The New Roman Catholic Cemetery

On St. Peter's Road, a short distance beyond the suburbs, situated on a beautiful and gracefully sloping hill, is the New Roman Catholic Cemetery. It does not, as yet, present the appearance of a burial place.

The work of laying out the grounds has just been completed, according to a plan prepared by Thomas May, Esq., for His Lordship Bishop McIntyre.

In dimensions, the cemetery is four hundred and seventy-five feet long, by three hundred and eighty feet broad.

The plan may be briefly described as follows: A serpentine gravel carriage-way, fifteen feet wide, extends from the entrance around the cemetery.

The Calvary group, which will be placed in the centre of the group, will be of terra cotta. It is now being manufactured in Lyons, France.

The fence surrounding will be of stone, with iron railing, and the gate will be of cast iron; in dimensions, eleven feet high by eight feet wide.
