Audrey Jenkins, Women's Editor, Phone 4-8506

Mr. and Mrs. Austin L. Burgess left recently for their home in Belmont, Mass., after spending several weeks at their home in Murray Harbor.

James Hughes, Mrs. Bernard McQuaid, Mrs. Elmer MacQuaid, Philip Hughes and Joseph McQuaid have returned to their homes in Tracadie after attending the funeral of Mrs. Emile Charron in Lynn, Mass. The late Mrs. Charron was the former Annie Hughes of Tracadie, P.E.I.

Mrs. Floyd Jay was hostess to the members of Pi-squid East WI recently. Following routine business, a contest was put on by Mrs. Wallace Birt and won by Mrs. Alton Jay and Mrs. Floyd Jay—drawn by Mrs. Alton Jay. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Harold Jay.

Mr. and Mrs. S.L. Caseley, Kelvin Grove, have returned home after spending a few days visiting their son and daughter-in-law, Rev. L.G. and Mrs. A.

Caseley at Juniper, N.B. They were accompanied by Mrs. Heath Mayhew, Margate, who was the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. T.C. MacKenzie and family, Douglas, N.B.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jay, accompanied by sons Merlin and Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Hendricken, Pisquid East, left recently for Boston, Mass. They plan to attend a couple of hockey games while there.

Alton Bulger, on the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Kensington, spent the past weekend at his home at West Point.

Mrs. Emmanuel Gallant and Mrs. Anthony Gallant recently returned home after attending the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Allen in Hamilton, Ont.

Gary Champion of the Bank of Commerce, who was transferred from Saint John, N.B., to Nassau, Bahamas, left by air after spending a day with members of his family at Kensington and Summerside.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gallant, Oromocto, N.B., and family have recently rented a house in Piusville where they will spend the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hickox, Amherst, N.S., accompanied by Mrs. Richard Caston, Toronto, were recent guests of their aunt, Mrs. Daniel Hickox, Kensington.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Adams and Mitchell of Saint John, N.B., were weekend visitors with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Adams, Elmsdale.

Mrs. James Currie, Elmsdale, has returned home from a visit with her son, Lorne, who has been transferred to the Bank of Nova Scotia in Moncton, N.B.

Things they want would amount to quite a sum," his thoughts raced on. "Suppose I spent one-third for these Christmas gifts and set aside the remaining two-thirds in a special bank-account toward paying the expenses of a two-week motor vacation trip for us all next summer. I'll give the kids a set of Mobil Travel Guides for Christmas to read, and to each child a Christmas letter telling about the trip, and appointing each one to carry out an important part."

Half dreaming, half awake, he imagined the children getting ready to start. The family received the "dream gift" with delight. The plan was carried out the following Summer, and when they returned, the children were already talking about "next year's motor trip" and what part of the country they would visit!

MONDAY DINNER
Grapefruit Juice—Veal Chop (any cut) Baked with Spaghetti in Tomato Sauce—Butter & Chopped Kale with Diced Cooked Celery—Pineapple—Banana Compote—Coffee, Tea, Milk.

MEASUREMENTS LEVEL:
VEAL CHOPS WITH SPAGHETTI IN TOMATO SAUCE

6 good-sized veal chops (any cut) 1/2" thick
1 tsp. seasoned salt
1 tbs. vegetable oil
2 (1 lb.) cans spaghetti in tomato sauce
1 tsp. instant onion
1/4 tsp. Tabasco
1/2 c. broth
3 tbs. grated Parmesan cheese

Rub chops all over with seasoned salt. In large skillet that can go to table, heat oil; add chops in one layer; sauté until browned. Add spaghetti in tomato sauce, instant onion, Tabasco and broth. Cover. Simmer 30 min. Remove from oven. Uncover; dust over the Parmesan cheese; return to oven 10 min. to brown.

Note: For a Continental touch, season veal chops in tomato sauce further with 1 tsp. anchovy paste.

Dad Explains His Favorite Sandwich to the Chef

"First I spread a big piece of lightly-toasted French bread on one side with chopped egg salad seasoned with a little table-salt. Then I put on a slice of cooked ham. Over this I goes a slice of Swiss cheese. Then comes a layer of thin-sliced tomato, and a sprinkle of salt and pepper. On top, I put a thin slice of lean bacon. Then grill the sandwich about 5 min. or until the bacon is brown and crisp."

"Ah! tres bien, Monsieur, you have my order for your favorite sandwich. Et voilà!"

HEATHER SEPARATES

Grade schoolers can reap a harvest of heather for the coming Christmas holidays in a new separates set that adds up to real fashion fun. The solid-colored heather wool cardigan is worn over a contrasting cotton tuck-in blouse with a Peter Pan collar. Completing the outfit is a plaid heather action skirt tailored with a kicky centre pleat and an angled pocket tabbed at a slant.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

Summerfield CWL Reports On Catechetical Program

Mrs. Everett and Mrs. Earl Clow were hostesses for the December meeting of St. James, Summerfield Parish Council, CWL. In the absence of the president, the meeting was chaired by Mrs. Reginald Smith, vice-president. A report was given of the meeting held at St. Mary's in connection with the catechetical program. This was attended by Rev. Basil Croken, spiritual director, Mrs. St. Clair Croken, spiritual convener and Mrs. Joseph Croken, education convener.

The social action programs had been received and it was decided to study these in conjunction with the constitution on the church.

The January meeting will be devoted to report forms, and a convener was reminded to bring their papers. At this meeting subscriptions to the Canadian league will be received by the convener, Mrs. Everett Reeves.

Altar committee for next month will be Mrs. Ambrose Curley and Mrs. George Croken. Plans were made to decorate the church for Christmas, and Mrs. Gerard Gauthier and Mrs. Pius Croken volunteered to assist the committee. Money was voted for church expenses. Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Everett Reeves.

ST. MARK'S GUILD

A pot luck supper preceded the December meeting of St. Mark's Anglican Church Guild held in the church hall at Kensington on Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. David L. McInnis presided and led in the opening devotions.

The treasurer, Mrs. William Thompson, reported a satisfactory sum realized from the annual pantry sale and bazaar. Mrs. J.G. Townsend read a letter.

A THOUGHT AT CHRISTMAS TIME

Ray Stewart of Crockett & Storey

Every successful business is based upon public confidence and good will. These things cannot be bought. They must be earned.

The public knows that certain stores are recognized as "reputable" and others are not.

And what is the secret ingredient of this important thing which every store wants—a good reputation? It is many things. It is reflected in everything the owner and his employees do in their business dealings and even in their civic and social activities.

It is the way the phone is answered. It is created by the type of advertising a firm does; by the service given to customers; by the manner complaints are handled; by the courteous and helpful attention given to customers by everyone from the sales people to the delivery men; by those little things "above and beyond the call of duty" which every customer remembers—and every good business man tries to do.

And, of course, it is the big things—good merchandise, fair prices, and integrity. You just can't beat this combination.

IODE PRESENTS PAINTING

An original oil painting by George Reid Barton was presented yesterday, December 9 at 4 p.m. to the Confederation Centre Gallery at a short ceremony at the Centre. The landscape in oil entitled "Sand Dunes" was personally selected diplomatic obligation, in the family hierarchy, was to bear gracefully with the grandparent generations' sturdy assumption that it knew best how to behave.

But now we have you youthful intermediate parents undertaking to tell the grandparents how to shape up, in relation to grandchildren. And to that I say: Come off it. What are you trying to do, translate flesh-and-blood grandparents into mechanical robots, geared to make least "trouble" for you?

Even supposing you induce the grandparents to wear a false face of impartiality, overall, for the sake of peace, allegiance, you don't think for a minute that the camouflage fools the kids, do you? They still know who the favorite is, even though by their grousing and griping, they've managed to unhorse him, somewhat.

Have you ever stopped to consider that God Himself has favorite persons, so the Bible tells us? Among others, the apostle John, for example.—M.H.

MARY HAWORTH

Mother Insists Children Should Be Treated Alike

Dear Mary Haworth I am in some disagreement with your answer to ES, the mother of two sons, one brain-damaged, whose problem is her own mother's favoritism towards the normal child.

In effect, you charge ES with being officiously managerial in the family relationships between the generations. You indicate that special preferences are to be expected in any case, and should be taken in stride and considerably counterbalanced, by providing special notice for all from other sources.

We too, have a retarded child, our second, John, 6. We find the caretaking difficulties increase as he gets older, on the score of trying to treat all the children alike. This point was emphasized to us by psychologists: All the children should be treated as nearly alike as possible, for the welfare of each.

We also have the problem of grandmother favoritism. One grandmother definitely prefers our firstborn, Ellen, 8, which wasn't a problem until John realized it. The other grandmother favors John.

Grandmothers are very special persons to children. Our children see their two grandmothers several times a week, but still each visit is a special event. We finally had to put our foot down on the favoritism. We had some trouble bringing my mother around, but now she cooperates.

While I was and am grateful for the relief, so to speak, of the other grandmother's special devotion to John, nevertheless I've had to show her the unfairness of favoritism. Both grandmothers still have their favorites, but have learned to manage in such a way that it isn't obvious.

I can't see any good in favoritism for one child over another by anyone closely related to the family. I feel it would do considerable harm in the long run to the child who feels rejected. Sincerely, V.F.

Dear Mary Haworth: Doubtless you are flooded with mail in reply to your surprising comment to ES, concerning her problems with her exceptional child and her mother's marked preference for his normal younger brother.

My guess is that any letters praising your stand will come from doting grandmothers, or from persons who've never had a handicapped child.

As the mother of one, I can tell you that the biggest problem I face is our other children's resentment of the attention showered on the handicapped boy, which, in their way of thinking, he does nothing to merit.

Meanwhile, grandparent, and sometimes husbands, "diagnose" the problem by stating simply that there's nothing wrong with the handicapped child that proper training couldn't overcome!

We mothers wouldn't be human if we didn't resent our night, and psychoanalytic probing of our emotions isn't the way to harmony. Institutional care for the child would be the answer. But it is out of reach, financially, of most of us.—G.R.

Dear Correspondents: Time was when the youthful intermediate generation of parents subscribed to the theory that their home of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Campbell Cape Traverse, P.E.I.—was the scene of a happy gathering recently in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carver of Moncton, N.B. who observed their 25th wedding anniversary. More than 50 relatives and friends assembled to extend their good wishes.

The table was centered with a decorated two-tiered anniversary cake topped with anniversary symbols and flanked with tall white candles. It was cut by the guests of honor.

Mrs. Carver was the former Dora Lord of Cape Traverse, P.E.I. and the couple were married by Rev. Barker of Bedeque at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lord.

The couple were escorted to the seat of honor by Mrs. David Murphy and Gordon Garland. Mr. E. C. Bell was master of ceremonies for the evening. An address was read by D. Murphy while Mr. Cedric Campbell and Mrs. Gordon Garland made a special presentation from the Lord family. Other silver gifts were presented by Mrs. Cyril Wheatley and Mrs. Frank MacWilliams also made a presentation. Appreciation was expressed by Mr. and Mrs. Carver for the good wishes and kindness of all. Mrs. George Riley circulated the guest book. Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social hour was enjoyed.

EAST BALTIC

Lyman Rose, Lakeville, underwent surgery in the P.E.I. Hospital, Charlottetown.

Roy Robertson returned to his home in Red Point, having been a patient in the P.E.I. Hospital receiving treatment for a back ailment.

Alfred Stubbart, Souris, is a patient in the Souris Hospital. Mr. Stubbart's host of friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bruce, Cherry Valley, who, on December 4 celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. Bruce is a former resident of Kingsboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ching returned from their honeymoon in South Carolina and will take up residence at Basin Head where Mr. Ching is a prosperous farmer and a large potato grower and Mrs. Ching teaches school at East Baltic. Congratulations are heartily extended to this popular young couple.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Happy Memories Remain As The Year Is Ending

More and more as the December days wing toward it, we prepare for the Festival of Christmas, now nearing its anticipation, its significance, its charm, and its plans, enter now into our daily round. There is an increasingly warm feeling at heart. Now for a time, all too brief surely, yet to make a bright weaving in the fabric of the year, we see the spirit of love being made manifest. Now thought, that in our too-busy lives have been, before this, more or less suspended, demand some reflection. Now we think not so much of ourselves as of others. Christmas nears.

A new kindness dwells in our hearts. "It won't be long now before Christmas comes," we overheard Peter say today to Alex, well pleased to have it so.

And with its coming, another year draws to a close. We do not rejoice in its aging. It is as though we are aware of the departure from our surroundings or Island of some proven good friend. The memories however will remain. We shall review them, take them out of our treasure chest one by one, as we sometimes do with the little mementos we have saved through the years: a bit of ribbon, a faded four-leaf clover, a pebble or other souvenir from some distant excursion and scene, happy reminders of days and times bygone.

So we shall recall items of the year, we have loved. We shall see the sparkling over-all white of the winter-spread fields, hear the blithe tinkle of the spring streamlets, which at Alderlea ever point a course down hill to the stream; the flowerings of summer past will come to mind, the scent of hay new-mown, wild strawberries ruby-red and the ferns of a dell. And the sweet-sad of the change which sets the autumn colors sweeping in flood over the length and breadth of the farmlands.

We will remember the bright rippling notes of a "goldfinch, the sound of young voices at play, the fall of the familiar footsteps, the face of some loved one and friend. Sweet of some morning's break we have especially enjoyed, will come back to us, the magic and glory of a day going to rest-slipping off into the shadows which set in pretty relief the trees on the hills. The wash of a tide, a sun-dappled woods' path—there memories too we shall carry with us on into the new year's ways.

Meanwhile, during the time leading up to it, we shall holiday. But not without first expressing thanks on behalf of the Family for so much, so many kindnesses received throughout this year which now nears its close. So from all of us, from James, the head of his line, down to Cathy Ann, the youngest of the name, we once more in the turn of time send out to each and all who read these words, the same old wish, warm and sincere: A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

"We wish you the joy of Christmas. The spirit's sweet repose, We wish you the peace of Christmas."

To mark the year's close: We wish you the hope of Christmas. To cheer you on your way, And a heart of faith and gladness, To face each coming day!"

Until the New Year—Diary—Good-night.

Veal Chops, Spaghetti—Dreamy Combination

The children had been making out lists of what they "wanted for Christmas." Late that evening when Dad was alone, he read them over. "Rather expensive," he mused, "perhaps I can think up something that would be less expensive yet worthwhile for all of them and that Mom and I could share."

FAVORITE SNACK
He settled down with his favorite late evening snack sandwich and a cup of hot tea at a small table, next to his favorite chair.

"Perhaps, I'll find a Christmas idea in one of these," he thought, opening one of the seven books in a travel guide set. "I understand each contains unusual information about the states covered in the seven areas, the hotel and motel rates and available restaurants. It even tells how to save money while traveling. It sure would be fun if the wife and I could take the kids in the station wagon on a vacation motor trip so they could get acquainted with our great country. Wish I could afford it."

He looked over the children's Christmas gift lists again. "The
