NEW DIRECTORS OF THE BANK OF MONTREAL

SIR LOMER GOUIN GENERAL SIR ARTHUR CURRIE.

The enlargement of the directorate of the Bank of Montreal, which was effected upon the recent annual meeting as a result of the extending scope of the institution, has resulted in two gentlemen of national reputation being added to the board, namely, the Hon. Sir Lomer Gouin, K. C. M. G., and General Sir Arthur Currie, G. C. M. G. K. C. B., L. D.

Sir Lomer Gouin only recently retired from the position of Premier of the Province of Quebec. He had held this position for fifteen years, and had given the province an administration which was recognized as one of the most successful in the provincial arena since Confederation. Sir Lomer is a native of the Province of Quebec. He was born at Grandville on March 19, 1852, his father being N. M. D. a well-known local practitioner. His mother's maiden name was Paré. He was educated at Sorrel and Levis Colleges and Laval University. On leaving the latter institution, he went to Montreal and studied law under the late Sir John Abbott and the Hon. R. Laflamme, who prominently featured him in the real bar. He was called to the bar in 1884 and advanced rapidly in his profession. He was for a time a partner of the late Judge Pagnon. Later he formed a partnership with the late Hon. Honoré Mercier and the Hon. R. D. Lévesque. Upon the death of Mr. Mercier, Mr. Gouin became the head of the firm.

In the intervals of a busy professional career, he found time to contribute to the legal literature of the Province of Quebec two valuable volumes which are regarded as standard authorities. The first of these was a book on the Quebec Municipal Code, with annotations; the second a work on commercial partnership and joint stock companies.

From the outset of his career he took a great interest in public questions, and it was not natural that he should become associated with provincial politics. He was elected to the Provincial Legislature in 1897, and in 1901 he was elected to the House of Commons. He was appointed an officer of the Legion of Honor in 1907, and was knighted at the Quebec Tercentenary in 1911. The occasion of the visit of the Premier of Wales, King George V, he was present by invitation at the Coronation of King George and Queen Mary in Westminster Abbey in June, 1911.

Sir Arthur Currie, who achieved fame as the Commander of the Canadian Corps in France during the latter part of the war, is now the principal of McGill University. He was born in Napier, Ontario, on December 5th, 1875. When a boy of sixteen he went to British Columbia and there, after a few months, he was to more remunerative employment. He attended a school for several years, graduated at the Spratford Collegiate Institution in Ontario. He found the thorough training he there received of inestimable value in the business life he afterwards took up. He spent a year or two in insurance work, and then as the Pacific Coast cities were growing rapidly in those days he went to Vancouver, where he was soon after engaged in a business which was then a new and untried one. He was successful in this business, and in 1901 he was elected to the position of president of the Commercial Union of British Columbia. He was elected to the position of president of the Commercial Union of British Columbia in 1901.

His interest in soldiering first began when he joined the Canadian Militia and took his connection with it very seriously. Eventually he rose to the command of the 5th Royal Canadian Garrison Artillery of Victoria, which had earned under his predecessor a name and place in the highest rank of artillery work. He then set himself to work to organize an infantry militia regiment. The men who composed it were for the most part, like himself, of Scottish extraction, so he christened his new unit, the Canadian Gordon Highlanders.

When the war broke out he at once offered his services to his country. He was an unranked lieutenant-colonel but his worth was speedily recognized at Valcartier when raw material was being welded into fighting men, and he shortly found himself in command of the 2nd Brigade. In the famous second battle of Ypres where there followed the Canadian troops the honor of saving the entire British line, Brigadier-General Currie first showed the world of what fighting stuff he was made. To stiffen the fighting line against dreadful odds was his task that day. The Canadians had to meet at Ypres that first terrible surprise gas attack. The men had no gas masks, of course. The forced retirement of the French had left the Canadian flank unprotected and enfiladed. But it was a case of saving the Channel ports, and the Dominion troops held their ground. General Alderson was promoted from the First Canadian Division to the command of the Canadian Corps in September, 1915. Major-General Currie succeeded to the command of the First Canadian Division. His success in this position was recognized by the fact that in the King's Birthday honors of June, 1917, the name of Major-General Currie figured as one upon whom His Majesty had been pleased to confer the K. C. M. G. Later in the same month Sir Arthur Currie succeeded Sir Julian Byng as commander of the Canadian Corps. The appointment of a Canadian to the command hitherto held by British officers was a source of great satisfaction to the Canadian fighters.

His subsequent career as a soldier is well-known. Suffice it to say that his name will ever be remembered as a prominent figure in the part played by the Canadian Corps under his command.

On his return to Canada he was appointed Inspector-General of the Forces of the Dominion—a position he resigned in May last to accept the principalship of McGill University. On the day following his appointment at McGill he was given a public address by the officers who served under him in France, and was presented with a handsome sword of honor and an illuminated address as a token of their regard and deep admiration for his magnificent services to Canada and the Empire in the Great War.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

The semi-annual examinations of North Milton School were held on Thursday, Dec. 23rd. A large number of ratepayers and visitors were present.

The pupils were examined in the different subjects by their teacher, Miss Mary Clark, assisted by Mr. C. E. MacKenzie and other visitors, and by their ready and correct answers showed that during the past term they have been carefully trained and taught. At the close of the examinations complimentary remarks were made by the trustees and others.

A pleasing feature of the event was the pretty trimmed Xmas tree prepared by the teacher on which was found a reminder to each scholar.

The following program was splendidly rendered by the pupils:

CUTICURA HEALS SISTER'S ECZEMA

In Rash All Over Body, Burned and Itched, Could Not Rest.

"My little sister had eczema all over her body. It came like a rash, and was burning and itching. She could get no rest, and we would have to take her clothing to take it off. She was cross and irritable, and the breaking out caused disfigurement. When we used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, we could see she was getting relief, and we just used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment when she was healed." Sunday School Lesson

JESUS TEACHING FORGIVENESS

(Matt. XVIII, 21-35)
(Sunday, January 9, 1921)
"If ye forgive men their trespasses, your Heavenly Father will also forgive you."—Matt. vi, 14.

The Warning in the Lord's Prayer (Matt. 6: 12-15) Our Lord knew that the hardest thing for us to do would be really to forgive our enemies. That petition of the Model Prayer is the only one which he elaborates. There are seven petitions in the Lord's Prayer occupying in our translation fifty-five words. The petition for forgiveness "as we forgive our debtors" occupies, with the two verses elaborating it, forty-one words, against forty-three words for the other six petitions. Thus emphatically does Christ insist that God's forgiveness of us is conditioned on our forgiving our enemies; and when we pray the Lord's Prayer with an unforgetting spirit we do a terrible thing; we actually pray that God will not forgive our own sins. A stern warning against unforgetfulness could not be devised.—Amos R. Wells, L.L.D.

Peter's question, which arose out of the instructions in verses 16-17 no doubt seemed to him to purpose an extremely wide limit of forgiveness in "seven times." The rabbis only required four. He perhaps expected praise, or even a "diminution" of the number, but he forgot that offences remembered are not forgiven. There is no more insincere speech than the common one, "I can forgive, but I cannot forget." Whether we read our Lord's answer as seventy times seven, or as "seventy times and seven," it equally implies boundlessly and always. "The two perfect numbers are multiplied together to express completeness. Man's mercy is to have no limits, just as God's has none; and because this unlimited forgiveness is the law of the kingdom, "therefore" the parable is told. It has three main stages, which we consider in order.

I. The bankrupt debtor forgiven (vv. 23-27). The series of events present corresponding facts in the kingdom, but the main purpose is to emphasize the two points of the immense debt and the free remission. We do not need, then, to strain the interpretation to find something in the process of pardon to answer to such features as the formal audit or the command to sell the debtor and his family. The relation of a sinner to God's law is not completely represented by that of a debtor to a creditor; nor is the repentance, which does not set for mercy "in vain, fully set forth by the prayer, "Have patience, and I will pay thee all." The intention is not to teach the evangelical doctrine of the means of forgiveness, but simply to sketch the position of the members of the kingdom as recipients of forgiveness. There need be no surprise, therefore, that no allusion is made to the work of Christ as the medium of forgiveness, a subject which did not come within the scope of the parable at all. The King, of course, is God. The view of sin as debt is common in Scripture, and rests upon the fact that all sin is a failure to discharge our obligation to God and a spending on ourselves or others of the riches which we receive from Him in order that we may render them back to Him. Though the figure of debt does not reach to the bottom of the guilt of sin, it brings into prominence the thought that there is a person to whom we are indebted, not merely an impersonal law of duty which we have broken. This may owed talents not pence; for there are no small sins, since they are all the misuse of such great benefits. Christ does not think that man's sin is trivial. The sum passing imagination; and if we think of the constancy of our acts of sin, and of the greatness of the atonement which may be expressed by the least of them, we shall begin to understand that "all that debt" is more than our amounts to. A beam entering an empty room shows it full of notes in the visible air. The light of that reckon-
