HE MADE A MISTAKE!

"I made a mistake," the old man said, "To spend money on Shoes like those, And a tricking tear escaped from his eye As he looked at the holes in the toes."

He will never make such a mistake again, for hereafter we will buy GOFF BROS.' Solid Leather Boots. feb20

MANY NEAR SIGHTED PERSONS who come to us to have their eyes tested cannot see the above size letters ten feet off. Some cannot see letters more than twice the size at that distance, and yet never wear glasses. This is a great mistake, as progressive Myopia, or Near-Sight, leads to blindness. By the proper fitting of Glasses when first required, and attention to advice which we give free, further progression in near-sight is prevented and the Myopia sometimes disappears.

CAMPBELL'S QUININE WINE.

INVALUABLE in cases of Loss of Appetite, Weak or Painful Indigestion, Malaria, Lowness of Spirits, Fevers of all kinds, and as a general Strengthening of the System when weakened by changes of the season.

It is necessary to remember that there are many so-called Quinine Wines, but that the GREAT ORIGINAL is "Campbell's," and that the genuine bears our signature upon the label. The best proof of its value is the fact that its sale at the present time is larger than ever before.

The following certificate shows how CAMPBELL'S QUININE WINE is appreciated. Having submitted two samples of Quinine Wine, imitations of the genuine, along with a sample of our own, to the Public Analyst, we received the following reply:

"CAMPBELL'S is the only genuine Quinine Wine of the three samples examined at Messrs. Kenneth Campbell & Co.'s request."

WIMAN CONSPIRACY UNMASKED.

A Comprehensive View of the Evidence Against the Opposition Politicians, Backed up by Cozen Reasoning—How the Conspiracy Was Developed and Why Were the Workers a Terse and Vigorous Arraignment of the Wimanite Party by the High Commissioner.

(North American Review for May.)

(Concluded.)

NO CANADIAN HOSTILITY.

Again, Mr. Wiman has endeavored to excite hostility in the United States by charging the Canadian Government with discriminating against American vessels using our canals. No such discrimination exists. Canada has expended $41,000,000 on the canals from Lake Erie to Montreal, and is now expending $12,000,000 more to complete a 14-foot navigation throughout. Of this $24,000,000 have been spent on the Welland Canal. Of the 1,104,653 tons of freight which passed through that canal in 1889-90, more than eleven twelfths came from or was going to the United States' ports. All vessels coming from and going to the same ports pay the same tolls on our canals, whatever their nationality may be.

The assistance given by the Canadian Government has never been in any spirit of hostility to the United States, but simply as a means of developing Canada. The manner in which Mr. Wiman gloats over the McKinley bill as a great object lesson to aid in "the capture of Canada" leaves no room to doubt that this measure, so far as it affects Canada, was prompted by Mr. Wiman and his associates, Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Farrer. True to their vocation of preventing good feeling between the United States and Canada from being brought about by any reciprocal trade arrangement between the two countries, they endeavored to paralyze the Canadian Government in any negotiations with the United States, by the declaration that they would be swept from power by the voice of the people in twelve months. Sir John Macdonald, seeing the injury that such a statement would inflict upon any negotiations at Washington promptly remitted that question to the people at the polls. Brought face to face with the people, Mr. Wiman was at once discarded by his associates. Mr. Laurier and Sir R. Cartwright, who at once declared against the adoption of the United States tariff. Mr. Laurier's address to the electors and country contained these words: "Moreover the assertion that Unrestricted Reciprocity means discrimination against England involves the proposition that the Canada tariff would have to be assimilated to the American tariff. I deny the proposition." The organ of the Opposition in Nova Scotia took the same ground as did Sir Richard Cartwright and the party generally.

MUST BE ONE TARIFF.

The New York Tribune at once denounced the position taken by Mr. Laurier and his party in the following terms:

It [the Halifax Morning Chronicle] argues in favor of unrestricted and absolute reciprocity between Canada and the United States, with each country at liberty to adopt such tariff as it may prefer, and represents this, and no more than this, as the deliberate purpose of one party in the Canadian contest. If this is the fact, one party of Canadians closely resemble the baby which cried for the moon and got into a rage because the moon would not consent to be grasped. This nation has not the slightest notion of allowing Canada to open the back door as wide as it may please, while tariff enactments by the United States are closing the front door against sundry importations at New York and Boston. If anyone is silly enough to suppose such a plan is this country. All such representations may as well be put aside as utterly and widely at variance with anything Americans can possibly be brought to adopt.

Yet the country has witnessed the singular spectacle of Mr. Wiman thus thrown over, apparently, and discredited by all his associates, except Mr. Farrer, devoting all his time and energies to lobbying Congress, begging it to pass a resolution to influence an election in a foreign country. To the honor of Congress it refused thus to degrade itself, and left Mr. Wiman to manipulate his unveiled treason without the aid which he had so unblushingly sought.

The charge of "traitorism" is one which Mr. Wiman has fastened upon himself. In his brochure in your January number, entitled, "Can We Coerce Canada?" Mr. Wiman says:

It should always be borne in mind that the whole body of politics in Canada is permeated through and through with loyalty to the British throne, for which universal sentiment there is hardly cause for surprise. It must be remembered that Great Britain has treated Canada with the utmost liberality; that the Canadians are a practically self-governing community; and that, in addition to loans of British money in amounts second only to the vast credits given the Argentine Republic, which have recently brought such disaster in financial circles in London, no interference has been made, and nothing but kindness and generosity extended. To contemplate the cessation of a sentiment of loyalty to Great Britain, and to transfer the allegiance of a whole people to her great rival, is simply to contemplate a condition of traitorism that no political party could for one instant afford to assume.

MR. WIMAN AT BOSTON.

Mr. Wiman boasts that he is a British subject; yet after he had propounded his scheme for Commercial Union in an address to the Boot and Shoe Club at Boston in January last, when exception was taken to it by Mr. Murray on the ground that it did not ensure the annexation of Canada to the United States, the Boston Herald of January 22 reports:

"Mr. Wiman briefly replied to the arguments used by Mr. Murray. The speaker urged that if it was desired to lessen the power of England, that and could not be accomplished better than by Canada trading with the United States and ceasing to trade with Great Britain. 'The very thing Mr. Murray wants to accomplish,' said Mr. Wiman, 'will be better accomplished by the plan I propose than by the plan he proposes.'

If that is not sufficient, read Mr. Wiman's sworn evidence, page 752 of testimony taken by the Senate commission.

Suppose your commission should report in favor of Unrestricted Reciprocity between Canada and the United States, then suppose at the next general election, which takes place within the next 18 months, the Liberal party, adopting that as the sole plank in their platform, should be returned by a large majority, and Parliament should take on a Commercial Union or Unrestricted Reciprocity complexion, they would be in control of the Government; they would meet your invitation by a vote; that would have to go to England to be consented to by the royal authorities.

Suppose the English Government refused then the Canadians would be relieved from their fealty, which would be as much a justification for a Boston tea party as there was in 1776 or prior.

So that nothing could contribute so much to bring about annexation, if it is thought in the end to be desirable, as to have closer commercial relations.

IN CONCLUSION.

Brought face to face in the recent campaign with the electors, Sir Richard Cartwright declared that the opposition would not take the United States tariff, and repudiated his own henchmen, Farrer. Mr. Laurier went further and denied that their policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity involved discrimination against England. But the ugly fact remained that Mr. Wiman, convicted by the letters of Mr. Farrer and Mr. Hitt of being engaged in a treasonable conspiracy to subvert British institutions in Canada, still implored for "moral support" from the Congress and the people of the United States for the Laurier-Cartwright party, and the Government were sustained by a larger majority than they had at the previous general elections. To complete the discomfiture of the Opposition, this was followed by the publication of a letter from Hon. Edward Blake, one of the most able and respected members of the party, who, rather than bind himself to their policy, had ceased to be their leader, and who now declares that his refusal to go into battle with them was because he was unable to fight under false colors. Mr. Blake, who to-day represents that great body of the Opposition who, with few exceptions, are loyal to British institutions, has rudely torn the "mask" to which Farrer alluded from the faces of the conspirators, and the delusion of Unrestricted Reciprocity may be regarded as dead and buried.

CHARLES TUPPER.

Papa Made Me Drunk.

These are the last few words, repeated over and over again, of a little boy who recently died from the effects of whiskey. His father, an old acquaintance of mine, carried a jug of whiskey home with him from town, and gave each of his children a drink out of it. This child was brought under the control of the whiskey devil by this drink given to him, and slipped to the jug as soon as he could do so unobserved, to get as much of the fiery liquid as his cravings called for. When found he was lying on the floor by the jug, unable to move and insensible. The doctor was sent for, and he was roused sufficiently to say, and keep on saying till he died, "Papa made me drunk."—A. T. Goodloe.

The Irish Land Bill.

LONDON, April 30.—The government leader moved in the House of Commons to-day that precedence be given the Irish land purchase bill over orders of the day. Mr. Smith added that the government proposed to except from this motion Wednesday, May 6th, so as to enable the house on that day to debate the women's suffrage bill, as the government, he said, was pledged to give that day for the discussion of that measure. The Right Hon. Sir Henry James opposed any exception to Mr. Smith's motion, and moved as an amendment that the Irish land purchase bill be taken up every day until it passed through the committee stage. Sir Henry James' amendment was eventually carried by a vote of 218 to 159, amid loud opposition cheers.

Russia's Preparations.

LONDON, April 28.—A Vienna correspondent gives certain details in answer to the denial of warlike preparations of Russia. Several first-class fortresses, including Warsaw and Kovno, also second and several third-class fortresses are being reinforced for the reception of increased quantities of ammunition, provisions, field stores, etc. The network of railways leading up to Galicia and Bukovina is being extended. All these lines are under military supervision and the stations are supplied with military commanders. Everything has been made ready for the immediate transport of troops. All provincial and municipal officials stand under the direction of a committee at St. Petersburg, whose duty it is to prepare for the transformation of the army from a peace to a war-footing in the shortest possible time in case of emergency. A new army corps, the 20th, is being formed near the Galician frontier. Altogether, the conduct of Russia is said to be that of a nation getting ready for war.
