

Humorous.

An Irishman has always an answer for anything. A Corkonian, on being asked at breakfast how he came by "that black eye," said he "slept on his fist."

A lady is reported to have scolded her little boy for taking a drink of water at a hotel. "For," said she, "we pay 3s. 6d. for our dinner, and water is very filling."

When we see a tightly-laced woman trying to enjoy a good laugh with a smile on her mouth and tears in her eyes, we think of the dear old hymn, which begins, "Let joy be uncoufined."

"Why, you had better knock 'em the door down! What do you want?" "Och, my darling! don't let me disturb any of your family; I'm just usin' your knock-er to wake the people next door. I'm locked out, d'ye see, and they've niver a knock-er." Rap! Rap! Rap!

"I wonder," groaned the fat old gentleman, as he was pulling on his left boot, "I wonder why nearth—Edison or somebody—d-o-n't bring out an invention-oh, lad! oh, lad!—that would be of realservicetomankind—a b-o-o-t-j-a-c-k—that could jack a boot on 'swellasjacketoff!—whew! 'tis on at last—gimme a chair, Marriar."

CAUSE AND JUST IMPEDIMENT.—There is an Iowa clergyman who charges for the performance of a marriage ceremony according to the weight of the parties—two cents a pound for the bridegroom and four cents a pound for the bride. In that parish it is not an uncommon thing to hear a young man remark, "No, darling, it cannot be immediately; you're too fat."

A boy paid his first visit to one of the public schools the other day as a scholar, and as he came home at night his mother enquired: "Well, Henry, how do you like going to school?" "Oh!" he replied, in an excited voice; "I saw four boys licked, and one girl got her ear pulled, and a big scholar burned his elbow on the stove. I don't want to miss a day."

WASTING THEIR SHOT.—Rivaroles, an excellent lieutenant-general, died in 1704. He was by birth a Piedmontese and had joined the army in France, where he was greatly esteemed. Long before that time he had lost one of his legs by a cannon ball. At the battle of Neerwinden, another cannon shot took off his wooden leg and threw him flat on the ground. On being lifted up he was found to be uninjured whereupon he burst out laughing: "The fools!" he said, "waisting their shot in that manner! They little know that I have got two other legs in my portmanteau."

THE RULING PASSION.—The following trait of a wealthy miser is but little known. He was a blind millionaire, and about to be operated upon for the cataract by a skillful oculist, who was to receive fifty louis d'or as his fee. The operation on the right eye had been most successful. "I can see," exclaimed the millionaire, overjoyed; "I can distinguish the colours. I recognize my precious cashbox!" "Very well, then," replied the practitioner; "let us lose no time, but commence at once on the left eye." "No, no," said the miser, "all things considered, I'll pay you at once twenty-five louis. I had as lief remain blind in one eye and save the other twenty-five."

NOT SO EASILY CAUGHT.—Seidlitz, the famous general of cavalry, when still a young officer, used to maintain that any mounted soldier that allowed himself to be taken prisoner, together with his horse, was a scamp and a coward. He once rode in the suite of the king over the bridge leading into the fortress of Glogau. When they had reached the middle of the bridge, at a signal from the king, the two draw-bridges in front and behind were drawn up, and the King turned to Seidlitz with the words: "Now you are my prisoner." "Not yet your Majesty," answered the bold horseman, as he gave the spurs to his horse leaped over the parapet into the Oder, and swam safely to shore. He was only a cornet when he sprang into the water, but found himself a captain by the time he got to land.

The Great French Remedy, Dr. LeDuc's Periodical Pills.

For the cure of Leucorrhoea or White's, Excessive or painful Menstruation, Green Sticks, Falling of the Womb, Catarrh of the Uterus or Vagina, Hysteria, Pain in the Back, or Piles, or for the purpose of invigorating and giving tone to the Generative Organs, two pills should be taken twice daily, or in very enfeebled conditions, one pill three times a day. To effect cures in chronic cases it will be necessary to continue the use of the remedy for some months. A reasonable trial will create sufficient confidence in the remedy to insure its being taken until a permanent cure is effected.
