Need No Conductor.
In the course of a lecture on "Telegraphy Without Wires," delivered recently in London by W. H. Preece, C. B., F. R. S., the lecturer said he had been studying this wonderful invention for the last 47 years. In his researches he had found that there was little difference between electricity and light. The first idea that he got of the invention was from the fact that the telephone company stated that in Gray's Inn road the messages which were sent to Bradford could be distinctly heard on their wires. This could not be understood, as the different wires stood at a distance of 80 feet. Experiments were made, and it was found that by vibration messages could be practically sent to any distance, and the first time it was tested it worked admirably at 2,000 feet. Later on messages in the Bristol channel were sent between two islands some miles apart.
This invention would be of great service to lighthouses, as although everything possible was done to keep up communication with them it was sometimes impossible to carry this out in great gales. With this telegraphy it was possible to communicate in all weathers or under any conditions.
He had been trying on 260 vibrations a second, but Mr. Marconi had flown higher and was experimenting with 250,000,000 vibrations in the same time. The main secret of the whole thing was the force with which the electricity can be sent out from the transmitter to the receiver. It was practically spit out from the transmitter like miniature lightning, and this would be forced along at a pressure of 250,000,000 waves a second to the receiver.

Gambling in Cripple Creek.
Out in Cripple Creek the gambling houses are running in every saloon. They are huge gilded affairs, where the hard working miners, after coming from their eight hour shifts, go to while away their time and money instead of thinking of home and mother and filling their socks with money to pay off the mortgages on the farms back home. The men stand five and six deep behind the wheels watching the players as they risk their money, the less adventurous hardly having the courage to make the play till, having seen some man quit a winner, they, too, step up and bet on the black or the red. On the tables are stacked piles of silver coin and gold eagles, and the operators of the machines every little while take occasion to show that the game is backed by much more than the thousand or so that is in sight by displaying a stack of bills in a receptacle behind the table where the notes are thrown when paid in, with a kind of reckless abandon that is quite taking.
At other tables a policy wheel will be running with so many drawings a day. In another corner of the room a crowd will be shooting craps, a large and intensely absorbed crowd witnessing the play at each place. Off at one side a stud poker game is running. The old miners seem to favor this game particularly and their grizzled features show the intensity of their interest as the chips come and go.—Nebraska State Journal

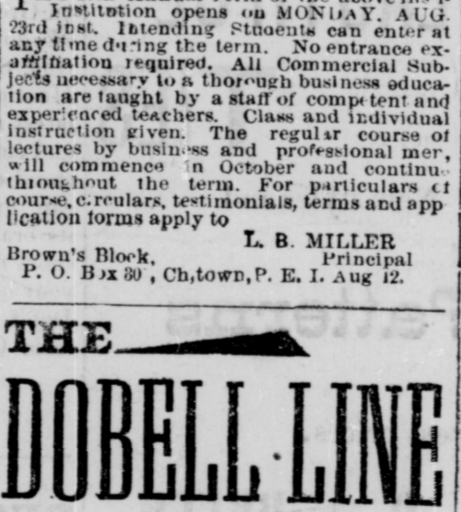

United States Minister Woodford does not appear to be meeting with much to assure him in his sounding of European opinion as to the United States' intervention in Cuba. The rulers of Europe do not as a general thing sympathize with republics, and are less likely than usual to do so when a republic is set against one of themselves. Outside of the United States President McKinley is likely to be advised on the Cuban question to mind his own business.

You may get over that slight cold all right, but it has left its mark on the membranes lining your throat. You are liable to take another cold and the second one will hang on longer than the first. Scott's Emulsion is not an ordinary cough specific, but it is "the ounce of prevention." It builds up the system, checks inflammation and heals inflamed membranes. "Slight" colds never bring serious results when it is promptly taken.
