LEAFS ON THE SPOT

TORONTO Maple Leafs desperately need a triumph in Detroit tonight or they can just forget about any chance of retaining the Stanley Cup. They have won three Leafs games in the last five. Unless "Punch" Imlach's gang can square the series at 2-2 before returning to Toronto, their chances are mighty slim emerging as victors in this Stanley Cup final. However, Leafs' supporters are taking heart from the comeback staged by the Queen City boys in Tuesday's game in Detroit. They are telling themselves that to surge by the Leafs was a forerunner of better things that come and that those good things will start coming in tonight's contest.

TUESDAY'S game was the strangest kind of a struggle. The Leafs appeared all set to chase the Maple Leafs right out of the Olympia. They owned a huge 5-0 lead before the 15-minute mark was reached in that first period and it had all the earmarks of a rout. But the Leafs' comeback was so fast that those figuring along these lines were discounting the fighting qualities of the Toronto team. The Leafs got one goal back in the second and had squared matters at 3-2 in the final minutes of the game. It looked like overtime until Gordie Howe set up Delvecchio for the clincher with 17 seconds of play remaining.

A Fighting Comeback

NEVERTHELESS, you can't deny that Leafs staged a terrific comeback. When a team is down three goals and you are sure you are on them, Leafs' supporters were convinced after that first period that the game was gone. They could see no way being limited by the losers must have taken a bit of glory from the Detroit triumph. We will know it all in a moment. The Leafs surely gained some confidence from their great rebound.

Tonight they'll take the ice determined not to let Wings' comeback stop them. They had they fought the Red Wings on more even terms in that opening session, Toronto would be entering this fourth game leading 2-1.

BUT Detroit did get that early jump and they were able to state of mind in the dressing room who had three chances to make or miss. If they can do it again tonight, they'll surely be in a lofty position and you'll about set to receive congratulations on winning the Stanley Cup.

Leafs well know this and they should be at their best. Toronto needs to win this game. They need to win this game to advance into the finals. They did just that, even though the odds were against them.

Leafs need to win this game to put this series on a best-of-three basis, with two of those games on Toronto ice. Leafs know that this is their biggest game of the year and they really give their greatest when the pressure is on.

Shame On You, Toe

LAST week when Jacques Plante was most expert during period, he was in the dressing room who had three chances to make or miss. If they can do it again tonight, they'll surely be in a lofty position and you'll about set to receive congratulations on winning the Stanley Cup.
