Observances Planned For Air Cadet Week

OTTAWA, April 21 — The Air Cadet League of Canada will observe national Air Cadet Week during the period April 28th to May 4th, inclusive, it was announced today by League president Gustave LeDroit.

In both large and small communities across Canada, close to 300 Air Cadet squadrons will observe the special week by holding church parades, "open houses" and other functions which the public will be invited to attend.

The main purpose of Air Cadet Week is to provide the provincial and local committees of the League with an opportunity to campaign for public support.

In Mr. LeDroit's announcement, he appealed to all "public spirited" citizens interested in the welfare of Canadian youth, to support the League's activities. He stated that over 115,000 Canadian boys have received Air Cadet training since the movement was founded in 1941; 55,000 have attended summer camps; over 3,100 cadets have been taught to fly; 337 young "Ambassadors for Canada" have made goodwill exchange trips abroad; 700 cadets have attended special leadership courses; and over 80 cadets have received educational scholarships having a total value of more than $50,000.

The League president said that 16 new Air Cadet squadrons were opened in Canada last year and that Air Cadet strength across the country is now close to 22,000 cadets.
