

AUTUMN FASHIONS ARE MODELLED AT FLOWER SHOW

Seen above are two of the models who paraded the latest fall fashions before the large audience at the provincial flower show in Summerside Tuesday evening.

Miss Alleen Brophy, left, is wearing a tan tunic cloth and styled by David with a tan Norwegian fox collar. Mrs. Earl Smith (right) models a black British wool topped with a white milk collar. A white fur fabric hat completes her ensemble. The fashion show was presented with the compliments of Mackenzie's House of Fashion, Summerside.

ELLEN'S DIARY

September, Harvest Month As Autumn Shades Creep

September? Yes, by this morning. "It comes in on a Saturday," one said today, "and it will have the Harvest-moon!" "It's my month," a September child smiled. "And I love to leave the harvest - fields and the harvest - scenes. And the autumn shades creeping over the farmlands: the tawny pastures, the bright tints on woodland and tree. And first furrows," she added. "And the crickets' song!" "We heard it for the first this September-moon indicates that at last, lands-out schools recall their vacationing students. "Back now, you must come." "I reminds them, "freed and fit from your holidays, into your classrooms once more!" "And the trek, which has already commenced, continues to take young folks home, across, it may be, miles, to prepare to enter some wide-dung and demanding pattern of learning. By day, Granddaughter herself will presently say "Good-bye" to this farm-place that is a holiday and book for her "second year" collected, will find the number of students, who leave the doors and lanes of rural spots to attend some school or college of their choice. And we, that are left, shall be lone, yet happy for these youngsters who have the right and privilege to choose their vocation, and fashion their course, in so many happy associations, toward some ultimate and satisfying goal. And this very morning, perhaps as we gather up the chips with which to kindle our breakfast - fire, we shall see the plane flying over, carrying away summer-vacationists we have known, and enjoyed - going home now, winging across miles, summer-trails of land and sea forsaken, facing away inland to the new of the day. . . . The pet of cat will be there-ash that will dine on no more Island-sparrows, nor lacing, hear the surf roll in and break against the gulf - shore. Not before next summer. It will, if all goes well, return all to a loved "Holiday Castle" again. Will the sugar-staples they have planned about it, be noticeably grown by then? And the twigs gathered from the coupe be tinder-dry to make a welcoming fire on their hearth? And from the Highway over the valley's rim, what an increased road of traffic we shall bear-the ebb and flow of it, all through this day, as folks facing home "make the boat." It is as well we shall not see it at close hand the summer-quest go, who find partings diffi-
