THE DAILY EXAMINER.

NOVEMBER 14, 1896.

REFORMING THE SENATE.

The Liberal press is just now making a great cackle over the appointment to the Senate of Hon. David Mills and Mr. G. A. Cox. These gentlemen are, confessedly, among the ablest and best to be found in the Liberal party, and the Liberal papers imply that the first step in the reform of the Senate has already been taken. This way of "reforming the Senate" is perfectly legitimate. We feel sure that no Conservative will complain it it should be taken at every opportunity. There are many excellent men in the Liberal party, and if the best of these be chosen for the Senate the tone of the Senate cannot fail in the course of a few years to be changed, if not improved. It may be, too, that after their appointment the Liberal appointees will discover that the Senate is not so bad as they supposed it to be. That good man, Sir Oliver Mowat, was fain to publicly confess, after he had been in the Senate but a few days, that the men who sat there were the choicest spirits in the country. There he found men of the widest political experience, men who did not hesitate to look at both sides of a question, men who dealt with the merits of the cases which they had to decide men who look to the good of the country rather than to the triumph of party, men of urbanity as well as of ability,—and he did not hesitate to say so in the course of a very notable speech. He seemed to believe, as a result of that which he had seen, that the Senate is very well as it is. It may be that Senator Mills and Cox, and other Liberal Senators to be appointed in the future will experience a similar conversion. It is true that not long ago, the Hon. David Mills said that the Senate "is an isolated body, an excrescence upon our constitution, placed beyond the pale of the influence of public opinion, and without any sympathy with any element in the state." But now that he finds himself a member of that "isolated body," the Hon. David Mills may perhaps be constrained to admit with Sir Oliver that there are some good uses for the Senate other than to be a refuge of rejected candidates for the Commons; and he may hesitate before attempting to tinker with its constitution. Certainly with the record of the deceased elective second chamber in Prince Edward Island before him, he will not favor the Patriot's suggestion that the Senate be made an elected body. Far better that it be re-elected, and that such men as he should upon occasion, gravitate towards it, than that its members should, after the manner of our Legislative Council, be elected to put through every measure of a government with whom its majority was in sympathy, no matter how bad, and to throw out all important measures of a government by whom its majority was opposed, no matter how good. Better not have a second chamber at all than have it elective. Better far better, the way of Senate reform upon which the Government have entered than the way pointed out by the Patriot. The experience of the United States, in which an elective Senate has so far deteriorated that it is now probably the most corrupt legislative body in the world, ought to be sufficient to decide all men that selected senators make up a greatly superior chamber to one the members of which would, from time to time, be elected by the Provincial Legislatures.

Nor can can we suppose that the Liberal party will adopt the Patriot's suggestion that there should be an "age limit" for Senators. In fairness it will be impossible to do this because some senators are bright and clear of intellect at an age at which others are in their dotage. A few senators will, perchance, live to be "decrepit in mind and body"; but these can never have any influence whatever over the acts of an independent legislative body. Experience has proved that death with his scythe cuts our senators off so fast that comparatively young men are constantly in request to fill up the gaps. At any rate, we ought to be kind to the aged. Such men as Senator Mills, men who have devoted their lives to the service of the country, ought not, in the extremity of their age, to be cast out. No; the Government has, in the appointment of able and distinguished members of their party, adopted the right plan of Senate reform,—the plan that was followed by their predecessors.

THE SEALING ARBITRATION.

The arbitration be opened in Victoria, on Monday, resulted from the provision that whichever party to the Behring Sea claims lost the case in Paris should pay damages to the owners of the vessels seized while taking seals outside the three mile limit. In the event of a dispute upon the point it was provided by the Paris Commission that the amount of the damages should be fixed by arbitration. Having lost the case, the United States are liable; and the question is, for how much? As a result of correspondence between the United States and British Governments it was agreed that the lump sum of $425,000 should be paid. But the Senate of the United States refused to endorse the agreement. Recourse is now, therefore, had to arbitration.

The contention of Lord Salisbury is that when the facts are fully before the public of the United States the liability of that country, which has never been denied by its Government, will be generally recognized, both inside and outside of Congress. He states that "the seizures were, in fact, formal acts of the United States Government in the exercise of the rights and jurisdiction which they claimed: and the tribunal, in declaring that they had no title to such rights and jurisdiction, necessarily declared that the loss and injury inflicted on British subjects, in pursuance of those rights and jurisdiction, were unwarranted. As they also found that 'the seizures were made by the authority of the United States Government,' this decision was a declaration that the United States Government, having inflicted an unwarrantable wrong, were liable to pay compensation for such wrong." Lord Salisbury declares further that the Behring Sea claims arise out of the direct action of the United States Government—action declared by an international tribunal to be entirely unjustifiable. They are made out, not for profits based on the results of profitable seasons, but on actual results of the seasons in which they arose. Some of the claimants not only lost their property, but suffered a rigorous imprisonment in a severe climate.

On the other hand the United States contention is that some of the claims are barred because the vessels seized were wholly or partly owned by their own citizens. It is also contended that part of damages claimed are in the nature of speculative profits, such, for instance as claims for catch of seals which a vessel detained might have made during the voyage which was interrupted.

The details of the leading claims, to which considerable interest is to be added, are as follows:—

1886—For vessels seized	$ 81,406.00
Personal claims	18,060.00
1887—Vessels	191,463.11
Personal claims	13,635.00
1889—Vessels	132,653.00
1890—Vessels	2,000.00
W. P. Sayward costs	62,847.12
Extra for Juanita	3,002.66
Extra for Black Diamond (1886)	7,500.00
Extra for Ada	3,000.00
Henrietta	26,658.00
Total	$542,168 89

The interest on this to date will bring the total up to three-quarters of a million. In the main, the seizures were made from 15 to 115 miles from shore. It was decided by the Paris arbitration, and in fact admitted there by the United States, that the Republic had no territorial jurisdiction over the Behring Sea. It was decided also that it had no property rights over the seals not in American waters. The only plea, therefore, on which the seizures could be justified would be that they were made within three miles from shores which were the property of the United States. The admitted distances were as follows:

Name of vessel.	Date of seizure.	Appr'xim'te distance from land when seized Miles.
Carolena	Aug. 1886	75
Thornton	Aug. 1886	70
Onward	Aug. 1886	115
Favourite	Aug. 1886
Anna Beck	July 1887	66
W. P. Sayward	July 1887	59
Dolphin	July 1887	40
Grace	July 1887	96
Alfred Adams	Aug. 1887	62
Ada	Aug. 1887	15
Triumph	Aug. 1887	...
Juanita	July 1889	66
Pathfinder	July 1889	50

Lily	Aug. 1899	66
Ariel	July 1889	..
Kate	Aug. 1889	..
Minnie	July 1889	65

It will readily be seen that our case is exceptionally strong, and we confidently expect that Hon. Mr. Peters and his associate counsel will make the most of it.

RESULT OF TRADE UNCERTAINTY.

With every circumstance in favor of larger imports, with increased exports and higher prices for wheat and cheese, and with a great boom in the mining districts of the West,—the Government have less revenue this year than last. This is a result of the uncertainty caused by their halting policy in respect to the tariff. Business and the revenue are both suffering from uncertainty as to the articles upon which higher or lower rates of duty will be imposed.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—The lady who demanded from Mr. Laurier the immediate payment of ninety-eight billion dollars should have first put herself in communication with the Advisory Committee at Ottawa, and should have shown her loyalty to the party by concluding her letter with the mystic motto, "Business is business, as you know." Then she might have had her request acceded to.

—Mail and Empire: Hon. George A. Cox will do honour to the Senate. It is pleasing to find good business men going into that Chamber. Sir John Macdonald, like Mr. Laurier, appointed political friends to the Upper House. But his selections were not invariably Conservative. He appointed Hon. John Macdonald, a Reformer, and several gentlemen who had not been identified with any party, and who, in some cases, turned out to be "agin the Guv'ment."

—Professor Goldwin Smith does not let his friendly interest in Cornell flag. It will be remembered that when Cornell was founded, he resigned his professorship in the university of Oxford, England, to accept a professorship in Cornell, without accepting any pay, however. Yearly he slips quietly down from Toronto to lecture to his "old class in English History." As he is now growing old, and does not feel equal to large audiences, he does not give notice when he is coming. He always has as many listeners as the lecture room will permit, however. He lectured at Cornell this fall on the intimate relation of English and American sentiments and institutions. He does not believe with Douglass Campbell in the vital influence of the Dutch upon America.

—Professor Atkinson has discovered near Cornell University a "plant atoll" so called from its similarity in some respects to a coral atoll. Only two plant atolls had previously been known. This atoll consists of a ring of growing shrubs floating in a pond, enclosing a circle of water, and surrounded by water. The matted roots hold sufficient decayed vegetable matter to nourish the plants, and as more dead plants and leaves are accumulated year by year the ring is in process of becoming anchored to the bottom of the pond or in other words, of forming a ring of earth out in the middle of the pond. The origin of these curious botanical freaks can only be guessed at.

—Professor Burr, of Cornell, the historical expert of the Venezuelan Commission, soon to report the results of his long researches in the state archives of Holland, is a most remarkable man. He prepared for college in Cortland, N. Y., working in a printing office to support himself, his mother and his sister, and keeping up with his classes in the High School all the time. He claimed to have found the secret of living comfortably on fifty cents a week! He has a remarkable capacity for work. Indeed he doesn't seem able to do anything else, his scholarly enthusiasm keeping him always at it, day and night. It is said he can do with less sleep than Napoleon Bonaparte, who thought three or four hours out of twenty-four enough.

—A compendium published by President Schurman, of Cornell University, shows that during the college year 1895-96 ninety-one officers of the University printed 495 books and magazine articles. Religion is represented in President Schurman's "Agnosticism and Religion"; literature in Professor Corson's "The Voice and Spiritual Education"; law in Professor Huffcutts' "Elements of the Law of Agency"; science in Professor Tarr's "Elementary Physical Geography"; Professor Bailey's "Survival of Variation"; Professor Titchener's "Outline of Physiology," etc; languages in Professor Bennett's two volume Latin Grammar; and so on through the list of educational interests. Such a list gives an idea of the great activity in educational circles which is food for thought.

—Rev. J. H. Fairlie, principal of the Rupert's Land Industrial School, writes to the Winnipeg Nor'-Wester a stiff reply to the Liberal attack made upon him because of his refusal to admit champagne and whiskey into the institution for the use of Mr. Tarte and suite on the occasion of the recent inspection. He says that in view of the purpose of the school he would have been guilty of criminal negligence had he admitted the liquors. As to the charge that there was a bad smell in the school, he says he can well understand that "when a dozen men who have spent two hours at a banquet where champagne and whiskey and soda were served, and cigars freely smoked, get crowded into a small room. It is not conducive to sweet smells." He noticed the strong smell himself, but did not think the officers were to blame. It seems that Mr. Fairlie has been at the head of the school for three weeks only. He was appointed by the present Government to manage it, and he says "I understand my duty, and I daily ask God for strength to perform it fully and fearlessly, even to the extent of forbidding so powerful a delegation to bring whiskey within its walls." The inspection, which consisted of two hours' luncheon and a ten minutes examination of the school, was evidently a huge jamboree, and the principal would have nothing to do with it.

UPPER METHODIST CHURCH.

Debt Raising Scheme.

For many years the Upper Methodist Church of this city has been burdened with a debt of $2,500, which has taxed the congregation to keep the interest paid from year to year.

Out of the small weekly collections, three dollars have to be set aside for the interest on the above debt, and it keeps the congregation crippled all the time for funds to meet the running expenses.

The ladies, feeling the time has come to clear the Church of this burden, have decided to hold a "Birthday Party" on the night of the 26th (Thanksgiving), and are issuing a large number of invitations to the friends of the city, with the hope that the entire debt may be raised that night. Several gentlemen very kindly promised large amounts some time ago, which the ladies trust will find their way into the treasury on the 26th. While the small sack and invitation asks you for one cent for every year the invited guests are old, at the same time it is to be hoped that many will consider themselves several hundreds of years old and put into the sack accordingly.

A nice programme is provided and refreshments will be served. The only entrance fee will be the contents of the colored sack, which the church will be grateful to the invited friends to use very freely.

Cheques can be made payable to our pastor or to Mr. James Carter, Rec. Steward.

Signed on behalf of committee,
SARA MACRAE.

The reported discovery of tin ore in British Columbia is interesting and may be important. Though tin is found in Spain and Portugal, Bohemia, Saxony, Australia and the United States, the world's main supply comes from Great Britain and the Straits of Malacca. The demand is very large and is not likely to decrease. Should the newly discovered deposits be of commercial value, they are likely to yield more profit to the country than many of the gold mines that are being so much exploited.

The Buffalo Gold Mining Company have acquired and paid for in full, three claims, The Buffalo, Ontario and Great Britain No 1, each 1,500 ft square, are situated on O. K. Mountain about three quarters of a mile from the famous O. K., the great free-milling property of Trail Creek, and about three miles from the town of Rossland On the Buffalo claim, there are two leads, one of quartz, from four to fifteen feet wide, and cropping for 800 feet, from the surface of which assays have been taken running from $3 to $12 in gold per ton. The other is an immense iron cap nearly 30 feet wide

On the Ontario only prospecting work has been done, consisting of stripping a fine ledge which crops out through the claim

On the Great Britian No 1 there is a white quartz lead running through the property from which free gold has been obtained This is confidently expected to prove up well when further work has been done.

Taking everything into consideration, having three full claims, the numerous ledges, (and especially the free milling ledge), cheap transportation, the stock in this company should prove a paying investment and well worthy of your attention.

Customs Returns—A Falling Revenue.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.

A meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday. It is stated that the terms of the Manitoba school settlement, as revised by the Provincial Government in conjunction with the Hon. Mr. Tarte, were under consideration and are accepted by the Dominion Government as the best bargain that could be secured from Manitoba.

Speaking of the school settlement, a Quebec friend of the Premier said that there had been no material changes in the basis of the agreement as previously reported; and replying to a question as to how Quebec would take the compromise, he replied: "That will be all right. Permission to use the French language in the teaching in school districts where children are not able to speak English, is a sop to Quebec which will go a long way towards making amends for the loss of separate schools.

The monthly returns of the Dominion revenue shows the receipts for October to have been $3,165,000 compared with $3,177,000—a decrease of $72,000. The decrease in customs receipts was $160,000.
