BAPTIST ASSOCIATION AT EAST POINT—The Young People's meeting on Saturday evening was largely attended. The President, Mr. Spurgeon Clark of Tryon presided. The officers for the ensuing year were elected, namely: vice-president, Mr. Edward McPhail; secretary and treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Neider. One of the special features of the evening was the oratorical contest. The contestants were Miss Elizabeth Neider of Tryon and Mr. Charles Taylor of Summerside who gave excellent addresses on Missions. The judges namely, Dr. E. S. Mason, Rev. A. Gibson and Rev. L. A. Therrien, declared Miss Neider the winner. This was followed by a very interesting address on Young People's work by Rev. A. Gibson.

MONTHLY MEETING KENNINGTON MISSIONARY SOCIETY—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Kennington Presbyterian Church was held on Thursday afternoon, July 9th with the President, Mrs. (Rev.) W. O. Rhoad in the chair. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Robert Bowness. After the routine business was concluded, a pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of a Life Membership Certificate to Mrs. Rhoad, by Miss Jane Giorwa, who in a few well chosen words expressed on behalf of the Society, the appreciation of valued services rendered by Mrs. Rhoad during her presidency. Mrs. Rhoad thanked the members for their kind expression of appreciation. The lesson from "The Message" on Missions, was read by Mrs. James Jardine, and a portion of the Study Book on "Life of Dr. Robertson," was read by Mrs. Alexander Hiltz. Meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer.—B.

POPULAR IDEA
been in existence for many years and now legislation has been provided and the idea is taking root here. One of its advantages is that it does away with installment buying, one of the devices for filching money from the people. "The union is the nearest thing to being fool proof that can be imagined but do not get into it, however, until you know all about it," he advised.
In the third field, that of co-operative marketing, the speaker said that he did not intend to say much about it as such a system was well known in this province. In production, the fourth field, an attempt which has proven very successful has been made in Nova Scotia in the lobster business. A small concern organized in 1929 to handle lobsters had been so successful that when the season closed recently the 70 men in the co-operative organization had a $10,000 bonus to divide.
"The thing that holds most companies back is the fact that there are several men who are prosperous to a certain extent, have bank accounts and refuse to think things out and do their part in helping their fellow men, Dr. Coady believed.
There are certain industries which must be nationalized or municipalized. "Why should great natural resources be given into the control of a few men for them and their descendants to reap profits from for ever?" the speaker asked. It would be as wise to have the postal system, the education system or any other great national work in the hands of private individuals. There are certain business, however, which are better left to private ownership.
"There is not too much time to put the economic system on a better basis. We shall probably be caught by a great upheaval before the re-organization is complete," the speaker said in conclusion.
Dr. Coady was tendered a very hearty vote of thanks by the meeting, moved by Hon. W. H. Dennis, Minister of Agriculture, and seconded by Dr. W. J. R. MacMillan. Several spoke in support of the motion. Mr. H. E. Shaw, Chief Superintendent of Education, presided.

Sons Of Temperance Congratulate P. E. I.

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) SYDNEY, N. S., July 15—Sons of Temperance of North America, in annual session here, today received a recommendation from the state of the order committee to employ organizers in Virginia and the New England States.

Noting the order would be 100 years old in 1942, the delegates planned to have a membership of 100,000 by the time of their centenary celebration.

Congratulations were extended to Prince Edward Island for enforcing prohibition while all the other provinces of Canada turned the government over to the liquor traffic. Officers attending the convention include Miss Mary C. Sufra, Providence, R. I., Assistant Most Worthy Scribe; Rev. R. H. Staver, Wood Islands, P. E. I., Most Worthy Chaplain; Mrs. Anna R. Baedor, Hartford, Conn., Past Most Worthy Patriarch; Mrs. Augusta Rowmer, Hartford, Most Worthy Conductor; and Roland Evanson, Philadelphia, Most Worthy Treasurer.

One of the oldest members attending is Mrs. Anna Sufra of Providence, who is 87 years old and now is participating in her 65th annual meeting.

SYDNEY, N. S., July 15—(CP)—The Sons of Temperance have strongly commended the efforts of the authorities in Prince Edward Island who would extend the medicinal vendor system into what could virtually become a Government sales system. H. P. Newcombe, Most Worthy Patriarch, told the 92nd convention of the Sons of Temperance of North America in his presidential address here today.

"The prohibition law of the province was endangered and we are glad to know that the efforts of the temperance forces have been successful so far, and that our Order has played its part," Mr. Newcombe added.

Address and Presentation

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Green on Thursday last when Jubilee W. I. entertained in honor of Miss Alma Yeo and Miss Hazel Green, both valued members, who are leaving the district. In the absence of the President, Mrs. W.P. Cameron acted as chairlady and stated the purpose of the gathering. She then read the following address and Miss Kathleen Bassett presented the resolutions.

"I think the money we receive would be better spent in education work in the homes," said Dr. Creelman.

Prince Edward Island needed to employ a nurse who could take care of the tuberculous patients in the Women's Institutes and from campaigns. I think the money we receive would be better spent in education work in the homes," said Dr. Creelman.

Dr. Creelman stated he had "no apologies to make for the tuberculosis work I have done and I feel you have none."
The Women's Institutes convention was given a first aid demonstration by J. H. Morrison, vice-principal of the Women's Institutes. The demonstration included bandaging, proper bandaging methods in cases of fractured collar bone, thigh bandaging, bandaging of fractured kneecaps with use of splints, bandaging for fractured shin-bone with splints. A demonstration of artificial respiration methods was also given.

President Mrs. Allison MacMillan of Fairview reported on the annual convention of the Associated Country Women of the World held recently at Winnipeg, B. C.

Mr. Justice A. E. Arsenault of Charlottetown gave a brief address before the convention sessions on "Safety First."

The speaker said he had come to know the Women's Institutes and their work in connection with the schools of the province and among crippled children.

Men had run the schools of the province for many years without making the slightest improvement in them, he said, and it was only since the Women's Institutes had interested themselves in the provincial schools that there had been great amelioration of conditions.

Justice Arsenault deplored the lack of school play grounds in Prince Edward Island. The condition should not exist, he said.

He stressed the need for a safety-first education campaign and asked the convention to get behind it. People had to learn that liquor and gasoline did not produce a safe mixture. Accidents sometimes happened despite the best of intentions and the driver's license were needed in automobile operation. "We need safety education and I hope you will interest yourselves in this pertinent question. The child of today is the motorist of tomorrow. Rules of safety driving should early be impressed upon them."
"Eternal vigilance is the price of safety," the speaker concluded.

Provincial Conventor of the Public Health committee, Mrs. Fred Gates of West Royalty, reported to the concluding convention session.

Tuberculosis League Formed At Convention

League, Dr. Creelman told the Institutes.

Average cost of curing the disease was between $2,000 and $12,000, the speaker said. No sensational and quick-working cure for tuberculosis had been discovered because in the battle to control the disease it was "a long hard grind."

The Sanatorium superintendent stated average time required to completely cure the disease in a patient was two years.

A great deal of ground had been won in the fight to control consumption. Statistics showed that the death rate from the disease was dropping steadily. The drop was due primarily to educational programs, Dr. Creelman believed.

The speaker hoped that before very long more concentrated work on the chests of expectant mothers would be done. There had been a time when children of consumptive parents were given little chance of long life. During the present day, however, such children if properly cared for could be completely rid of all traces of the disease.

Saskatchewan had the lowest death rate in the Western province. In the Eastern province, Prince Edward Island with an annual death rate from the disease of 90 per 100,000 population was among the provinces suffering greatest ravages from tuberculosis.

Cost of housing all this province's tuberculosis patients would be "immense," the Charlottetown doctor said. "Every death per year each county should have two beds. Prince Edward Island had only 53 beds although the disease caused 70 deaths last year."

There were a large number of patients in the province who could not be cared for. "We have been getting money from the Women's Institutes and from campaigns. I think the money we receive would be better spent in education work in the homes," said Dr. Creelman.

HEALTH REPORT

Madame President, Supervisor, Assistant Supervisor, Members of the Health Committee, Delegates and Friends.

Institute health activities during the past year have, on the whole, been satisfactory and above average. Undoubtedly there is a growing realization of the importance of the health part of our work. Yet, in attempting to picture for you the Health programme for the past year, I am handicapped by the fact that only one hundred Institutes have replied to my questionnaire. When every Institute enthusiastically co-operates by filling out Conventor's questionnaires, then the matter of competent reports will be simplified.

Realizing, however, the importance of our Institutes, and the brief period available for discussion, I am surprised to find so much Public Health work carried on. In some instances to centre mainly on Cancer, Tuberculosis, and the Common Cold. Other subjects though were far from neglected, and showed considerable variety. I shall be glad to furnish a list to anyone desiring topics for branch discussions.

Someone has said that if we paid as much attention to human beings as to animals, we could reduce disease-free human area. Of course, animals are more easily regulated and controlled. The human animal objects to interference with what he deems his personal liberty. Unfortunately the time has not yet arrived when the individual will agree to be completely subservient to the common good. Yet, we are making progress. What we can do as a Women's Institute is to educate people to take a sane view on certain health matters and to realize the vital importance of certain health measures. . . . According to the Registrar, I received, the Institutes as a whole are overwhelmingly in favor of compulsory marriage laws. This would indicate considerable change in the public mind regarding a question some- times regarded as a taboo.

Church Service at Kensington

On Sunday, July 12th, at Kensington, morning and evening services in the Presbyterian Church were conducted by the regular pastor.

The message as brought by the Rev. W. O. Rhoad carried clearness and conviction to the hearts of his hearers.

A brief summary of the morning and evening addresses is as follows:

"In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." John 16: 33.

This sixteenth chapter of the gospel according to John is part of the intimate last conversation which Jesus had with his disciples. Jesus was very anxious to prepare his disciples for the ordeal which was about to come upon them.

The world of the disciples shall seem to crash. They shall be bitterly opposed not by the forces of irreligion but by the forces of religion. They shall be put out of the synagogues by those who profess a zeal for God. Putting the followers of Christ to death shall be thought a service for God. We should hardly imagine the distress which was caused in the minds of disciples because they were opposed by the forces of organized religion. They who had a great love for God, were looked upon by the world as being the enemies of God. They who had a great zeal to establish the true religion, were looked upon by the world as being the ones who were seeking to overthrow religion. They knew their own hearts and yet all the world saw them to be just the opposite from what they knew themselves to be. Theirs was the tragedy of the misunderstood. Why should they be in tribulation because of the opposition of the forces of irreligion? Jesus says, "These things will they do unto you because they have not known the Father, nor me." The reason the forces of religion were opposing the disciples was because they did not know God. Those who know God never oppose the followers of Christ. When the forces of organized religion oppose the followers of Christ it is a sure sign that the forces of organized religion are not in fellowship with God. The tribulation of the followers of Christ is not limited in point time. Contemporary Church History shows that even today the followers of Christ can be opposed and are being opposed in the name of religion.

Sorrow filled the hearts of the disciples not merely because of the tribulation which Jesus said would come upon them but also because of the fact that Jesus was going away. Yet Jesus makes the promise that he will not leave them alone in this tribulation. He is giving them the Holy Spirit, the Comforter. In fact Jesus says, "It is expedient for you that I go away. What is the work of the Holy Spirit in the world? The Holy Spirit will prove here? The Holy Spirit will prove here? The world concerning sin, concerning righteousness, and concerning judgment. In other words the Holy Spirit will make manifest the world as it really is. He will pull aside the veil which hides its sin. How does the Holy Spirit expose the world? He convicts them of sin because he believes in the sin of not believing on Christ. The world in rejecting Christ has made itself manifest as sinful. The Holy Spirit exposes the world because they have rejected the "righteous one." The one whom the world has crucified is the one whom God has approved by raising him from the dead and causing him to ascend into heaven. The "prince of this world" is judged. He has condemned the righteous one.

The Holy Spirit does not only expose the sin of the world which is opposing Christ and his followers but he also glorifies Christ. He glorified Christ by receiving the things of Christ and showing the disciples. The Holy Spirit teaches concerning Christ and only concerning Christ. There is one criterion by which to judge whether religious teaching is of the Holy Spirit or not. Does it teach the truth? And by the truth we mean Christ for he said, "I am the truth."

Jesus also speaks of his going away and the joy which his going away will bring to the world and the sorrow it shall bring to his disciples. But this darkness but veils the victory. Jesus is going to the Father. Whatever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you."

The Christ may have tribulation in this world. He may have to endure the anguish of having his work and his motives misunderstood. But the Christian is by no means defeated. He has victory not because he is strong. He is indeed very weak. He has victory because Christ has overcome the world.

"For as the body is one and has many members but all the members of the body being man are one body, so also is Christ." I Corinthians 12: 12.

The Corinthian Church was forgetting the essential fact that the Church is an organism. The Christian is vitally connected to Christ and he is vitally connected to the body of those who profess their faith in Christ.

How is it that so many individuals become one body? It is the work of the Holy Spirit. He is the sole source of life for the whole body. He it is who makes possible the confession of faith in Christ which is the mark of the visible Church of Christ. All the manifestation of life in the body of Christ are the work of the same Spirit. The manifestations of life differ but there is the same Spirit back of those manifestations.

As in the human body so also in the body of Christ some parts have places of greater honor than other parts. All the parts of the body are equally needed however. Each one has its contribution to make to the welfare of the body. If harm befalls one member of the body the whole body suffers.

As Christians we are joined together into one living body united to Christ, the head.—B

Husband Of Polly Moran Arraigned On Assault Charge

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., July 15—Plump Polly Moran's screams of "don't kill me" called a flock of flannel-clad neighbors and a squad of officers to her home at dawn today for the arrest of the film comedienne's husband, whom she later said she would divorce.

Miss Moran asserted her lawyer-spouse, Martin Malone, pointed a pistol at her and pulled the trigger, but the weapon jammed. She described the futile clicking of the pistol as "a nice feeling. It's really sweet."

Malone was arraigned on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with bond fixed at $500. He made no immediate rebuttal, but waived reading of the complaint for a hearing July 29.

Miss Moran said her husband arrived home at 2 a. m. apparently angry after he had been pointed out as "Polly Moran's husband," while mingling with visitors to the National Elks Convention here. She asked him what the trouble was, she said.

"He said, 'I'll show you what's the matter. I'm going to blow your brains out and mine, too,'" said the actress.

Whereupon, said Miss Moran, Malone got out a pistol, held her down, and pointed the muzzle at her head—so close, she said, that she could see the bullet "ready to come."

Then he pulled the trigger and nothing happened.

Miss Moran declared that then and there she did all the things she has seen film heroines do when they needed help.

"I kicked the telephone receiver off the hook and began yelling bloody murder," she said. Into the telephone she shouted her address.

It wasn't long before the neighbors in their flannels streamed out and soon came a knock at the door.

Miss Moran said Malone declared she was crazy and that door. "I'll blow your brains out."

The actress, she convinced him the knock was probably from friends who had seen the lights and wanted to join in the celebration.

So she went down and let in two deputy sheriffs.
