

RELEASED IN CUBA

The Rev. Herbert Herbert Caudill, 63, of Omega, Ga., a Baptist missionary sentenced to 10 years in prison in Cuba has been released conditionally so he may have medical treatment at his home in Havana. The Southern Baptist Home Mission Board made the announcement Tuesday in Atlanta Ga., adding that it is believed the condition is that he will not leave Cuba. Caudill suffered a detached retina, is blind in one eye and is having difficulty in seeing with the other. (AP Wirephoto)

WEAVER OF SPELLS DENIES SHE'S WITCH

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It was a dark, rainy night in this Ohio River City when Dame Sybil Leek, self-professed healer and weaver of spells, consented to an interview.

"I am not by profession a witch," said Dame Sybil. "I'm a journalist by trade. The word witch applies to my identity, my religion."

Between discourses on the nature of her strange talents, Dame Sybil—who moved to United States from Britain two years ago—said she is bewitched by river lore, old steamboats, country towns and horse races.

She says her cross-country lecture tour and latest book, The Jackdaw and the Witch, try not so much to sell witchcraft as to make it understood.

Her tools are "domination of my mind over that of another" and "certain secret formulas."

Fears such as "predicting two years ago the exact date Red China would detonate a nuclear device," are not uncommon to a woman who has "something strange happens to me every week."

"I am the major liaison for all the witches of the world. We are a much larger organization than the Mafia, only we don't hold board meetings."

Dame Sybil Leek says she is a good witch. "I am fair, fat, 40, and living the life of a starlet. I don't turn my powers against people and have never used black magic."

"But I could — any time I wanted to."

Expense Account Suggested For Judges On Commissions

OTTAWA (CP)—Judges acting on commissions or arbitration boards should be given a normal expense account instead of a daily allowance, Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson suggested.

Commenting on his 1965 report before the Commons public accounts committee, he said that $60 per day plus travel expenses included "an element of remuneration," contrary to the provisions of the Judges Act.

In an obvious reference to Judge Samuel Freedman, who conducted the inquiry into the CNR run-throughs at Nakina, Ont. and Wainwright, Alta., the auditor-general's report cites the example of a judge receiving $100 a day plus out-of-pocket expenses while living in his own home. The report says the judge received $13,200 in one year.

E. A. Driedger, deputy minister of justice, argued that $60 a day, subject to income tax, would not meet the hotel, meal and taxi expenses of a judge attending an inquiry in Montreal.

He said the Judges Act had been changed to remove any set allowance figure, but that $60 was the figure usually set by the Governor-in-Council when making appointments.

Mr. Henderson countered that the $100 figure was becoming more common, particularly in labor department appointments to arbitration boards. He also said that judges appointed under the Inquiries Act could have the income tax on their allowance remitted.

Mr. Driedger said the allowance clause was originally put in the act as it was felt that an expense account might be more prejudicial to the independence of the judge. He said he didn't think an amendment to the act was necessary, but agreed to discuss it with the minister.

Future Need For Oil, Gas Seen Immense

TORONTO (CP)—The president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey said here there will be an "immense" future need for ever-increasing amounts of oil and gas in the free world.

J. K. Jamieson said in a speech to the Canadian Club here—the need is weighted with implications, "economic and otherwise," which will have a direct bearing on Canada's second 100 years.

He made five points: —The petroleum industry must intensify its search for oil and gas. In this connection he mentioned offshore exploration on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

—Chances are excellent that Canadian crude oil will command a substantially larger outlet in the United States than it does today.

—The industry must find ways in the next 15 years to reduce further to cost of getting its product to market.

—A new branch of the industry, shipment of liquefied natural gas, will become prominent.

—There will be new competition from electricity, nuclear energy and coal. He specifically mentioned, among other things, the attempts to develop an electric car to replace the present petroleum-driven vehicles as an anti-pollution measure.

He said 1967 will not only be Canada's centennial year, it will also be the 20th anniversary of the discovery of top crude oil at Leduc, Alta.—a discovery which meant a tremendous change in the balance of payments for Canada and which brought a marked change to the Canadian West.

Immigration Policy Criticized

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's immigration policy is causing a labor shortage in mines, construction and forestry industries, J.E.J. Fahlgren, president of Toronto-based Cochenour Willans Gold mines, said here.

In an interview, Mr. Fahlgren said immigration policy restricts the flow of unskilled labor into Canada.

"There is no question that Canada needs the educated men and office workers for the expansion of our industrial complexes, but we also have need of more people who can undertake and who will undertake the hard work tasks of forestry, mining and construction."

The labor shortage is forcing mining and forestry companies to bid against each other for manpower. The only relief in sight is to wait for a recession.

Mr. Fahlgren suggested a government program to help Indians make the transition from reserves to community life might result in an increased labor force.

Industry would be prepared to assist the government if the government could assure frontier communities that they wouldn't be called upon to accept all financial liabilities.
