THE NEW CATHEDRAL
To Be Erected by the Roman Catholics.
Progress of the Movement Since Its Inception.
The Total Amount of Money Received Up to Date,
And the Sources From Which It Was Obtained.
The Architects' Plans Described.

The great necessity there is for a new Roman Catholic Cathedral in Charlottetown has been apparent for many years past. The present building, which is one of the landmarks of the city, has withstood the ravages of time remarkably well. It is, however, much too small for the requirements of the congregation, a fact which has prompted the church authorities to set to work with the view of replacing it by a more pretentious and more commodious edifice—a structure that will not only be a credit to the Roman Catholics of the parish, but an ornament to the city. This movement, which was inaugurated by the late lamented Bishop McIntyre about the time his Silver Jubilee was celebrated, has been assiduously followed up by his successor, the present Bishop of Charlottetown. Plans of the proposed edifice have been made by Mr. W. C. Harris and by Mr. C. B. Chappell, and the work of erection will be commenced as quickly as possible.

PROGRESS OF THE MOVEMENT.
 It was on the evening of the 30th May, 1888, that a meeting of the Congregation of St. Dunstan's Cathedral was held in St. Joseph's Convent to consider the advisability of building a new church. There was a good attendance, and the necessity there was for a new place of worship was very rightly presented by Bishop McIntyre and by some leading members of the congregation. A building committee was then formed as follows: Owen Connolly, Thomas Handrahan, Patrick Blake, Henry Hughes, Joseph B. Macdonald, Charles Lyons and Michael Hickey. Messrs. Connolly, Handrahan and Hughes subsequently resigned—not being able to give the movement the attention they thought it should receive at their hands—and Messrs. A. A. Macdonald, Geo. W. Howland, M. P. Hogan, Thomas Foley, Richard Reddin, John Kelly, Michael Egan and Francis McKory were appointed additional members of the committee at a meeting held on the 25th July. A. A. Macdonald was appointed chairman of the committee, M. P. Hogan, Treasurer, and Thomas Foley, Secretary. These gentlemen, with the assistance of Mr. Henry Fitzgerald, carried on the work of collecting, etc., until the 30th of September, 1889, when Messrs. P. A. McIntyre, Charles W. Quirk, Joseph McCarey, John T. Clarkin, John McQuillan, jr., and A. E. McEachen were added to the committee for the purpose of lightening their labors. In November, 1891, it was deemed advisable to still further increase the committee by appointing thereto Messrs. M. J. Moren, Joseph A. Macdonald, Patrick Callaghan, Jas. Byrne, Michael Sweeney, Michael Trainor, Alfred J. Quirk, D. O'M. Reddin, jr., John Connolly, Dr. Conroy, P. P. Gillis, William Murray, sr., B. O'Callaghan and Richard Reddin, with Mr. P. Grant as secretary. There have been no additions made since.

ALL HAVE WORKED HARD.
 The different members of the committee have labored hard to make the work a success. His Lordship Bishop McIntyre, who was famous as a church builder, during his lifetime looked carefully after every detail, and his successor in office has also been assiduous in his efforts to promote the good work. The priests of the Cathedral staff have also rendered much valuable assistance, Father Reid being one of the working members of the committee. To all the subscriptions and envelope contributions is $19,720. Of this sum $6,000 was paid for the old hospital premises, $6,000 is invested in city debentures, and the balance, except what has gone for expenses, is deposited in the Dominion Savings Bank and in the Bank of Nova Scotia. The great bulk of the money has been collected from the Cathedral congregation. This year the country parishes will be asked to assist, and it is expected that they will be generous in their contributions. Since the movement was inaugurated several donations have been received from persons belonging to other parishes throughout the province, as well as from members of other communities. The cost of the proposed church will be in the neighborhood of $80,000 or $90,000.

MR. HARRIS' PLAN DESCRIBED.
 The Cathedral, as designed by Mr. Harris, is one hundred and ninety-eight feet long, seventy-two feet wide across the nave and aisles, and ninety feet wide across transepts, and is to stand with length east and west on the centre of the present Cathedral site, leaving thirty five feet clear land space between front and line of Great George Street, and thirty-five feet between sanctuary end and rear of lot, and about forty feet on each side. This will give a very ample space all round the Cathedral for grass, shrubbery, seats and trees.
 The building is designed in the early Gothic style of the twelfth century, the great era of church-building in France and England, when Notre Dame, of Paris, and Westminster Abbey, of London, were erected.

 The main features of the structure are treated simply and boldly, and a combination of strength and lightness has been aimed at in the general effect.
 The construction will depend on an economical use of light olive green and brown-tinted Wallace sandstone, the surface treated with simple rough faces as the stone comes from the quarry. The stones being of two colors, which beautifully harmonize, the various string courses running along the walls can be effectually indicated by the color of the stone instead of by the use of expensively hand-painted mouldings.
 A commanding tower and spire on the south-east angle, in which is a large and inviting entrance portal, will be the prominent feature seen in approaching the Cathedral from the wharves and hotels. The spire will be about twenty feet higher than the present one, and the old, familiar clock that has been giving time to the city for nearly half a century, will be arranged somewhat higher than at present, at the junction of the tower and spire.

CARVING AND SCULPTURE.
 The buttresses flanking the aisle walls at the side of the building will be carved by blocks of sandstone ready to be carved into statues as soon as some of the youngsters of the present generation shall have developed their taste and capacity in the direction of carving and sculpture.
 The transept gables will form prominent features in the side elevation and are pierced with large, boldly designed windows.
 A main entrance porch adjoins the transept gables at about the centre of the length of the building on the south side, and a similar one on the north side opens directly into a basement corridor that crosses the building from porch to porch, thus giving a spacious and well lighted and ventilated entrance corridor into the basement, in which much of the active work of the Cathedral may be carried on. Opening from the corridor on the east side is a large apartment for Sunday School and lecture purposes with single platform, ante-room and small library attached.
 Opening from the corridor on the west side is a compact chapel for daily masses, to seat 540 persons, having altar, sanctuary and confessional in walls. To the west of the chapel is a large sacristy and between chapel and sacristy ample space is given to confessional requirements.
 Opening from the sacristy on one side near the priests' entrance is the Bishop's vestry, and opening from sacristy on the opposite side is a safe room for the keeping of valuable properties that may accumulate in the Cathedral.
 Opening from sacristy and aisle staircase up to sanctuary is a large room for surplice choir boys and for the mixed choir to use as a practice room.
 Under the sacristy where the slope of the land is lowest, will be arranged a cellar for boiler room and coal.
 The side opening in the basement corridor will also have entrances into the ground floor of the Cathedral transepts above.

THE MAIN ENTRANCES.
 The main entrances to the ground floor will be from the Great George Street end, where there will be, including the width of the present street, an open space in front of the Cathedral of one hundred and thirty-five feet.
 One entrance door will be in the tower, one in the centre of the main gable, and one in the porch facing the north, to receive people from the direction of Queen Square.
 In the thickness of tower walls is arranged a circular staircase to the organ and gallery so that main entrance corridor from tower entrance across the end of the building to the north porch will be unobstructed and spacious and afford easy access to the nave and aisles.
 The main interior of the Cathedral is divided into nave and narrow side aisles, transepts and sanctuary. At the crossing of the nave, transepts and sanctuary, the usual cathedral construction of four central heavy piers is not adopted, but instead, this central space is thrown into a very broad octagonal form, so that the main pillars forming the angles of the octagon are thrown back towards the main walls and support the octagonal vaulted roof which is itself to be a central and beautiful feature.
 This arrangement will give an effect of grandeur and openness to the central portion of the edifice where the bulk of the people will be seated, and the proportion of each face of the octagon wall surfaces being very high in comparison to its width, will intensify the idea of apparent height, without which no cathedral interior can have any imposing dignity. The vertical lines of high pillars and pointed roof arches throughout the interior are arranged to aid this apparent height, while the actual height in measurement is comparatively low and the interior air space requiring heat in winter only moderate in quantity.
 The low professional entrance arches in the central octagon walls being strongly contrasted with the adjoining sanctuary, vertical pillars and arch will give to the latter much apparent height.

HOW IT WILL BE LIGHTED.
 The building will be lighted principally from the upper clerestory windows, and the effect of the light falling from above will give quietness and solemnity to the interior and still further increase the idea of loftiness in the building.
 Well-lighted spaces in the sanctuary and transept walls are arranged where paintings from scenes in church history may be effectively placed.
 The choir is spaciouly arranged to accommodate a large number of surplice choir boys and priests, and the sanctuary affords ample space for Cathedral ceremonies.
 At one side of the sanctuary is arranged a small sacristy for special use in the case

SKODA'S DISCOVERY CO.
 GENTS:—We cannot but be grateful, for the benefit our little babe derived from the use of SKODA'S REMEDIES. When less than 9 months old, his face broke out with a Terrible Eczema. The itching and burning caused him to scratch so much that his cheeks became raw, and he cried considerably. He suffered extremely. We gave him 3 drop doses of the DISCOVERY internally, used the SOAP and OINTMENT externally, and in a few weeks he was perfectly cured, and is today a rugged, healthy boy.
 Respectfully,
