RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT THE POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL ELIZABETH PERCY (1857-1922) ENGLAND'S RICHEST HEIRESS OF HER TIME WAS MARRIED 2 TIMES AND TWICE WIDOWED AT THE AGE OF 15—SHE WAS 13 WHEN HER FIRST HUSBAND DIED ONLY A FEW MONTHS AFTER HER MARRIAGE AND HER SECOND HUSBAND WAS ASSASSINATED 2 YEARS LATER

with the ace and led the king of diamonds, with held. East then played the deuce of hearts which West captured with the ace. It was the defenders' third trick and South had to take the rest of the tricks to make the contract. The only loser possible was a trump trick. West led the ace of diamonds and East discarded a heart as declarer trumped. A spade was led to dummy's king and a spade was returned, East producing the five. South now went into a huddle and finally came out of it by finessing the ten. The rest was mere formality. Trumps were drawn and declarer made four spades. The spade finesse would have been an easy enough play to make if the opposing cards were seen. But without actual sight of East's cards, South was able to reason that East had started with four trumps. It had been proved that West had started with precisely six diamonds. South was opening up with a singleton, West's opening lead, the deuce of clubs, had presumably marked him with a four-card club suit. East's next suit, the deuce, indicated a four-card suit, and hence marked West with two hearts. If everything was to be believed, West therefore could not have been dealt more than one spade. Q. E. D.

Opening lead—two of clubs. The highest compliment you can pay a good card player is to say that he sees through the back of the cards. By this is meant that he plays just as though everyone's cards are exposed. In quite a number of hands declarer's play should be just as effective as if he had seen defender's cards. By putting two and two together as fragments of information are gathered, and taking advantage of every possible clue, the declarer should reach a very high degree of efficiency in hard after hand. Observe, for instance, how declarer was able to make the vital decision at the crucial point in this hand. East won the club lead
