

houses in ruins, and valuable property lying about the streets, while living figures were few and far between, the victors having allowed the non-combatant inhabitants safe conduct out of the place.

On the night of the 21st Sept., the conqueror, Gen. Wilson, proposed the HEALTH OF QUEEN VICTORIA in the Dewani-Khas, the beautiful white marble hall of the palace, where once stood the famed peacock throne, and which bears the well-known inscription, meant to apply to the palace and its gardens generally, and which now reads like a mockery.

"Oh! if there's an Eden on earth it is this."

Here, in the palace of the Great Moguls, the health of our Queen was drunk by her victorious soldiers with enthusiastic cheers, which were taken up by the gallant Ghorkhas who formed the personal guard of the General.

THE WOMEN OF DELHI UNMOLESTED BY OUR TROOPS.

A letter from Delhi written whilst the fight was going on says:—"Women are flying frantically about in all directions, unmolested by our troops, in awful fright; property of great value lying about the streets everywhere, and the enemy in hundreds hurrying away from the doomed city, some to Gwalior, via Muttra, where, I suppose, they will make another stand. The slaughter of the enemy has been very great, and in the smaller thoroughfares, where our troops had to fight from house to house, the Sepoys fell where they were found, entreating the Sahib lok, as they called our Europeans, not to give them the cold steel, but to shoot them at once. A good deal of skirmishing is going on in the streets, but Pandey don't stand so firmly as people expected; and although the city, which may be supposed to fall at once into our possession—has taken so long to recover, I think the worst for us is over, and bad enough it is as far as life is concerned. Many will be glad to learn that women and children are suffered to go unmolested. This is a stretch of mercy I should not have been prepared to make had I a voice in the matter. It ought to be remembered that many of these very women (or fiends in female form) were foremost in inflicting cruelty upon our own women and children; and it must be fresh in your memory that when the mutineers came out of the city for a grand attack upon our camp, while Nicholson's force was at Nujjgurh, they were followed by crowds of these very women, whose sole object on venturing out was to loot our camp when the mutineers took possession of it, which they calculated would be an easy affair, as our troops were away! These coolly women of Delhi were with the men who looted all the European houses in Delhi. However, it is the General's hooch that they should be spared—and I hope he won't rue it. I wonder if one of these women would have spared one of our women if she had the chance of murdering her?"

FURTHER PARTICULARS FROM ENGLAND AND INDIA.

From the New York Times, of Nov. 23, additional paragraphs of Indian news are obtained. Extracts are subjoined. The Hindostan arrived at Suez from Calcutta, on the 5th inst., with Calcutta dates to Oct. 9; Madras, 14; Galleo, 18. Delhi, which fell into our hands on the 20th Sept., was entirely occupied on the 21st, and the whole of the enemy expelled. In the assault of the 14th, 61 officers and 1,178 men—being one-third of the storming force—killed and wounded.

The old King of Delhi, said to be seventy years of age, surrendered to Capt. Hodgson and his cavalry, about fifteen miles south of Delhi. He was accompanied by his chief wife. Their lives were spared.

By accounts from Agra, one column appears to have reached the neighborhood of Allyghur, and the other that of Muttra, on the 28th September.

General Havelock, with 2,500 men, crossed the Ganges from Cawnpore, Sept. 19th, and relieved Lucknow Residency on the 25th, just as it was ready to be blown up by the besiegers. On the 26th the enemy's entrenchments were stormed, and on the 29th a large part of the city was taken—450 killed and wounded.

There has been a slight rising of the rebels near Nassack, in the Bombay Presidency, in the suppression of which Lieut. Henry of the police was killed.

Madras troops defeated the mutineers of the 52nd near Kerples, and killed 150.

Predatory tribes in the Punjab, between Moulton and Lahore, have given some trouble lately, and the disturbances seem to have been suppressed.

A Russian war steamer has been lost in the Caspian Sea. The captain, three lieutenants and eighteen seamen were drowned.

GREAT BRITAIN.—On Saturday, the 7th, shortly after the departure of the 'Niagara,' the suspension of the house of Messrs. Dennestoun & Co., one of the largest firms connected with the American trade in Great Britain, was announced. Their liabilities are estimated at something like two millions sterling. The head establishment of the house is in Glasgow, and there are branches in London and Liverpool, New York, and New Orleans, and Melbourne, Australia, and the Melbourne firm is not compromised. The almost total cessation of remittances from America was the cause of the suspension. The private property of the partners is of great magnitude, and it is presumed the embarrassment will be but temporary.

The Western Bank of Scotland, at Glasgow, with a paid up capital of £1,500,000, and deposits supposed to amount to £6,000,000 sterling, closed its doors on the 9th.

The fall of the Western Bank caused a run on some of the principal banks at Glasgow and elsewhere, including even the Savings' Bank. The work of taking the Atlantic Cable, out of the Agamemnon as well as the Niagara, had been completed. The attempt to lay the cable next year is to be made at the end of June, or beginning of July, and it has been determined to resort to the plan originally contemplated, namely, to commence the submerging process in the Atlantic, the two vessels engaged sailing respectively for the shores of Newfoundland and Ireland. Three thousand miles of cable, instead of 2,600 as in the first attempt, are to be coiled on board the vessels.

The career of politics will find few advocates who are more solicitous for mental peace than for worldly advancement. The field is narrow, the combatants fierce; and the reverend divine—who is actuated by the spirit of a church rather than of a religion, who, if the odium theologicum can find a place in his bosom, and he seek to establish or oppose a sect rather than a principle; above all, if he be capable of deprecating the office by associating it with political feelings and interested motives—should pause: for he cannot possibly step forward with advantage to others, and certainly not with benefit to himself. If a rational Christian, he will write and preach in an exhilarating spirit of grateful devotion to God and universal charity to mankind. If a bigot, he will hope to propitiate the God of unbounded benignity, by enforcing systems of gloom and horror, and by dreadful denunciations against any sect but his own. The clerical but ungallant writer upon education, in the two last numbers of the Protector, seems to have forgotten that we cannot handle human passions, even to play with them, without imbibing some portion of their acrimony, any more than we can gather flowers amid the nettles without being stung. And he does not see, or will not acknowledge, that had it not been for this very Church of Rome, at which he so reviles, Christianity would, as a religion, have been blotted out from the face of the earth and the knowledge of mankind centuries ago, and the Holy Scriptures, at least the most valuable part of them—namely, the New Testament—would have been totally lost and unknown, had it not been for the unceasing energy and industry of the Catholic priests in transcribing copies, and who alone handed them down to the time of the Reformation. And surely a few harmless and unobtrusive ladies might be allowed to instruct any of the rising generation, without being subjected to the impertinent remarks and insults of any intemperate and intolerant bigot who thinks proper to attack them through the public press, and whose education and position ought to have taught him better, and in whose mind such illiberal sentiments could not have found a place, had he understood the doctrine which he professes to teach. The reverend editor writes so spitefully and sorely, that it really looks as if he had himself been in the tar barrel, and had been kicked out of some brotherhood. If the old woman had not herself been in the oven, she would not have looked in it to find her daughter. We quote his own words: "It would be an act of genuine friendship to persuade him to take the veil," and retire as modestly from the world as the harmless and inoffensive objects of his attacks. We are bound to do him justice by acknowledging the extreme fairness and propriety of his putting questions in his last leader, and immediately replying to them himself, thereby exemplifying how very fairly he wishes to argue the points. We would like to know whether our reverend scribe ever read Dante in the original Italian, or in translation? because he too, six hundred years ago, wrote against the Papacy. There is a term in Music, (how wicked to name Music!) of Italian origin also, called Andante, which means the slowest of the slow. We surmise that this Miss Ann Dante must be the mistress of the reverend writer in the Protector, and that she has certain-ly lectured him into the slowest possible movement, to the tune of "Dismal Davy." Now, let us try to make the dull jade move a little faster, and beg her to suggest to the reverend and learned writer that if he will take the trouble of looking deeper into the Romish forms of worship, he may, by the exercise of a very little ingenuity, discover or invent various translations to their Latin forms of religion. We give a few examples below, just to put him up to the trick. Thus, it only requires a man of his discernment at once to discover that the Catholic hymn, "O mihi beate Martine," &c., can admit of no other interpretation than, "Oh! my eye, Betty Martin!" and the "Hoc est corpus," pronounced in one of their ceremonies, he may construe into "Hocus pocus," and make the world believe that he is really a conjurer; and the "Hilariter celeriter," he can easily metamorphose into "Helter skelter," and tell the poor benighted Catholics they are going that pace to the Devil. We positively think that if he would bring his grand, fertile and comprehensive mind to bear upon these few suggestive hints and act upon them, it is just possible he might become amusing and instructive; but for him to keep on with his blundering attacks upon a few harmless Sisters of Charity who never molested him, clearly demonstrates that he is not a brother of the Order, or that he acts up to the doctrine of our Lord—"Faith, Hope and Charity, these three; but the greatest of these is Charity."—Com.

MASONIC INSTALLATION.—St. Andrew's Day.—A new LODGE of FREEMASONS, holding Dispensation from the Grand Lodge of Scotland, styled "VICTORIA LODGE, No. 1," was duly installed on the evening of the 30th ultimo (St. Andrew's Day), in the Masonic Hall in this City. Bro. P. M. William T. Paw having been empowered by the Provincial G. M., the Hon. A. Keith, of Halifax, N. S., to perform the necessary ceremonies. The officers and members of "St. John's Lodge, No. 562," holding Warrant under the Grand Lodge of England, having been specially invited, a large attendance was secured, which gave additional eclat to the proceedings. The following are the Office-bearers for the ensuing year:— Past Master J. W. Morrison, R. W. Master, Bro. J. D. Mason, W. D. Master, " S. Nelson, W. S. Master, " A. H. Yates, S. W., " James Romans, J. W., " Alexander McKinnon, Secretary, " W. R. Watson, Treasurer, " W. S. Longworth, S. D., " J. T. Rowe, J. D., " W. Duchemin, J. G., " W. B. Davidson, Tyler.

Prayer having been offered to the Great Architect of the Universe, for the prosperity of Victoria Lodge, and the Masonic Fraternity throughout the world, the Lodge was closed with the usual solemnities.

At 10 p. m., the brethren of the New Lodge and their guests sat down to refreshment prepared for the occasion. The greatest harmony prevailed during the evening. At half-past 11, the parting toast, "Happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again," was given from the chair, after which the National Anthem was sung by the Choir in admirable style, and the brethren departed apparently much pleased with the proceedings of the evening.

The Rev. Hugh Dunbar left his residence, Princetown Road, on Saturday morning last; he was observed returning early in the afternoon, and shortly after was found lying on the road, a little further on, quite dead. It is supposed his death was occasioned by disease of the heart.—Pro.

On Monday last, Mr. Daniel M' Ewen, of New London, was in the act of crossing the South West River, in that locality, in a canoe, when it is supposed he fell over-board, and was drowned. His body had not been recovered when our informant left.—Pro.
