2 Island Fisheries Officers Are Fished From The Strait

ALBERTON BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

The rescue of two men from the waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence was carried out yesterday morning near Jacques Cartier Park about three miles from Alberton.

Fishery officers Douglas Rix, Alberton and Roy MacEachern of Coleman were patrolling off Alberton Harbor when their sixteen foot outboard boat took a wave over the stern, filled and sank.

The two men managed to grab life jackets but MacEachern was unable to swim and they had considerable difficulty in getting the jackets in place. A few minutes later the bow of their boat broke water and MacEachern was able to climb onto the boat while Rix remained in the water which they found extremely cold. Over an hour later Rix decided to try and swim to Jacques Cartier Park about two miles away as they were getting very cold and having difficulty clinging to the boat. The lobster season in the area is closed and no boats were in sight.

HEARD NOISES

At the park several people hear noises from the sea but someone mentioned that it could be a seal as nothing could be seen in the distance. Finally a young lad, Charles Pataki of Halifax who, with his parents, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andras Halipa, said he could hear a man shouting for help.

Immediately Kenneth Quigley of Alberton, and Phillip Weeks, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs Frank Weeks, Alberton who was tenting in the park, launched the park's life saving punt, rowed out for a distance of about a mile and took the exhausted and chilled fishery officer on board.

On their return trip the seven foot punt capsized at the outer sand bar throwing all three into waist deep water from where they waded ashore.

At about the same time, a high speed lobster boat operated by Phillip Kinch accompanied by a member of Alberton detachment of the RCMP had sailed out from the harbor and picked MacEachern from the submerged boat. Although chilled to the bone after nearly three hours in the water both men were in good condition and quickly recovered from their experience.

Interviewed later Mr. Rix said that it was a wonderful sight when he saw the oars flashing as the boat left to rescue him as he was so cold he was unable to work his arms and doubted that he could have been able to swim the rest of the way wearing a life jacket. He had swallowed quantities of sea water and had been sick several times from the water and the motion of the waves.

RHODES SCHOLAR

Island Native Is Appointed

Frederic J. Arsenault, 23, has been appointed executive assistant to New Brunswick Progressive Conservative leader C. B. Sherwood.

Mr. Arsenault was selected as a Rhodes Scholar in 1963 and has studied political science and economics at Oxford University, England where he recently graduated with honors in the Philosophy, Politics and Economics school.

In his position as executive assistant to Mr. Sherwood, he will be mainly involved in policy making and research; he will have his headquarters in Fredericton.

Mr. Arsenault was born in Mount Carmel where he received his primary education. He later attended St. Joseph's University in Memramcook and Moncton from where he graduate in 1963 with a bachelor of arts degree.

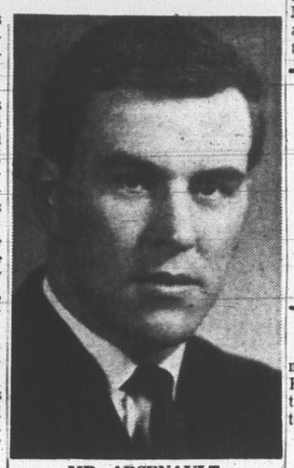
While a student at the university, he was elected president of the Atlantic Regional Committee of the Canadian Union of Students and was a member of the national executive.

NEWSPAPER EDITOR

He was also editor of "Liaisons", the university newspaper, and co-holder of the Bourrassa Trophy, emblematic of university debating supremacy. He is a life member of the University Honor Society.

After his selection as a Rhodes Scholar in 1963, he went to Oxford University. In his second year at the university, he became the first Canadian ever elected Chairman of the Oxford University Student Council.

He was also secretary of the



MR. ARSENAULT

Oxford Area of the British National Union of Students and represented the union during a three-week educational tour of the Soviet Union.

He is a former member of the resolutions committee of the National Progressive Conservative Student Federation and a delegate to the Conservative party's thinkers conference at the University of New Brunswick a few years ago. He has also taken an active part in two federal elections.

Mr. Sherwood, commenting on the appointment, said it was encouraging "that a young man of such outstanding abilities should associate himself with the public life of our province and the future of our party".

"I am grateful, continued Mr. Sherwood, that Mr. Arsenault has passed up many other prospects and opportunities on returning to Canada in order to work with us. I am sure every New Brunswicker will welcome his apointment."

Mr. Arsenault is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Arsenault, Mount Carmel; he has two sisters, Zita who will begin studies at Notre Dame des Flots, Magdalene Islands in September, and Bernice, a student at Evangeline Regional High School.

EXAMS SCHEDULED

An announcement was made recentliy by the Department of Education that there will be grade 12 supplementary examinations in French, Algebra and Chemistry. These examinations will be written on September 1 and 2.

ADDITIONAL STUDENTS

It was learned yesterday from W.C. McMurtry, director of vocational education, that an additional 175 students are expected in the High School section of the Provincial Vocational Institute in Charlottetown this fall. Last year the enrolment at the high school was 239, while the Prince County Vocational Institute had 510. Charlottetown's vocational institute has ideal accommodation for 600 students in grades 9 and 10. Summerside's vocational high school section can accommodate an equal number and includes grades nine to 12 inclusive.

AIDING FUND

The amalgamation of the city's two hospitals will be assisted by this year's participants in the Summer Festival who joined in a fund raising effort Monday.

Billed as a "Happening" with the potato as the central theme, the performers at the Centre Theatre and Art Gallery personnel read poetry, sang songs and performed skits to the delight of an audience of more than 200.

The event was inspired by the proposed union of the Roman Catholic Charlottetown Hospital and the Protestant Prince Edward Island Hospital.

STAGE DOOR

Popularity Of Centre Increases In All Areas

By NANCY WHITE

Spirits and attendance are up at Confederation Centre this year. Good reviews from Upper Canada have been a great Morale booster, and the increasing crowds are quite a source of joy.

Theatre director Robert Dubberley commented the other day that 26,000 people attended the theatre events at the Centre in the first five weeks of this summer's Festival. This stacks up well against the 44,000 total for the entire summer of 1965.

The beloved Anne of Green Gables is still the number one favorite, so much so that an extra matinee was held last Wednesday afternoon and there will be another Wednesday matinee this week too. Last week 15,000 people saw the Donald Harron-Norman Campbell musical; 11,000 saw it in the first five weeks this summer.

Turvey is running about 60 per cent of house capacity; The Ottawa Man audiences are smaller but building, and the comedy is doing better at the box office than last year's non-musical show "Laugh With Leacock" did.

Attendances at the Canadian Puppet Theatre are "way up", Dubberley said. The first five weeks brought in 4,800 people, compared with 2,200 in the same period last year.

Sunday concerts in July drew the estimated forty per cent attendance.

The Ladies of the Provinces Confederation Parade, staged each Wednesday evening in Memorial Hall, nearly always attracts the capacity crowd of one hundred.

And the Cabaret Club, where top summer festival performers entertain after the shows, is drawing people in thundering herds. (So is the Saturday night discotheque.)

Not bad for a white elephant.

Last Friday was dancer Roy Urbach's twentieth birthday, and he was proudly flashing about a great enormous card sent to him by, according to the return address, "all the chicks in Willowdale". Wow.

Artistic girls are pretty girls? This seems to be the case at Confederation Centre Art Gallery where two of the summer employees have been chosen as Gold Cup and Saucer Girls for a second summer.

They are Carol Foster, a student at the Nova Scotia College of Art, who is a teacher in this summer's Painting in the Parks program, and Trudy Callbeck, a gallery guide.

The big horse race is Friday night.

Puppeteer John Rapsey finds he lapses back into his Smart Alex voice when he's back in class at Bishop's University. Kind of a weird problem.

Historical note: Marcia Loynd, who reviews the Sunday night concerts at the Summer Festival, says she's been informed that The Atlantic Orchestra is not the first resident professional orchestra on P.E.I. A lady called her after she'd said so in a recent review and said there had been a resident orchestra here many years ago. Marcia says it "went out with the Cake Walk".

And still people are talking about The Ottawa Man. A University of New Brunswick English professor had the following comments in a recent letter to our art gallery director

"The Ottawa Man was handicapped by being played to a scattered crowd in the huge auditorium. We thought it a fine adaptation, though it ran a bit thin while Plantagenet collected the cash (except for the piece with the Irish farmers). I don't think I've ever seen so many 'character' parts so well acted in one play."

Then, from a different viewpoint was the remark made by an out-of-province girl reporter when she was asked what she thought of the play:

"I loved it," she said. "But I can't give you an unbiased opinion, because I was so entranced with Don Harron. I couldn't take my eyes off him."
