Provincial Exhibition

All roads lead to the Provincial Exhibition being held at Charlottetown from Monday, August 10th through to Saturday night, August 15th. From all indications this year's show will be one of the best ever held. Large entries have been received in all classes. It will not only provide entertainment, but also much useful information for those engaged and interested in the various phases of Agriculture. This is truly the show window of Prince Edward Island Agriculture.

On Monday evening at 8 p.m. in front of the Grandstand the Hon. A. W. Matheson, Premier of Prince Edward Island, will officially open the Provincial Exhibition and Old Home Week.

Livestock

In following the judging of the various Livestock Classes an opportunity will present itself to see and become familiar with the various types and strains of Island Livestock. It has been stated by many visiting Livestock officials the good quality seen here at the Provincial Exhibition cannot be surpassed elsewhere in Canada.

The Exhibition Association in cooperation with the various Breed Associations have very carefully selected an outstanding group of judges for the livestock and poultry divisions.

The following are the list of judges for the various breeds:
Horses—D. V. McNeely, Experimental Farm, Ottawa.
Short-horns—W. H. Balck, Moffat, Ontario.
Herefords—Red Polls, Angus—R. C. Bartheaux, Clarence, R. R. No. 1, N. S.
Ayrshires—W. R. Reison, 101 Ryland Ave., Truro, N. S.
Jerseys—A. D. MacKeown, Don Head Farms, Richmond Hill, Ont.
Holsteins—Douglas Duntton, Hampton, Ont. R. R. 6.
Guernseys—Tony Banks, Dept. of Agriculture, Truro, N. S.
Sheep—Garret Champan, Waterloo, P. Q.
Swine—Donald A. Stewart, Puslinch, R. R. 2, Ont.
Poultry—F. M. Nash, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Horse Racing

In looking over the list of entries of the horses for the Old Home Week Races one can see the most outstanding horses from the Maritimes and the Province of Quebec. No doubt some of the best racing we have seen for some time take place during this meet.

Square Dancing

Each night in front of the Grandstand commencing at seven-thirty square dancing competitions will be held. This has been made possible through Canada Packers Limited. The dancers are divided into two divisions namely Junior and Senior. Entries have been made by some of our best square dancers. They will compete by dancing some of the more popular and intricate square dancing routines. Mr. George Andrew of Charlottetown and Cavendish will be the Caller.

Women's Division

The Women's Institute Needle work and Handicraft exhibition and the Home-cooking, Art and Floral displays will be one of the best in the history of the Exhibition. Very large entries have been received in all these sections.

The following is information for all those who have made entries in one or more of the above mentioned sections. All entries for the Handicraft, Rugs and Art exhibits are to be in the building not later than Monday noon. The flower entries must be in not later than ten o'clock on Tuesday. The food entries not later than noon on the same day.

The building will be closed on Monday afternoon while judging is taking place. Only the Floral and Home-cooking sections will be closed on Tuesday afternoon. The remainder of the building will be open every day from ten o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock at night.

Veterinary Service

Dr. A. E. Ings' Office will be closed until August, the twentieth. All calls for this area should be directed to Dr. J. R. McCrea, telephone Montague 128.

At the Provincial Exhibition a Veterinary Office will be established in the same place as in former years at the rear of the Grandstand. This office will be open twenty-four hours a day and from 11 will be extended to the breeders a Veterinary Service while they are away from here. Anybody interested in making inquiries concerning their veterinary problems is invited to call at the office.

Public Speaking

The Department of Agriculture is sponsoring a Public Speaking competition amongst Rural Youth in this province. It is felt that the art of public speaking has come to a very low ebb in Prince Edward Island. The young people find it very difficult to stand on their feet and express themselves fluently. It is hoped by means of speaking competitions that progress can be made in encouraging the art of public speaking. It is also necessary to select two candidates to represent this province in the public speaking competition in connection with the Rural Youth programme at the Maritime Winter Fair, Amherst. Any member of a Rural Organization who has not reached his 25th birthday on November 1, 1953 is eligible to compete with the following exceptions:

CENTRAL GUARDIAN

COOK'S for Perfect Pictures

CRASWELL for Better Photographs.

"WE TREAT THE SICK WELL." Giggey's Pharmacy, next Stewart's Bakery.

Mr. and Mrs. Colin MacPhail, Toronto, arrived on the two-week August 2 to spend a two-week holiday with relatives at Argyle Shore, Hampton, and Cornwall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Pigott and children Carol and Joey of Manchester, Conn., arrived Sunday to spend their vacation on the Island. While here they are the guests of Mr. Pigott's sister, Mrs. Mitchell MacDonald and Mr. MacDonald, 306 Richmond Street.

(a) Persons who have taken or are enrolled in a degree course at any university shall not be eligible for participation. Those who have attended third year Prince of Wales are ineligible.

(b) Persons who have placed first or second in the Provincial Public Speaking contests in any preceding year.

Contestants are allowed to speak on any topic associated with Rural Life in the Maritimes. Large prizes will be given to the winners in each county. Two top speakers will be selected for a free trip to the Maritime Winter Fair, three days in duration. The selection of these two speakers will depend on their eligibility according to the rules drawn up by the Maritime Winter Fair. People who are interested in further information should contact the Department of Agriculture, Box 9, Charlottetown.

We And Our Neighbours

by Ruhamah Scheinfeld Frank

These lovely summer weeks, on the Island, many sons and daughters "from away" have brought their lucky small ones to visit their grandparents. There is much parking of youngsters with the older folks by sons and daughters who themselves are traveling here and there to stay with children and grandchildren.

With this delightful state of affairs, it may prove of interest to glance at that special warm and understanding relationship, celebrated in paintings, song and story, that has always existed between children and grandparents. They, we know, "coddled the baby" long before psychologists claimed that strict rules were harmful. Perhaps that led to the accusation that grandparents "spoiled" their grandchildren. Or was it ages before that!

"Oh dear, oh dear, what shall I do," wails Mrs. A. more or less humorously, "since Tommy has come from visiting his grandparents, I can't do a thing with him! He makes a fuss about going to bed. He wants to gorge on cookies—etc etc. He is completely spoiled."

Is he? A spoiled child is one who has not outgrown the complete self-centeredness of the baby. Over-indulgence during his formative years can lead to this (more later.) Now Tommy may be a bit more willful for a time, but doesn't any break in his routine have the same result and is it entirely undesirable?

Why do adults go on a vacation? And break their usual eating and sleeping and other habits? Isn't it mostly to escape the daily routine, to get from under the demands of day by day living? We all know it is hard "to get into the rut" again, after a holiday, but we are usually the better for it. It is the same with Tommy.

There may however, be a real cause of complaint against grandparents, if they give the child the feeling that they and his parents do not see eye to eye in policies concerning him. Where grandparents live permanently with their children, the same undesirable situation can arise that results when Mom and Dad pull different ways, and the child knows it. Parents need not always agree, nor must grandparents always keep quiet when they believe, out of their longer experience, that there are better ways of handling the child. But children themselves should have the security of a united authority, and the older people should work things out together and present a united front to the child.

It can be done. I witnessed a charming "triangle" recently between a grandmother, her daughter, and an adorable two-year old grandchild.

"Time to go to bed," said the younger woman going toward the little girl who was playing by herself in one corner of the room. The child looked up, but instead of waiting for her mother, ran laughing to her grandmother and climbed into her lap. How could grandmother's arms fail to hold her and give her a good hug! But only for a moment. As her daughter reached them, she set the little girl down, gave her a kiss, and said with a smile, "Good-night, darling, mother says it's time to go to bed." And the child was led away cheerfully.

At two, this little girl was plainly shown that grandmother, as well as mother, did love her very much, but there was no appeal from mother's decision. If one gathers from this little incident, that the small person already felt that grandmother could on occasion be more lenient—well, as was said before, there is no harm done. It is bound to be true, anyway, once in a while!

Except for the possibility of divided authority, grandparents are invaluable in the development of the child. Here are two more people who love him without stint. There are now four arms instead of just two to hold and comfort him. The world must be filled with people he can love and trust! Indeed, as he grows older and visits his grandparents, and makes friends in the new neighbourhood, his belief is usually confirmed, and his emotional life expands.

And who can doubt that grandparents link the past and the present, for the child in a way that history books fail to do! "Tell me about the time when you were my age," is a familiar request to parents, and to grandparents. And thrilling indeed, and wonderful in building understanding relationships, are the stories about Mom and Dad when they were children! Fortunate are the children who have grandparents to add so bountifully to the love given by their parents!

WE CAN... WE WILL!

Here's what you're voting for when you vote Progressive Conservative on August 10th. This 16-point program can and will be undertaken this fall by a Progressive Conservative Government.

The Progressive Conservative Party is the only party with a positive policy pledging immediate action on tax reductions... elimination of waste and extravagance... lower municipal taxes... a housing program... national health insurance... farm prices related to production costs... recovery of lost markets... these and other matters of public concern are the real issues in this election. The voters of Canada know where this party stands!

- 1 We will reduce federal taxes by at least five hundred million dollars ($500,000,000) a year... without reducing any social security payments, or impairing the efficiency of our armed forces.
- 2 We will exempt municipal councils and school boards from Sales Tax and Excise Tax on all purchases of machinery, equipment, instruments and other goods and will provide for taxation of all federal government properties in municipalities.
- 3 We will immediately call a Dominion-Provincial Tax Conference to revise our whole system of taxation.
- 4 We will greatly reduce the cost of government by ending waste and extravagance, increasing efficiency, eliminating duplication and improving accounting methods. In particular, we will reorganize the Department of National Defence.
- 5 We will re-establish the true principles of the Confederation Pact set forth in the British North America Act; we will restore the Supremacy of Parliament and the Rule of Law.
- 6 We will set up a joint committee of the Senate and House of Commons for the purpose of reforming the Senate with particular reference to the method of appointment, tenure of office and its legislative functions.
- 7 We will introduce legislation to amend the Criminal Code which will make it an offence punishable by due process of law to engage in Communist or other subversive activities designed to destroy our democratic system.
- 8 We will take immediate steps to restore and expand world markets for agricultural and other primary products. Our program will include bold and constructive steps to break the Dollar-Pound Barrier and regain our vital British and Commonwealth Trade.
- 9 We will appoint a National Agricultural Board for the purpose of establishing fair floor prices related to farm production costs.
- 10 We will undertake an immediate review of all national labour legislation for the purpose of improving collective bargaining procedure,

- 11 We will introduce a housing program which will make it possible for people with small incomes to buy new homes by improving the terms and conditions under which houses can be built and purchased.
- 12 We will introduce a contributory health insurance program, in cooperation with the provinces, which will assure to every Canadian proper diagnostic, medical and surgical treatment.
- 13 We will take immediate steps to deal with the freight rate structure in Canada. We will respect all existing regional statutory rates and take every practical step to encourage the use of our own ports for Canadian export and import trade.
- 14 We will immediately review all legislation affecting the Civil Service, so that all except casual employees may become permanent members of the Civil Service, with assurance or security of employment, and promotion by merit to the highest offices within the service. Working hours, pay and advancement will be comparable with employment in industry and commerce.
- 15 We will, in co-operation with the provinces, establish a national policy under a system of free enterprise which will:
 - proceed with a national development program including such projects as the construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project, the Saskatchewan River Power and Irrigation Project, Hydro Electric Power Projects in the Maritimes and similar projects of national importance in other parts of Canada;
 - promote the decentralization of industry so that opportunities for employment and advancement may be extended on the widest possible basis throughout the whole of Canada.
- 16 We believe that Canada has a vital role to play as a member of the Commonwealth and a friendly neighbour of the United States. We pledge our support to NATO and other organizations set up under the United Nations for the preservation of peace and the improvement of social and economic conditions throughout the world.
