lying across the road, blocking traffic. Repair crews later cleared the poles, but wires remained down overnight.

The West Side dairy farm owned by John Flewelling, was also badly damaged by the sudden storm when a loft door inside the barn took off in a crazy spin and punched a hole through the roof, landing some distance away. The second-floor door on the outside of the barn was ripped from its hinges and toppled to the ground.

The boys arrived in Montreal July 25 and since have covered a good chunk of Quebec, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, courtesy of the RCAF.

They leave Monday for Pennsylvania, and from there on home later in the week.

Guns Silent In Central Viet Nam

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—The guns were muzzled in central Viet Nam Sunday, extending a cease-fire which went into effect in the north last Tuesday.

Monsoon rains whipped the mountains, jungles and coastal regions in the zone from Thanh Hoa in the north to Thang Hai in the south, the old kingdom of Annam home of 6,200,000 people.

Four of the 18 provinces and almost half those people are to fall under the Communist Vietminh's yellow-starred red flag through the Geneva agreement splitting Viet Nam at about the 17th parallel.

British Soldiers At Suez Happy

By REIMAN MORIN ISMAILIA, Suez Canal Zone (AP) — The purple dawn was just breaking over the desert Wednesday when a British sergeant walked into a barracks in a base on the Suez canal.

"Got some news for you chaps," he said. "The night before in Cairo, Britain had signed an agreement with Egypt to pull British forces out of the canal zone and hand over the giant complex of bases to Egypt."

Nothing could be more typical of the reaction on the British side of the barbed wire to the agreement which the Egyptians celebrated jubilantly.

To the 5,300 wives of the officers within the zone, the main feature of the agreement is the possibility that they will soon be able to get outside the wire and go to Ismailia and Cairo for shopping.

The commanders profess the greatest satisfaction, an officer said, "This arrangement is so good it's hard to understand why we didn't do it long before this."

Miss Breckenridge was killed instantly late Friday night at Stovenhaven, about a mile from her home, when struck by a car driven by Raymond Good of Toronto.

An inquest will be held.
