RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By R. JAY BECKER

South dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

 ♥ A Q J 7 5 4
 ♦ 7 4 2

The bidding: South West North East
 1♥ Pass 2♥ Pass
 3♥ Pass 4♥ Pass

Opening lead—ten of clubs. Probably the first thought that might enter declarer's mind, when he sees the dummy, is that the slam contract appears to depend upon the success of the diamond finesse.

It is at this very point that quite a few players fail. Without looking further for other possible ways to make the slam, they would proceed to take the finesse. Since the king of diamonds happens to be offside, these players would end by going down one. But the careful declarer never stakes his chances solely upon the luck of a finesse without first giving consideration to other means that might obviate the finesse. He looks for a method of play that will not only give him better than a 50 per cent chance to make the contract, but also for one that can elevate his chances to 100 per cent.

And that is approximately the size of declarer's chances when he thinks the hand over fully. He plays the jack of clubs from dummy, drawing the queen from dummy, drawing the queen from East and ruffing it. Declarer makes a mental note that East has the ace of clubs, since it is inconceivable that West would open the ten of clubs against a slam if he had the ace.

After drawing a round of trump South cashes the A-K of spades and ruffs a spade. Then, after trumping dummy's four of clubs, declarer ruffs his last spade.

When he now leads the king of clubs and East plays the ace, there is no doubt whatever about the outcome of the contract. Declarer simply lets East win the club, discarding one of his diamond losers from his hand.

East is on lead and his fate is sealed. It is a matter of small moment to South where king of diamonds is located. If East plays a diamond it is right into the A-Q, and if East returns a club instead, South discards his other diamond loser as dummy ruffs the club.

The declarer, by this method of play, in effect accomplishes a successful diamond finesse without bothering to take it.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXE
 LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
