DUDES IN GOLDEN BRACELETS. Gotham Sweet Wear Them and General Notice has been given to them. "Fads" are not new to-day. The exclusive property of the gentler sex. It has come the fashion for their brothers to don the bracelet. The smallest of New York's jeunesse d'ee do not consider their toilet complete unless concealed beneath their cuffs upon one arm the sport a tiny curl of gold. Olive Summer Teall, despite his brunette wife, wears an armband of gold. He seldom takes the pains to hide it, and after it can be seen slipped down over his hand. It is of gold, narrow, and made of links fastened by a tiny gold pull. Who carries the key of this pulchre remains secret. "Ollie" cannot take the bracelet off. Berry Wall and many other mentioned by The Town Journal are similarly ornamented. The fad has also traveled Englandward. A very swell American, but one who makes his permanent home across the water, is now visiting the land of his birth. He wears upon his arm a gold linked bracelet, which is fastened with a radii disk upon which his name and address is engraved. General Sicles perhaps had more souvenir presents given him by his feminine friends than any other New York man. Among these presents are a couple of bracelets. He denies wearing them, though, and says that they grace only their cases in his wardrobe. General Hamilton, despite his age, wears a brace. It is made from the gold of one of his first wife's pieces of jewelry, and has her initials entwined with his own upon it. The general never goes without this circlet. -Chicago Tribune.

A Nainsook Cloak and Cap. The cloak shown in Fig. 1 and the cap in Fig. 2 form a dainty costume for a little girl. The nainsook is not serviceable or practical for ordinary wear, but for a summer wedding, or any dressy entertainment, nothing could be more suggestive of juvenile elegance. The fabric used is silver nainsook, the tight fitting waist of the cloak being of a double thickness, and the full skirt being edged with a cord and finished at the bottom with a hem six inches wide, and lined with the narrow collar or cape is made of very fine needlework, and edged with an em- FIG. 2 - NAINSOOK bordered ruff. CAP. Eight inches deep. The cuffs are also of embroidery, edged with a narrow ruff, and the puffed upper sleeve is of nainsook over a tight lining of the same. When worn, a low-necked dress of thin mull is effect in charming. The cap is made of the same material, as may be seen by the illustration, the straight band over the head being a semicircularly edged with a full ruff and a puffed crown of plain nainsook. If desired, they may be made over colored silk linings, but the white seems by far the most fairy-like.

Do Girls Need Chaperons? Though much may be said about the independent American girl reading no outside the girl who is watched over carefully by the one who is most desirous of her welfare. It is really pitiful to see the hundreds of young girls going their own way, seeking their own amusements and their own company without an older or wiser hand to guide them. In many summer hotels there are young women unaccompanied even by a maid, and though it may represent a type of American independence, it certainly does not reflect credit either upon the girl or those who should be her guardian in deeds as well as in name. Another day we read a mother say to her son, "My dear boy, I do not like to have you go with that girl; you know nothing about her." "Yes, I do," answered the son; "she is one of the S—s," mentioning the name of a well-known family, "and she is an awfully jolly girl." "That may all be," responded the mother. "But the fact that her people allow her to go off nights and sit on the end of the pier with you without a chaperon is enough for me to know that she hasn't been brought up as I would want a daughter of mine to be." Young men may talk against having a third party along, but in their hearts they respect the girl more whose parents or guardians show that they respect her by not allowing her to do these things that will give rise to talk. It is our firm belief that there would be fewer unhappy marriages if girls were treated as jewels to be guarded, than burdens to be pushed off as soon as they arrive at years when they are popularly supposed to be able to take care of themselves. Just as much fun can be had with an older person along, if the fun is of the purely innocent sort that it ought to be, and certainly if there is a desire in young people's minds to stray from the paths of conventional and harmless enjoyment, then the need of a chaperon for such is self-evident. -Philadelphia Times.

Gratitude. A housekeeper who has been employing a colored woman for several months was surprised to see her appear last week in a hat trimmed heavily with crabs. "Why, Julia," she asked, "is any of your family dead?" "No, no," was the reply, "but one of my best customers gave me this hat, and I didn't want her to think I don't appreciate nothing." -New York Tribune.

The Elliott Case. BRANFORD, Sept. 4.—Many citizens of this city are willing to vouch for the truth of Frank Elliott's statement that he was cured of kidney disease of six years' standing by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Everyone is astonished at the rapidity of thoroughness with which these pills do their work. As one who had tried them says: "A man feels, after using them, as though he had never enjoyed life before." The renal case, in which a paralytic was cured by Dodd's kidney pills, opened the eyes of the people in this vicinity to the virtues of this remedy.

The Test of Time. William Holder, sailmaker, St. John, writes: "This is to certify that for nearly a year I suffered with dyspepsia, indigestion and severe bilious headaches. I lost flesh and became very weak. I was recommended to use Hawker's Tonic and Pills, and am pleased to say that they completely cured me. I gained flesh very fast, and became hearty and stronger than I had ever been, and have never suffered since, now over one year."

An ounce of prevention, &c. Do not neglect that cough! One bottle of Putnam's Emulsion will cure the most obstinate cough, taken now, may save you weeks of illness, and a long doctor's bill. Large bottle, only 50 cents.

Simply Monstrous. "Jiminy Cricket hain't that a big 'un," was the exclamation heard from youngsters on Boylston street a few afternoons since, as the writer stood conversing with a gentleman near the Albany railroad bridge not far from the junction of West Chester Park and Boylston streets. The cause of the boys' surprise was found to be an announcement upon the long bill-board lately erected for a famous theatrical company, opposite from where we were standing. A few minutes' observation convinced us that the boys were not the only persons attracted to this enormous spread of matter. The board is the very largest in the world and the amount of paper used to cover it would make the fortune of every Italian Count rhapsodist upon the street of Boston. Laborers stopped work, horse-drawn pedicab drivers in work as well as Mr. J. W. Black, Boston's only well known pug-nugger, turned in his diamond-tipped dollar, and a great many of the best bill-board artists in the city were engaged in an evening's photographic of the statements regarding the board. Among the bills of which was the following: "It hain't the fat while Old Jed Prouty is away!" "Every mother should have it in the house for the cure of all ailments of the stomach or limbs." Think of it, Johnson's Anodyne Lincture, unlike any other, was originated by an old family physician in 1810, without real merit could it have survived for eighty years? The following letters, some of which nearly six feet tall, proved to be what astonished the boys. This big sign demonstrates one point clearly: the courage and persistence requisite to be successful advertisers, like L. S. Johnson & Co., the proprietors of Johnson's Anodyne Lincture, nothing daunts them. But after all, it is their forcible, persistent, courageous style of advertising which has made them successful. Their signs are not classed among the foremost advertisements of the day.

A Big Mistake. The moulting season, or the season when the feathers of their feathers will soon be at an end. The process is one that in certain respects debilitates and prevents them from laying. The reason of this is that the growing of new feathers requires all the nitrogen and phosphates contained in the food and there is none left to form the egg. A curious fact about the hen, and one that illustrates the foregoing statement, is this, if a hen's leg be broken during the laying season, she will lay her eggs without shells until the break is mended. The reason for this must be that all the lime contained in the food is required to unite the broken bone, there is therefore none for the formation of egg shells. The formation of new feathers does not require any carbonaceous or fat producing food, consequently well fed hens get very fat during the moulting. Many farmers and poultry raisers not understanding all about these things kill off their old hens because they think they have stopped laying and are fat. This is a great mistake, because if the proper material be furnished them with their food to supply the increased demand for nitrogen and phosphates before mentioned the old hens will be through shedding feathers much sooner and will begin laying on the approach of cold weather and will continue to lay prolifically all winter, while the young pullets, reserved to take the place of the old hens, may not begin to lay until much later in the season. Very many people have learned from experience that Sheridan's Condition Powder mixed once daily with their food will supply the extra material needed to strengthen and invigorate their hens, enabling them to grow new plumage quickly and commence laying early. Those who commence now to use Sheridan's Powder, will find that their young pullets will commence to lay at from four to six months old, and will lay continuously through the winter. The Farmers' Poultry Raising Guide, published by L. S. Johnson & Co., at 22 Custom House Street, Boston, at 25 cents, contains a vast amount of information on this subject. Johnson & Co. will send, post paid, two 25 cent packages of powder and one Guide for 60 cents, or a 24 lb can of the powder, postage or express prepaid, for $1.20 and a guide free.

Knoxton, September 14.—Lieutenant Colonel Smith, commandant of the 14th P. W. O. Rifles, has been notified by General Herber that the conduct of the members of "F" company must be investigated at Montreal, and that if the members will not attend there they will be taken prisoners and escorted to that city. They were charged with insubordination, having refused on May 24th, while returning from Montreal, to divide up the various cars to themselves, and not getting it they remained in Montreal all night, coupling up next day. The commandant had ordered that they enter several cars in squads.

W. H. ROGERS. AMHERST, N. S., May 27, 1893. THE GROSSER DYSPEPSIA CURE CO. GENTLEMEN.—I am 71 years of age. Have been afflicted with sick headache most of my life, which developed into Dyspepsia of a mild type about twenty years ago, and has continued to grow worse until during the past seven or eight years I have not been able to take a drink of cold water or milk, as they would produce severe pains and sometimes vomiting. I have been subject to severe pains in the chest, with dizziness, which have been more frequent during the past three or four years. My month was furred up in the mornings, accompanied with bad breath. My case was yearly growing worse. During all this long period I have tried many popular medicines, as well as prescriptions from the regular medical practitioners, but without producing any improvement. In the fall of '92 I concluded to try a bottle or two of your medicine and such were its effects that I continued it and now I can drink cold water or milk without any inconvenience. Those daily pains are all gone and my mouth is as sweet as a baby's. In short, your medicine has cured me and I am sure that all Dyspeptics can be cured by its use. (Signed) W. H. ROGERS, Late Inspector of Fisheries for Nova Scotia.
