Cope With The Unexpected Dr. MacKinnon Tells P.W.C.

Following is the text of the address delivered by Dr. Frank Mac-Kinnon, Principal of Prince of Wales College, at the College convocation yesterday. "It is again my pleasure to extend the welcome of the faculty and students of Prince of Wales to our convocation guests, especially the many parents and friends of our students. We gather to congratulate and encourage the young people congratulate them on their achievements to date, and encourage them to face the next stages in their careers with ambition and determination.
"The college year just ending has been a happy and successful one. Academic achievements measure up to those of previous years; extra curricular activities have been varied; discipline has been extremely good. I am grateful to all the instructors and students who have combined effectively in the teamwork required for such results. Approximately a million man-hours of effort have been spent in the session's activities.
We trust that the returns on this large investment of time will be both substantial and rewarding.
AN EXPERIENCE
"It is important to remember at convocation that certificates and diplomas are not receipts given in return for certain effort, that passing is not the fulfillment of certain obligations, and that convocation is not the end of a period of training. For education is not something handed out, nor is it a process with a definite beginning or ending. Rather it is experience in developing powers which can never be stopped without loss, and which pays unpredictable dividends. Convocation, therefore, merely marks the accumulation of certain experience in certain things; it is up to those concerned to use that experience, for its value lies in what they do with it. This theme has to be emphasized again and again at such ceremonies lest too many rest on their laurels and find them useless.
We should also remember that convocation has a message for those who have failed to gain their laurels as yet. They have had valuable experience if they will profit by it. Weaknesses can be remedied, limitations need to be understood, and patience and perseverance over obstacles should examine carefully their strengths and weaknesses, seek the advice of others, especially the able teachers, like life itself, reserves some of its highest rewards for those who meet its greatest challenges.
ANOTHER FACTOR
"Yet another factor in convocation is the personal relationship among students. College days are filled with valuable friendships of a special kind which last a lifetime.
In college one can see one's friends at work and play and in success and adversity, and there are innumerable ways of observing and comparing personalities and characters which are not so evident in the other activities of life. All the forces of human nature are expressed in student activities, a fact which provides unique opportunities for observing others and, just as important, for developing oneself. The results of these relationships are not evident in the pass list, but they comprise a substantial portion of the benefits received (or missed) at college.

"I remind you that we are breaking traditions, today. Indeed it is a pleasure to have a rare combination of two broken traditions quietly and competently to the various activities here. Another man, and one of Charlottetown's most valuable citizens, was in and out of this building for many years. He was Harry Her-mans whose great skill, a perfect example of careful technical training and study, will be greatly missed. Only last week we lost Mr.
Louis Diamond, another of a popular and conscientious member of our maintenance staff during the few months that he was with us.
"I express my sincerest appreciation to the faculty for all their efforts. Most of them are busy people who work hard and devote much time and talent to their subjects and for their pupils. I am grateful, also, to the students for their cooperation in studies, social activities, athletics, their stage production of "Trial By Jury," the work of the Student's Council and the College Times, and the efforts of the various campus club And I know that both faculty and students would wish me to express appreciation for the support, encouragement, and sacrifice of many parents who are as proud this day as are their sons and daughters.
"I should like to pay a special tribute to a member of the staff who retired during the session. It is widely recognized that one of the ablest teachers in the long history of Prince of Wales has been Mr. W. W. Duchemin. His knowledge of biology, his ability to import it, and his interest in his students have marked his successful career here. University authorities have told me that Mr. Duch-emin's marks were an almost infallible guide to the abilities of pre-medical students, and that his training was everywhere evident in the subsequent work of those who were fortunate enough to have studied under him. He was a true friend and colleague who will always be remembered here with affection and respect.
"Two men passed away in recent months who served this institution in unique and valuable ways. One was Mr. Bernard Gallant, who, during five years as commissionaire, worked faithfully and well. I can recall the many instances in which he contributed

ing and study, will be greatly missed. Only last week we lost Mr.

this is a great age in which to be going to school, and we must recognize and appreciate the fact.
"But there are clouds on the horizon, and the occasional flash of lightning and rumble of thunder are reminders, which we ignore, at our peril, that many of the favorable aspects of our system are threatened unless we protect them "In the first place, teachers' working conditions and salaries are a sign of weakness. Good teachers are being lost to the profession, and those that remain are not being paid enough to encourage them and to attract others.
Moreover there are too many badly prepared teachers, and every one of them is a menace to those studying under him.
SERIOUS PROBLEM
"In the second place, while all children have the opportunity of getting an education, we sometimes mistake opportunity for education and judge in terms of courses "passed" and years spent. It is now being everywhere recognized that the automatic retention of all pupils in schools and students in colleges whether they work or not is untrue, because those who expect an education without working waste their own time, hold back others, and increase the burden of costs. Many authorities are deeply concerned with this problem of giving everyone the opportunity while insisting on the principle that the student is primarily responsible for turning that opportunity to advantage.

"Let there be no mistake about it, you can't have education unless those who teach know what they

"The Power of Understanding" Intellect is in truth, the most precious gift bestowed upon man by the Divine Bounty.
The understanding is the power by which man acquires his knowledge of creation, and of various stages of existence, as well as of much which is invisible.
How grievous it is to see how man has used his God-given gift to frame instruments of war, for breaking the Commandment of God: "Thou shalt not kill" and for defying Christ's injunction to "love one another."
God gave this power of understanding to man that it might be used for the advancement of civilization, for the good of humanity, to increase love and concord and peace. But man prefers to use this gift to destroy instead of build, for injustice and oppression, for hatred and discord and destruction, for destruction of his fellow creatures, whom Christ has commanded that he should love as himself.

WHAT FINER GIFT?
A Bible is a personal treasure . . . and nothing we possess is ours in quite the same way. It is the great sacred treasure of our civilization and a distinctly personal treasure as well. Its truths are universal, yet in its pages we may find private meanings for ourselves, the answers to our own personal needs. And the more we read our Bible, the more it becomes uniquely ours.
What finer gift than a Bible, could be chosen for a nurse or college graduate? A wide variety of Bibles in white, maroon, and black will be found at The Bible House. Call and see the fascinating display, along with books, devotional material and religious novelties.
All profits are used by the Bible Society in its great work of providing the Word of God to all people in their own tongue.
