TORONTO

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market, led by western oils which dipped to its lowest point in four years, fell lower Tuesday during relatively heavy trading.

Western oils shot down more than one point to lead index losers and hit its lowest mark since 1955. Golds fell more than one-half point and base metals were down nearly half a point.

Mines continued to ramble about at a lower level with lower-priced issues being the most active. Senior uraniums were all down with Algom leading the show by dropping ⅝ at 10. Consolidated Denison was down ⅜ at 10 and Gunnar fell ¼ at 9¾.

But the biggest surprise was the index drop by western oils which have all but been inactive during the last 10 days. A few of the lower-priced issues began to trade actively late in the day but all showed losses.

Index losses: golds .63 at 85.82; base metals .40 at 166.02; and western oils 1.09 at 98.49, which was the lowest since 1955. The previous low was 99.20 recorded last Oct. 9.
