

PRACTICALLY IRREPLACEABLE

Gordon Roper of Sherwood, property warden at St. Paul's Anglican Church in Charlottetown, points to the location in a stain glass window through which a stone was thrown sometime Friday evening. The broken window, located on the north side of St. Paul's, was termed "practically irreplaceable." Mr. Roper said to fix such a window a man would have to be brought possibly from Quebec. This was one of three windows broken over the weekend by pranksters playing in the vicinity of the church. The stain window, an Edwin Aitken Memorial, is approximately 40 years old. This church was consecrated by Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia in July, 1896.

Munsinger Probe To Resume Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The Gerda Munsinger hearings resume today, still under fire from politicians and columnists over the secrecy that has surrounded earlier sessions.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence, the Supreme Court of Canada judge who is sitting as a one-man royal commission, has ruled that press and public will get their second peek behind the scenes.

The start (10.30 a.m. EDT) of today's hearing will be open. But it may lapse into in-camera sessions at any time, as occurred at the only other public hearing a week ago.

Mr. Cardin accused Opposition Leader Diefenbaker of mis-handling the case when it came to his attention during his term as prime minister. He said it was not referred to the law officers of the justice department for an opinion.

Mr. Justice Spence said at the only public session held so far that the only evidence on espionage activities, as distinguished from suspicion, concerned the period well before 1955 and outside of Canada.

Following Mr. Cardin's allegations, one former Conservative minister, Pierre Sevigny, said publicly that he knew Mrs. Munsinger socially while associate defence minister.

Another, George Hees, a former trade and transport minister, said he lunched twice with a woman who well may be Mrs. Munsinger but did not know her by that name.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Fulton protested publicly and Mr. Justice Spence ruled that interested parties may be represented at all future hearings by their lawyers who would be allowed to question witnesses.

The second hearing March 18 opened in public with counsel for Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Fulton and Mr. Hees applying for public hearings. Counsel for the commission opposed the application.

Mr. Justice Spence rejected the application in an interim decision. The press and public was sent from the room and Mr. Hees testified in camera.

Queen's County Division of the P.E.I. Girl Guides Association was host to the training for Guides and Commissioners and presented Mrs. W.A. Henry and Mary Donahoe assisted with the arrangements for the training, which was held in conjunction with the Association's annual meeting Saturday afternoon.

Leading the session was Mrs. G.A. Locke of Montreal, trainer, who outlined the research leading up to and the development of the new program. The Guide who at 14 has got all she can from the Guide program, Mrs. Locke said, should be encouraged to move up to Rangers. In this branch she will be able to enjoy the adventure of Guiding at a more mature part of her life.

During discussions groups, ways of encouraging greater participation in Rangers were discussed, and it was felt a constant effort must be made to acquaint mothers with the suitability of the Ranger program for girls in this age group, the girls themselves with the fact that Rangers are really designed for their busy lives and need occupy only an hour or two a week, and the even Guide Leaders must be made aware of their part in seeing that Guides are aware of the opportunities in Rangers.

Pope Pius XII Saved Jews From Death At Nazi Hands

JERUSALEM (AP) — Pope Pius XII and his diplomatic corps saved at least 700,000 Jews from death under the Nazis, says Israeli author Pinhas Lapide.

Lapide, former Israeli consul in Milan and an officer in the Jewish Brigade in the Second World War, makes his claim in his book The Last Three Popes and the Jews, to be published this year by the Haan Publishing House of Hilversum, The Netherlands.

Lapide's views contrasted to those of Rolf Hochhuth, author of The Deputy, who claims that the late Pope Pius, while saving a few Jews, failed to protest openly against their mass murder by Hitler.

Lapide says the Pope not only spoke out six times in defence of the Jews through encyclicals, radio appeals and pastoral messages, but also used all the means at his disposal to initiate rescue work secretly.

Lapide bases his claims mainly on Jewish sources including the archives of the Yad Vashem Memorial Authority here, the Zionist central archives, material at the Hebrew University Library here and accounts from 21 Jewish survivors. Any pronouncement more outspoken than those Pope Pius Lapide told The Associated Press Sunday that he was motivated to write his book, which required 2½ years of research, because he felt pained over the "sudden silence on Pope Pius" in the wake of Hochhuth's posthumous attack through "The Deputy."

Lapide claimed that the attack is "not based on a single fact previously unknown."
