Island Ayrshire Breeders Club, according to an amendment to the by-laws and constitution of the organization agreed to by the directors at a well attended meeting held at the Experimental Farm yesterday afternoon. Mr. W. F. A. Stewart, president of the Club, presided over the meeting. Considerable discussion took place regarding the possibility of holding a breeding stock sale early next spring but the decision was finally deferred until a later date.

DELEGATES ENTERTAINED

Largely attended meetings have been a feature this week of the convention of the National Federation of Liberal Women now in session in Ottawa. Considerable interest and enthusiasm is being shown by the delegates. Island representatives have been widely entertained with Mr. Neil A. Matheson, M.P., extending a welcome to them and being host at a luncheon in the Parliamentary Restaurant. Hon. R. H. Winters, Minister of Public Works, also entertained them and the Nova Scotia delegates at a luncheon with Senator George H. Barbour and Mrs. Barbour, entertaining at a supper party. Courtesy was also extended them by Senator J. Walter Jones and Mrs. Jones.

CHARLOTTETOWN TRAVEL CLUB

On Wednesday night a very interesting meeting of the Travel Club took place in room C of the "Y" with the vice-president, Joan Connolly, presiding in the absence of the President, Lloyd MacLeod. Plans were finalized for the rummage sale which is to be held in the Junior Lounge of the "Y" on Saturday. It was suggested that a dance be held in the near future, and that a full-length movie be shown. The dates of these events will be announced later. The Travel Club's winter programme consists of much entertainment for the public and, judging by the increasing number of new members at each meeting, the programme should be a good one.

Alpha Y's Men's Club Observes 28th Anniversary

Last evening at the Y. M. C. A. the Alpha Y's Men's Club celebrated the twenty-eighth anniversary of the club's inception. Invitations were issued to all surviving charter members and the following were present: Jack MacNair, Reuel LePage and Reg Taylor, who have still retained unbroken membership, F. W. Turner, Justice Geo. Tweedy and Bev. Vanderstine.

The guest speaker was a former charter member, P. W. Turner, who was in his usual interesting and humorous form as he in retrospect traced the many interesting events and struggles which eventually culminated in the construction of the fine Y. M. C. A. building where this meeting was held. Mr. Justice Tweedy and Bev. Vanderstine also briefly addressed the meeting.

The meeting was presided over by Harvey McPherson and Merritt Forsythe, the latter favoring the club with a list of personalities in the public life of the city at that period. Jack MacNair followed with a ringing speech that brought down the house during which time he presented a gift from the three surviving members for his generous gift of past President's jewels which he formally presented.

A feature of the evening was the cutting of a huge birthday cake by Jack, Reuel and Reg. A quartet consisting of Cecil Santy, Lomar McAulay, Fred Pound and Ken MacKenzie rendered two fine Negro spirituals. Other guests of the evening were District Governor Geo. Meikle, Bruce McCullough, Walter LePage, Geo. Barter and Don Sedgewick.

The sing song was led by Walter McMurtry and O. K. Presby. Geo. McKnight gave a very encouraging report regarding the annual fiddling and dancing contest and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Announcement Is

There was no indication in the communiqué as to whether the Kremlin in agreeing to a meeting of Big Four foreign ministers or a meeting of chiefs of state, at a conference two weeks ago Molotov did not answer directly when asked whether Premier Georgi Malenkov would be willing to meet with Eisenhower, Churchill and Laniel.

The note was handed to the three embassies at 11:30 p.m. Thursday Moscow time. Two hours later it still was being translated in the embassies. Totalling eight pages, it is understood to contain a number of proposals in connection with the meeting.

In London, the British foreign office said the note was in reply to the three Western powers' note of Nov. 16. This called on Russia for the fourth time to negotiate settlements on Germany and Austria and clear the way for "real world peace."

Hints Soviet

Continued from page 1 numbers of them. "How can one speak such words at the present time when the Soviet Union does have the atomic bomb and does have the hydrogen bomb and when the Soviet Union is not behind other countries in this respect?"

"Nevertheless, the Soviet Union consistently calls for the prohibition and elimination of these weapons, despite the fact that the Soviet Union holds these weapons, despite the fact that the atomic weapon, be it in Soviet or in American hands, is equally effective as regards its force and its power."

Motion Defeated

Vlshinsky's proposal for the assembly to declare atomic, hydrogen and other types of weapons of mass destruction to be unconditionally prohibited, was defeated 32-to-8 with 14 abstentions. The Arab bloc and some others abstained. Only the Soviet bloc of five voted for it.

The recommendation for the Big Five powers to reduce armaments by one-third within one year was beaten by the same vote. A paragraph stating that the establishment of military, air and naval bases on foreign soil increases the threat of a new world war was defeated 29-to-13 with nine abstentions.

A proposal recommendation to the Security Council to take steps for eliminating such bases was defeated 32-to-7 with 12 abstentions. Finally, a proposal for the Assembly to condemn propaganda aimed at inciting enmity and hatred among nations was defeated 32-to-6 with 13 abstentions. Iran joined the Soviet bloc in voting for this section.

The pearl platinum classes were well filled and there was evidence of improved quality in this the newest classification. Fox breeders in general felt that there was a very great improvement in the color and quality of the pearls and found it encouraging. It was agreed that if there is a comeback in foxes in this Province it will be led by the pearl platinum.

The complete prize list will be published at a later date.

Local Canadian Legion Branch Monthly Meeting

The annual meeting of the Charlottetown Branch Canadian Legion will be held in January, it was announced at the regular monthly meeting held at the Legion Home last night. There will be no meeting in December.

It was also announced that the annual dinner for all paid-up members of the Legion would be held in January at a date to be announced. Reports presented last night indicated that the local branch is in a good financial position. There was considerable discussion by members on veterans legislation, particularly as it related to the benefits accruing to the Permanent Force and the Special Force in Korea.

It was announced that any new members registering for the balance of this year will be held over until the first of 1954. The report of finances of the Clover Club was satisfactory and it was stated that it would now be available for meetings of groups.

Famed Entertainer To Appear In Charlottetown

Citizens of Charlottetown will see at the Prince of Wales Auditorium, starting Nov. 30, the Great Morton (above), an amazing entertainer from the land "Down Under". Recognized throughout the English speaking world as one of the greatest living hypnotists, he also specializes in demonstrations of mesmerism—a sister science to hypnotism—and fantastic feats of psychometry and memory.

The Great Morton is acclaimed by the press of South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand, as "surely one of the world's most versatile and entertaining showmen" and has, on his recent world tour, had astounding successful record-breaking seasons everywhere. In western and eastern Canada he broke all-time records almost everywhere, including Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal, Quebec, Saint John and Halifax, with his really unusual and intriguing presentations. He will be sponsored by the Centennial Y's Men's Club.

"Enjoy hypnotism, by all means, for its entertaining value," says Dr. Morton, "but do not underestimate its therapeutic value, for today, at long last, the art of science of hypnotism stands in its rightful place as one of mankind's greatest allies in his eternal battle against mental suffering and nervous disorders."

When questioned regarding the recent offer made by the celebrated "Dante", magician, of $50,000 to anyone who can hypnotize him, the Great Morton chuckled—"He is a wise old bird, that Dante! He knows, as any student of psychology knows, that no person can be hypnotized against his will. In other words, if the subject is not perfectly willing to go to sleep, no one can compel them. So, Dante's money is safe."

Prior to coming to Canada, Dr. Morton spent a year in Hollywood, appearing with great success on television, radio and stage, and also as a technical advisor on several films dealing with hypnotism. Whilst there, he was a lecturing professor at the Los Angeles Institute of Hypnototherapy, instructing members of the medical and dental professions in the science of hypnosis, as applied therapeutically.

As a unique demonstration of hypnotism prior to his appearance at Prince of Wales College, a local person (a volunteer) will be hypnotized by the Great Morton in a large department store window in Charlottetown, and will sleep for many hours, like the "Sleeping Beauty" of old, until awakened, on stage, at the College, by a kiss from her "Prince Charming"—a prominent public official.

"Sleeping Beauty" will be a beautiful Charlottetown girl and will be, incidentally, hypnotized by the Great Morton by radio.

Others Interested Of the Canadian - designed - and produced CP-100 jet fighter, Mr. Claxton said: "It is the only airplane in production anywhere today which can meet anything like our requirements for continental defence. Indeed, no other country has an aircraft of equivalent performance in production and, so far as I know, we shall be in this position for some considerable time."

Other countries had expressed "great interest" in the CP-100 and "it is not unreasonable to expect that later types of this aircraft will be used much more extensively."

Mr. Claxton referred to suggestions that continental defence has been subordinated in importance to the build-up of the combined strength of the North Atlantic countries in Europe.

"This is not the case. We have tried to build up our defences both at home and abroad as fast as both could be effectively done with the resources that were made available."

Ladies Auxiliary Hold Meeting

The November meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion was held in the Legion Home yesterday evening with the president, Mrs. J. L. Davies presiding.

The following reported for the different committees: Overseas services, Mrs. Tidmarsh stated that Christmas boxes had been sent to available names of boys in Korea. Visiting committee, Mrs. Russell Roper reported that a small treat had been given to hospitalized veterans on Armistice Day. Crib boards checker board and playing cards had been given for use of the veterans in both hospitals. Coffee, sandwiches and doughnuts were served to veterans on parade Armistice Day.

It was decided that a gift would be given to each hospitalized veteran at Christmas. Conveners of the Relief Committee Mrs. Albert Wilson, Mrs. M. Porsyth looked after two needy families during the month of November.

The Ladies Auxiliary again decided to give the use of their rooms to the Rotarians for their radio auction. Mrs. Ira Brown reported that the Auxiliary was asked to cater to several banquets during December. Following a short meeting on January 8 a social evening will be held.

Missionary Tells

Refused Answer

He was charged with preaching against church reform and against the government and was interrogated about what Chinese Christians had told him at confessions. He refused to answer and the judges raved by pounding angrily on their desks and calling for accusers to come forward. One church member stepped up and accused Father Pilon of spying. The priest was not permitted to look up but he recognized the voice as that of a Communist agitator in his church.

"New China needs new churches and new ministers," one judge shouted. "Stand up and receive your sentence. You are hereby sentenced to expulsion from the soils of China forever and we give you 48 hours to get out."

Exodus Continues

Father Pilon was returned to the mission and the three departed for Tientsin Nov. 11 in a "criminal carriage"—a vehicle usually used to take prisoners to their execution. Members of the parish gathered to see the priest off but were dispersed by police.

Many of them probably think were "executed." Brother Pincault said, adding that he had seen faithful members peering from behind trees with tears in their eyes. The exodus of foreign missionaries continued, meanwhile, with the arrival of Roman Catholic Bishop Kenneth Turner, 48, of Montreal and Rev. F. Spruit, 41, of The Netherlands Friday.

West Royalty Home, School Ass'n Meeting

The November meeting of the West Royalty Home and School Association was held on November 25 in the School with 16 members present, over which Mrs. Rae Simmons, vice-president, presided.

Mrs. Wanda Murphy, principal of the school, gave a very interesting report from the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Home & School organizations held at P. W. C.

A question box followed. The principal question asked was: "How can I get the pupils to do homework, especially over the weekend?" This led to a lively discussion. A rummage sale was planned for December 5.

A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Percy, Mrs. Long and Mrs. Campbell, assisted by Mrs. Murray. The meeting closed with the Queen.

Baptist Historical Pageant Presented

Before a large audience in the Baptist Church Hall, the B.Y.P.U. enacted an interesting portrayal of "The Hundred Years and More." Taking part in the five scenes were Rev. J. D. Davison, Hartley Condon, Donald Holden, Ena MacEachern, David Schurman, Allen Affleck, Katherine MacFarlane, Freda MacCallum, Shirley Ladner, Windsor Brehaut, Keith Brehaut, Lloyd Oakes, Gordon Worth, Gordon MacNeill, Wm. MacCannell, Kenneth MacNeill, Virginia Matheson, Florence Oakes, Glenda Brown. Others who assisted were Valma Brehaut, Ellen MacArthur, Ian MacDonald, Betty Robertson.

At the beginning of the pageant was enacted a household scene in 1780 with Rev. Henry Alline conducting a welcome religious service. The second pictured the dramatic conference at Wolfville in 1843 that decided the early fathers to build a college without money. The year 1873 saw a service at Windsor, N.S., to farewell "The Serving Seven" missionaries to Burma and India. The following two scenes pictured The Spirit of the Former Century handing the mantle of responsibility to The Spirit of the Coming Century. The use of descriptive colored slides helped create the impression of the big work to be done.

B.Y.P.U. president Donald Holden thanked the National Film Board, the Little Theater Guild and Miss Marguerite Brehaut for the use of equipment. He also read telegrams of good wishes from Rev. Charles Taylor, formerly of Summerside and now director of religious activities at Acadia University, and from Eugene Thompson, Acadia quartette member and president of the Maritime B.Y.P.U. convention.

Musical selections were in the form of duets from Mr. and Mrs. W. S. MacMurtry and from Marilyn and Barbara Rupert and were well received. Mr. Roy Mugford officiated at the piano for the several hymns and musical numbers. The make-up was done by Misses Miriam Matthew, Isabel Clawson and Grace Crosby.

A generous offering was received. B.Y.P.U. president Donald Holden thanked the National Film Board, the Little Theater Guild and Miss Marguerite Brehaut for the use of equipment. He also read telegrams of good wishes from Rev. Charles Taylor, formerly of Summerside and now director of religious activities at Acadia University, and from Eugene Thompson, Acadia quartette member and president of the Maritime B.Y.P.U. convention.

Gouzenko Case

Continued from page 1 other persons who used to work for the federal government now are under special scrutiny by the sub-committee.

Jenner said "the sub-committee is trying to determine who was responsible for their continued employment, which in most cases, involved promotions, increased authority, continued access of government secrets and increases in pay" despite derogatory information about them.

Gouzenko exposed the Soviet spy network in Canada when he renounced Communism in 1945. The espionage activities apparently extended into the United States, and it is in this connection that the Jenner sub-committee is anxious to talk with him.

Secret Meeting

Canada has agreed that Gouzenko may be questioned by the sub-committee but it set these conditions: Gouzenko, now living under an assumed name and under police protection, must be willing; the meeting with American authorities must be a confidential one under Canadian auspices; and the decision to make public or keep secret any information obtained from Gouzenko must rest with Canada.

Jenner has objected to the last condition. In asking Dulles to try for a different arrangement, Jenner wrote that he felt the sub-committee "could not receive evidence vital to the security of the United States...and commit itself not to make it available to Congress." The point of this is that making it available to Congress would in effect make it public.

Whether Dulles will be able to persuade the Canadians to change their minds remained to be seen. Pearson has said "we came to our decision only after very careful consideration." Furthermore, his attitude appears to have the full support of the Canadian Parliament.

Newsman Finds Prelude To Moscow Stay Promising

(Bill Boss, Canadian Press Correspondent in Korea for three years, has just been reassigned to Moscow to give Canadian newspaper readers a picture of life behind the Iron Curtain. This is his first story from the Soviet capital.)

By Bill Boss Canadian Press Staff Writer MOSCOW, (CP) -The customs examination was polite and cursory. The currency control was gentle. Caviar sandwiches were served in mid-air by a winsome stewardess with long blonde hair. Tonight I am in Moscow. My hotel room is comfortably heated and has a bath with hot and cold water.

The prelude to my stay in Moscow has been promising. End of the line for Western aircraft is Helsinki. From there you fly by Aeroflot, the state-operated Russian airline in a twin-engine counterpart of an American Dakota. The main difference is that the Russian plane has tricycle landing gear under its nose while the Dakota sits down on its tail.

There is no stewardess between Helsinki and Leningrad. Another member of the crew showed the five passengers where to hang their coats in a small alcove. The plane's cretonne-upholstered seats, built like old-fashioned armchairs, have no safety belts. Apart from that, the flight was normal.

Books Not Political Take-off from Helsinki was at 4 p.m., just before dusk in that part of the world. We saw nothing of Russia during the flight except the impressive lights of Leningrad and Moscow.

The other non-Russian passengers were a Swedish diplomat and three Finnish business men. All got out at Leningrad for custom and immigration inspections in the main airport building whose carpeted waiting room with red plush furniture was like the "best room" of the '90s.

In the customs hall, a uniformed woman inspector showed no interest in typewriter, camera or binoculars. I opened my brief case, gladstone bag and an overnight bag.

"What are these books?" she asked in English, and put them back in the brief case when she learned they were Russian grammars and non-political works.

She asked about currency. I had $419 in travellers' cheques but could find only $230 easily. She let me declare only $230. "Declare the rest in Moscow," she said.

I protested that I'd be in for trouble when I tried to cash the missing cheques. "Don't worry about that," she said, "let Moscow."

At the foreign trade bank here next day, an elderly French-speaking woman official said it was of no importance.

Russians Separated

The foreign passengers were kept apart from the Russians until just before flight time. A Russian came into the group later but kept to himself throughout the flight.

A blonde stewardess with braided hair joined the aircrew at Leningrad. She brought out box lunches as soon as the plane was airborne. The sandwiches were crammed with caviar. There were three apples, 10 shortbread biscuits, two tinsel-wrapped chocolates and sugar for the tea, served later in a glass.

Two hours and 25 minutes later the plane landed at Moscow airport, 15 miles from the city center. An airport representative in tourist, the state-operated travel services, who met the plane knew where each passenger was to stay. In 15 minutes all were driving into Moscow in a handsome Russian limousine. It dropped me at the Metropole hotel, just around the corner from the Kremlin.
