Splendid Products of Orchard Garden and Farm

LIVELY EXHIBITS IN THE PIG AND POULTRY HOUSES.

Grand Weather and a Great Success.

The Provincial Exhibition, 1894, was opened this forenoon. The great rush of visitors will not begin until tomorrow. But there was a large attendance, including many of our leading farmers and men of business.

Benjamin Rogers, Esq., M. L. A., President of the Exhibition company briefly expressed the great pleasure that it gave him to be able to introduce Lieutenant Governor Howlan who would open the exhibition.

The Lieut.Governor then delivered an excellent practical address. After a few introductory remarks, he said:

For many years shipbuilding was the great industry of this Island. The sound of the workman's axe and the caulker's mallet was then heard throughout the land. As soon as shipbuilding was done a number of our people believed that the prosperity of the country would cease, and many of them emigrated to Australia, New Zealand, and other parts of the world. Those who stayed behind—having a belief in the future of the country—began to apply themselves more arduously than before to the farm. They saw, however, that it was necessary to take a new departure—to farm in a better way. In 1869 the Government of the Hon. R. P. Haythorne took up the matter. Mr. Haythorne was a man who deserved well of the people. He took an active interest in the country, and was in every way a friend of this Province. A practical farmer himself, he sought to impress on the farmers the great necessity there was for a new departure in respect to their methods of agriculture. In 1869, a special Committee was appointed to look into the state of agriculture on the Island. They met on the 10th day of August, and appointed Hon. Daniel Brenan chairman and Mr. Archibald McNeill acting secretary,and on the 12th of the same month, arrangements were made for holding an exhibition of the various objects, the produce and manufacture of the colony, in the drill hall and adjoining grounds on the 9th and 10th of October, and a show of horses and live stock on Rochford Square. Amongst other things they say in their report:

"Implement makers might be induced to send specimens of the latest and most improved inventions; for example, the demand for mowing machines is supplied by one enterprising individual who, of course, names his own prices, and it is by no means certain that he supplies either the best or the cheapest articles. Neither is there at present in use amongst us any efficient horse pitchfork; our threshing machines and winnowing machines are of the most ordinary description. We have few steel mould plate ploughs, still fewer cultivators; our horse hoes are very indifferent, and our common field harrows perform, probably, one-third less work per day than a gang of English or Scotch iron harrows."

Speaking of butter and cheese they say: "Probably none of the judges in the hall had a more difficult task to perform than that accomplished by the judges of the dairy produce department. A limited quantity of a very superior cheese is produced, and a large quantity generally of a very inferior kind is imported. Though it be true that many obstacles exist to prevent successful cheese making in small dairies, yet there is nothing to hinder the adoption of the cheese factory system, which has proved so successful and remunerative elsewhere."

Speaking of the number of agricultural implements on exhibition, they say: "They possessed no novelty. There was one good well made farm cart, under £12 in value, useful truck waggon, some well made wood harrows, and a combined wood and iron plough. In this department, one of the utmost imortance in a community so dependent as this upon its agriculture, there is abundant room for improvement."

Well, the country has improved. But it now seems necessary for us to look over the situation in which we are and again to take a new departure. As a result of the opening up of the great Northwest lands from which heavy crops are obtained without manure, and upon which wheat can be grown for fifty cents per bushel, grain growing is not so profitable here as it was in the olden time. All the eastern provinces have passed through an ordeal of depression arising therefrom. Ontario, which is one of the largest of the provinces, suffered materially. The farmers there began to look around, as all wise men do, for a remedy for the difficulty, and the question of butter and cheese received their attention. At that time Canadian butter and cheese bore no character in the markets of the world. But the people took hold of the question and went into the matter, the result being that they have won a position second to none for cheese in the great English market, and a better position than their great southern neighbors. In this building you heard Lord and Lady Aberdeen, Professor Robertson and ex-Governor Hoard express the opinion that Prince Edward Island is well adapted to the production of butter and cheese. The consensus of the opinion of the highest authorities is that here we have a soil and climate admirably adapted to the productions of the dairy. In the year 1890 there were in Canada 1565 cheese factories, employing a capital of $2,586,599 and 3013 hands, and the total value of the output of that year was $9,784,288. In 1894 Canada exported $13,407,470 worth of cheese to the United Kingdom—that is to say, 50 per cent. of the total import of the Mother Country. At the same time the value of the cheese export of the United States was $7,624,648. Referring to the Provinces, in 1871 Ontario had 323 cheese factories; in 1881, 551. In 1871 Quebec had only 25 cheese factories; in 1881 she had 140, and in 1891 617. The product of each cow in Ontario in 1893 was $19.60 per year, or at the rate of 15 cents per day. The product in Quebec was $17.40 per cow, or at the rate of 13 cents a day—this was over and above the milk used in the families of the owners. Thus you will see that a great advance has been made in respect to butter and cheese in the larger Provinces of the Dominion. Shall we have our share in this movement? Is it not necessary for us to take another new departure? We have a million acres of land in this Province. What is best to be done with this land? That is the question we have to consider. Shall we go on in the old way? Or shall we take a new departure and turn our attention to newer and better methods of farming, and participate in the work which is going on in Ontario and Quebec? We have done a great deal in respect to horse-breeding. P. E. Island horses have a reputation on the continent. But as a result of the introduction of electricity, the demand for horses has decreased, and it is now time to pay some attention to the cow.

There is another new departure that might be taken, and that is towards the establishment of canneries for small fruit and vegetables. As our farms become more productive of these things, they will rise in value; and it might be well to consider, in this connection, the propriety of giving to one or two sons on the farm the special work of looking after a special department such as this of raising small fruits and vegetables for canning purposes.

One thing more. The great value of our railway is seen here to-day in the large assemblage from all parts of the Province to see and profit by this exhibition, and the value of quick ingress and egress to and from this Province and the American continent must be apparent to everyone. The day of the old flail and reaping hook is gone; and to occupy a day in going between Charlottetown and Moncton in the latter part of the nineteenth century is disgraceful. It is a situation that ought to be remedied. There is no reason why we should not have communication with the mainland from two to four times a day thus giving express carriage to all the products of the farm, and enabling them to reach easily and quickly our customers on the continent. When that time arrives, the farms of P. E. Island will have a value, and our farmers and their sons will have a ready and ample reward for their industry.

The show of this year is, we think it will be admitted, taken as a whole, the best that has yet been held in Charlotte town. There are upwards of a thousand entries of live stock, including about 220 horses; nearly seven hundred exhibits of roots, vegetables and grain: about a thousand entries of fruit; nearly four hundred of flowers, nearly a hundred of dairy products, and upwards of three hundred of the industrial arts. Every visitor will admit that, taking the size of this agricultural Province into consideration, the exhibition of this week is creditable in a high degree. The fruit shows the professional development which has been evident in recent years. Never before was the display so large and varied; never before was it as fine. It has crowded the flowers away to the right and the vegetables to the left, leaving but little space for the special exhibits, which were shown upon the ground flour in former years. The show of roots and vegetables, too, would, we have no hesitation in saying, be creditable to any country in the world, and reflects great credit upon Messrs. Edward Bayfield, George King, Richard and James Burke and other exhibitors whose names our reporter was unable to obtain. In the show of grain the improvement is not, perhaps, so marked, but improvement is evident. The display of butter and cheese is very fine in respect, particularly, to quality. Of poultry and pigs and sheep, there are large and lively exhibits, over-crowding the buildings prepared for their accommodation; and of horses and cattle there is no lack. A more particular description will appear in The Examiner of the succeeding days of the Exhibitton.

In the old place in the main building may be seen Beer Bros.' exhibit of furs. It will be found upon examination that in variety and beauty of goods their exhibit equals, if not excels, any display of previous years. In addition to a large assortment of ordinary furs, they show beautiful novelties in real Sable, Persian lamb, Thibet lamb, South Sea seal and beaver. Our attention was drawn particularly to the quality of these furs, which is excellent. The booth is artistically draped with handsome portieres and silk curtains,and, as in previous years, Mr. Sentner is in charge, and willing to give every information.

A short distance away, in the usual place, may be seen James Paton & Co's., display, which is most artistically arranged. There is a hall with stairway elegantly carpeted. The floor is covered with linoleum, and the front and two sides is draped with handsome chenille portieres and the back wall with silk tapestry. The ceiling is corrugated. On the floor of the hall can be seen many of the valuable rugs sold by this enterprising firm, including a magnificent leopard skin. Hanging over the tops of the curtains are elegant skins in loopard, wolf, fox, etc. Here and there along the hall are bunches of heather, and in conspicuous places are printed notices pointing out the advantage of trading at the famous "Scotch Store."

Prowse Bros., better known as the "Wonderful Cheap Men," are to the front with a capital display of readymade clothing, fur coats, hats and caps. They also make a splendid show of gentlemen's waterproof coats, which they claim to sell cheaper than the cheapest. They do not make a display of carpets—they invite an inspection at their store. "This show," said the junior partner, "is nothing to what we have at the store." There is a good deal of interesting information in the placards around the booth.

Alongside Prowse Bros. booth is that occupied by Haszard & Moore, the enterprising printers, bookbinders and stationers. Their booth is tastefully fitted up, and they make a splendid display. Their showing of commercial blank books, made in their establishment under the supervision of Mr. Gillespie, is the largest ever seen here, and the workmanship throughout is in the highest degree creditable. They also make a grand showing of Berlin photographs, for which they are sole agents. Mr. G. H. Haszard has a beautiful display of rare flowers and plants and Japanese terra cotta ware in a stall adjoining.

Geo. Carter & Co's apartments are to the right of the main entrance, and are nicely fitted up. They make a splendid display of school and college books, maps, inks, and other school requisites. They also show the standard poets in elegant bindings, together with a large collection of beautifully-bound bibles, prayer books and hymn books, pictures, easels, etc. The display is one that must be seen to be appreciated.

Beside Carter's booth is the space alotted to Miller Bros. That it is most attractively fitted up goes without saying, and the display is fully up, if not superior to, that of previous years. They show Heintzman, Dominion and Karn pianos, and a large assortment of organs by different makers, including the celebrated Karn and Dominion. These goods are all finished in oak and walnut, and are all they are represented to be. They also show a novelty in the shape of a pianette, besides an assortment of sewing machines by first-class makers.

Dodd & Rogers are again on deck with a splendid display of cutlery, carpenters' and blacksmiths' tools, and everything usually found in a first-class hardware store. Their display is in the old place, directly opposite the main entrance, and catches the eye immediately on entering. In one case they show 350 different kinds of pocket cutlery, and on each of the four corners of the counter is a post which is artistically decorated with knives, forks, spoons, etc. They also make a good showing of stoves and ranges. They are agents for the Model Grand and Palace Ranges and Sultana and Silver Moon base-burners.

C. J. Patton & Co., make a splendid exhibit of cloths, blanketings, yarns, flannels, and druggets, all Island make. Mr. Patton says "they are warranted or no sale, and are good enough for the most fastidious."

The McKay Woolen Mills make a large and good showing of readymade clothing, in all the leading styles, and also display fur goods, tweeds, flannels, blankets, etc., They invite inspection of their goods, and will be pleased to furnish every information regarding them.

Johnson & Johnson, the reliable druggists, are also to the front. They display Peel's Food, arranged in pyramid shape, on the main floor, and on the balcony they have a neatly finished cabinet, decorated with advertisements of Everybody's Pills, and a banner, neatly painted, calling attention to their large and excellent stock of medicines and drugs. Every purchaser of a bag of Peel's food will be given an elegant photograph free. There are views of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, the arch at City Building, etc.,

Fennell & Chandler make a splendid showing of the celebrated Highland ranges, which are certainly "a thing of beauty" and cannot fail to be "a joy forever," to the person who is fortunate enough to secure one. Examine them carefully when at the Exhibition.

Jones & McRae make a display of the canned and glass goods put up at their establishment, Pownal. These goods consist of strawberries, cherries, plums, gooseberries, peas, jellies, and jams, all of which were put up neatly and carefully under the supervision of persons who thoroughly understand their business. Encourage home industry.

J. Edgecombe & Sons of Fredericton, make a good display of the Carriages made by them; and the elegant new hearse made by McInnis Bros. for Mark Wright & Co. is also on exhibition.

The P. E. Island Soap Works display the Diamond Potash—the good qualities of which are well known.

John Stumbles makes a splendid display of harness, made of the best leather and handsomely mounted.

W. F. Carter has a good general refreshment booth in the main building.

STANLEY BROS.

OUR aim in the purchase of this Stock has been to give buyers the very best that money can buy; the best not only in appearance, but in actual worth and wear. The selections have been carefully made in regard to QUALITY, STYLES, FIT, FINISH and WORKMANSHIP, with a view to the satisfaction of patrons, and with regard to our own reputation. They are not only goods that will sell well but goods that will wear well. It costs no more to choose from a large stock than a small one, and purchasers who wish to combine economy of expenditure with the widest freedom of choice will do well to keep our Store in view.
