Total Abstainer's Hymn.

I promise thee, sweet Lord,
  That I will never cloud the light
Which shines from thee within my soul,
  And makes my reason bright;
Nor ever will I lose the power
  To serve thee by thy will,
Which thou hast set within my heart,
  Thy precepts to fulfill.

Oh, let us drink as Adam drank,
  Before from thee he fell;
Oh, let me drink as thou, dear Lord,
  When faint by Sychar's well;
That from thy childhood, pure from sin
  Of drink and drunken strife,
By the clear fountain I may rest,
  Of Everlasting life.

—Cardinal Manning.

Odds and Ends

"It's a remarkable case," said a doctor to a brother physician, the latter just entering the profession. "My experience, of course, is not large," returned the young man modestly, "but I quite agree with you doctor; it certainly is a remarkable case, and one of great interest to the profession. Do you think we shall be able to save the patient?" "Save the patient?" exclaimed the first speaker; "no, we won't be able to save the patient, but we will have a post-mortem examination, and that is of much more importance."

During their early locomotive stage the young fry of the oyster have a pair of distinct black eyes to guide them in choosing their future home; but, as soon as they settle down for a lazy life on some ledge or bank, the eyes die away, and the animal passes the rest of its existence in complete and contented blindness.

A young lawyer, who had long paid his court to a lady without much advancing his suit, accused her one day of being "insensible to the power of love." "It does not follow," she archly replied, "that I am so, because I am not to be won by the power of attorney." "Forgive me," said the suitor, "but you should remember that all the votaries of Cupid are solicitors."

It was in an editorial room: "Do you think my foot will have to be amputated, doctor?" asked the editor-in-chief faintly. "I am afraid so replied the physician, "it is very badly hurt, but I may be able to save it. How did you manage to crush your foot in this way?" "The boy dropped the proof of one of my articles on it."

Scene: Butcher's stall in market of a German town. Neighbor: "Good morning, neighbor. What fine sausages you have hanging there! You ought to present me with one of them, for this is my birthday." Butcher, taking neighbor's hand: "Ah, your birthday, is it? Well, I wish you good luck, and many returns of the day. May you live till I give you that sausage!"

The principal of an academy, who had just purchased a new bell to hang in the cupola of the institution, and also married a handsome woman, made an unfortunate orthographical error when he wrote to the president of the board of trustees: "I have succeeded in procuring a fine, larged tongued belle."

Theodore Hook once dined with Mr. Hatchet. "Ah, my dear fellow," said his host deprecatingly, "I am sorry to say you will not get to-day such a dinner as our friend Tom Moore gave us." Certainly not," replied Hook, "from a Hatchet one can expect nothing but a chop."

"Is that man an undertaker?" "No dear; he is the funny man of a daily paper." "Why does he look so sad?" "Because he has found out that one of his latest original jokes has just been discovered in the clutches of an Egyptian mummy."

It is told of the father of Herr Teufelsdroekh that he used to recount in his old age how Frederick the Great had once spoken to him. When asked what it was that the king had said, he admitted that it was, "Get out of my way, dog."

An advertisement in a Swiss paper says: "Wanted a servant who knows how to cook and take care of children." In the cannibal islands a domestic possessed of such a double gift would not long remain without employment.

Mr. Froude, in one of his lectures, stated that Cato did not begin to learn the Greek language until he was eighty-four years of age. The boys of to-day tell their fathers that they are anxious to follow the example of Cato.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping our selves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
