

W.C.T.U. NOTES

THE AFTERMATH OF E. P. TAYLOR

May I protest both in the name of the church and the board of it which I represent, as well as a private citizen, against the publication in your columns of the eulogy of E. P. Taylor...

THEY DON'T MIX

Alcohol and gasoline don't mix. A person who drinks should not drive a car. A recent survey made by MacLean's Magazine found that: 1—"Drunks at the wheel are our No. 1 highway scandal."

LIQUOR

It has been estimated that the chaotic inroad of liquor in America "exceeds that of tuberculosis, cancer and polio combined."

The WEEK at S.D.U.

Take this week, add another to it, and add still another, and you will find that there are no more weeks. Faulty arithmetic? Certainly not; in two weeks' time there will be no more weeks...

A week from last Tuesday, April 26 — saw the final college dance of the year. With the hall decorated with red and white streamers from which were suspended balloons, this dance, sponsored by the St. Dunstan's A.A.A. in honor of the many outstanding athletes in the outgoing senior class, was certainly enjoyable, and was reminiscent of the autumn football dances so popular with the students.

Appointments of students to the executive of the A.A.A. were made public last week. Named to the position of president for next year's organization was Reg Doucette; the position of vice-president, Wally Field. To decide who would take up the onerous task of Secretary Treasurer, elections were held to choose between Aiden MacDonald and Andrew Redmond...

On Thursday night, April 27, Miss Frances Montgomery of the Maritime School of Social Work, Halifax, gave an informative talk to a group of students on the subject of social work, its scope, the requirements of the profession, and the possibilities for college graduates in this almost untapped field.

Additional honors will be bestowed on our rector, Rt. Rev. R. V. MacKenzie, and St. Dunstan's as well, when the University of New Brunswick confers an honorary Doctor of Laws degree on him at the annual exercises May 18 and 19. We students are rightly proud of this.

No doubt many of you are concerned about the outcome of our campus softball league now in full swing. Well, it isn't over yet, but there is one item in the sensational vein, and that, of course, is the drubbing handed the slugging seniors by the underdog All-Stars to the tune of 9-3. That defeat, incidentally, is the only one suffered thus far by the seniors, who, despite this ignominious setback, are leading the league. As for the Juniors they are the same ever-battling team, probably the best squad... probably the ultimate winners. With a bit of luck for a change, they would...

The Junior Prom Committee, with next year's Student Union president, Charles Gorman, as chairman, is quite busy these days making the necessary preparations for the annual prom to be held this year in the Charlottetown Hotel on Monday, the 22nd. Invitations are being sent out, and no means of making this evening most enjoyable are being overlooked. The Juniors are indeed determined to honor the graduates in a manner befitting them.

I.S.S. activities for the year were completed last week with the posting of a very favorable financial report by Secretary Wilbert McInnis. The position of this society is such that President Charles Kelly reports that it is expected that another D.P. student will be brought to the campus next year. Incidentally, St. Dunstan's will be represented at the Canadian seminar this summer by a Junior, Mark MacGuiness, who, we feel, will prove to students from all over Canada that St. Dunstan's though lacking in quantity, produces students of a high calibre. Mark will be a most worthy representative, and we all wish him an educational and enjoyable summer in the land of the Fleur-de-Lys, France.

Seniors will soon be graduates. Yes, on May 22 — not too far distant — the annual closing exercises will be held with the largest graduating class in the history of St. Dunstan's. Rt. Rev. J. A. Murphy, former Rector and noted speaker, will address the graduates. This will, indeed, be a joyous occasion for the students and probably most of all for the parents, whose sacrifice in many cases will be responsible for making Graduation Day a reality for their sons and daughters. St. Dunstan's will undoubtedly be losing many key campus figures, and a class which excelled in almost every activity from sports to debating. For many years now it has been lamented: "What will we do when this class graduates?" Truly, they will be missed, not only as friends, but also as students, athletes, debaters, actors, writers, and organizers.

Before bringing this final column to a close, your writer deems it necessary to thank publicly a student who assisted him in this sphere by often typing these notes and even writing them (the three good ones). He is Bert Lannan. Thanks a lot, Bert!

UNION ROAD Y. P. U.

That's all for now... now! Forever, as far as your writer is concerned. Next year — someone else. It's been an invaluable experience, this chatting with you; thanks for listening, or rather, reading. Till next... till... well, so long!

A poem for meditation was read by Marjorie Lambert entitled "God Cares", closing hymn "Does Jesus Care", and Benediction. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Roll call was answered by eleven members and three visitors. Collection amounted to $1.01. A letter was read from Irene Bruce.

The committees were appointed for the next meeting: Devotion, Norma Yeo; recreation, Sterling Yeo, James Gill and Mary Gill. The next meeting is to be a social meeting held at the home of Mary Gill. After a period of recreation in charge of Dean Ravenhill a delicious lunch was served by the hostess. The remainder of the evening was spent with music.
