

First Plaza Band Concert
Draws Appreciative Crowd

A small but appreciative audience turned out last evening on the plaza of the Confederation Centre, just to the west of the Provincial Building, to hear the first in a series of Wednesday night band concerts given by the Regimental Band of the Prince Edward Island Regiment (17th Recce).

The concert is the first of a series which will be held on the plaza every Wednesday evening until the first of September. They begin at 7:30 and last for a little more than an hour. It is understood that the concerts have been made possible through an increase in the grant the band receives from the city of Charlottetown.

Last evening's program consisted of the following pieces: "O Canada; One Porter's 'I Love Paris'; a march 'Punjaub'; a light classical overture 'Capitran'; a march 'The Great Little Army'; the hymn 'Unto The Hills'; the march 'The Thin Red Line'; the theme from the motion picture 'Exodus'; the march 'Kilties'; a tango featuring the trumpet section called 'Trumpetango'; the march 'Sons Of The Brave'; the hymn 'Rock Of Ages'; and the program closed with the playing of 'The Queen'.

The department has been growing in importance in recent years and has responsibility for such things as surveys and mapping, the geological survey of Canada, marine sciences, the geographical branch and the Dominion observatories. In the latter connection, the government is committed to a major project of building a new telescope in southern British Columbia at a cost of around $10 million. The new Queen Elizabeth observatory is expected to be completed within about seven years and will restore Canada's position in astronomical studies.

Mr. MacNaught said that his private secretary, Mrs. R. Coop and his executive assistant, J.P. MacInnis would be moving with him to his new post. Main office of the minister is on Booth Street in Ottawa, although the minister also maintains offices in the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings.

Summerside - The final meeting of the season for the board of trade here took place last night in the form of a dinner meeting. Following the dinner the business portion of the meeting was held with a number of subjects discussed at length including the industrial park, highway safety, the brief submitted to the executive council on the liquor site by the Athol Regional High School ratepayers and numerous other matters.

Board members were asked their opinions on the proposed price of $3 per plate for lobster suppers during Lobster Carnival next week.

One spokesman was in favor of this suggested price but a number were against the proposal and the member in favor of the raise gave as his reasons the high cost of lobsters and potatoes this year and he felt the carnival committee should realize some profit for the week on this attraction.

COMPLY WITH OTHERS

The president, Francis MacQuarrie said that earlier this week it was brought to his attention that one of the chain stores in the town had been told to stay open on Saturday afternoon and that a telegram had immediately been dispatched to the area supervisor by the retail merchants.

OUT OF BUSINESS

A number felt the carnival committee members were putting themselves slowly out of business by raising the price from $2.50 to $3. One member felt sure that tourists coming here for Lobster Carnival Week would be disappointed if they had to pay the same price at the stadium for a lobster supper.

RETAIL MERCHANTS

It is gratifying to note, he said, that we have received word that the store will comply with the hours followed by the other stores in the town.

GRAEME LINKLETTER

Chairman of the carnival agricultural committee, told the meeting that although horse and sheep classes had been cut out from this year's carnival the agricultural portion of the carnival will be equal to other years.

It was rumored earlier that a detour on the highway between Albany and Summerside had been planned while work was being done to make this portion an all weather highway. Mr. MacQuarrie told the meeting he had contacted the minister of highways as soon as he had heard of this plan and he had been assured that there would be no detour until after lobster carnival week.

The board president also told the meeting that an expert contacted in connection with harbor improvement will be here July 19 to study the problem. Harbor dredging, he said, is also expected to get underway soon.

West Prince Ends Successful Lobster Season

ALBERTON - The spring lobster season officially closed at midnight yesterday in West Prince County but gear and traps only can be landed for the next day or two depending on weather conditions.

Most of the gear at Tignish and Alberton has already been landed following a successful season with good catches and above average prices which were reported as high as 67 cents for markets and 62 for canners.

No storms occurred during the season but unfavorable weather kept the fishermen ashore for a few days.

The fall season opens on the south side on August 10.

A. A. MacTavish, left of Paisley, Ont.; C. C. Craighton, Winnipeg, Man., and J. E. Shuh of Truro, N.S., talk over the weather, crops and marketing problems in their different areas at a reception for the Canadian Seed Growers Association held last evening at the Confederation Centre.

Following the reception a banquet was held at which Premier Walter R. Shaw welcomed the delegates and their wives to the island on behalf of the government and the people of P.E.I. Gordon South, president of the CSGA presented silver tray to the premier engraved with a caricature of "Sam the Sower", the symbol of the association, on behalf of the CSGA. The guest speaker at the dinner was Dr. Frank MacKinnon, principle of Prince of Wales College who spoke on Confederation.

Hybrid Wheat Work Offers Good Potential

Research work underway now on hybrid wheat offers a great potential, Gordon Smith, President of the Canadian Seed Growers Association, told the annual meeting of the CSGA here yesterday.

Indications are that the research will be successful, said Mr. Smith who hails from Whitton, Sask., which makes him sensitive to any development that will help the grain-producing west.

Assuming that the hybrid wheat growing becomes a reality, then the association must be in a position to involve itself in the pedigrees of it if it follows the pattern of other hybrids then thousands of acres of crossing blocks will be needed to supply the seed needs of farmers who will have to renew their seed every year. The amount involved will depend on the area in which the variety is to serve.

"This could be millions of bushels, especially if that variety happened to meet the qualifications of a hard red spring wheat and would fit into the production pattern of the western provinces."

It appears that we can expect higher yields in both cereals and forage as our people continue their efforts in agricultural research. This will no doubt be welcomed by all farm people and consumers generally. Both groups benefit from this research, Mr. Smith suggested.

The officers and other CSGA members relaxed last night at the Confederation Centre at a dinner sponsored by the P.E.I. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Frank MacKinnon talked on "Confederation after a Century". The visitors were welcomed

SHOW RECONSTRUCTION

New Vatican City stamps show the war-shattered ruins of the Benedictine abbey of Monte Cassino and its new reconstruction.

Colorado potato beetle larvae and other foliage insects retard plant growth and development, help spread disease. One low-cost Endrin application controls all major pests for up to two weeks.

POTATO GROWERS: Powerful Shell ENDRIN cuts spray costs two ways: (1) controls all foliage insects; (2) lasts longer than other insecticides. You need no longer switch from one costly insecticide to another for control of major potato insects. Remarkable Shell Endrin 20 emulsible concentrate controls them all—effectively and economically. One application lasts up to two weeks. As fewer sprays are required, you save both time and money. Read how Shell Endrin can boost your crop income. MORE AND MORE Maritime potato growers are using Shell Endrin to control foliage insects. Reason: powerful Endrin controls flea beetles, leaf-hoppers, aphids, Colorado potato beetles and all other major destructive pests. And Endrin does the job economically. Prolonged killing power. Endrin not only controls more insects than other insecticides—it also protects longer. A single Endrin application protects plants from profit-robbing insects for 7 to 10 days—sometimes longer. Foliage growth is more vigorous. Plants are healthier. You get potatoes of the highest grade—and the biggest crop yield possible. You save money two ways. Two major features make Endrin more economical than other recommended potato insecticides: 1. You make fewer applications. Since Endrin protects longer than other insecticides, you don't have to make as many applications. Result: you save time and labour—as well as the cost of extra insecticide. 2. Low per-acre dosages do the job. Shell Endrin is so powerful you need as little as one pint of concentrate per acre. Application after application, Endrin costs less than most other potato insecticides. Shell Endrin comes as an emulsible concentrate, containing two pounds of active material per gallon. Mentally Ill Seen Needing Help Of Country Women

The director of the P.E.I. division of the Canadian Mental Health Association yesterday issued a challenge to the country women of the province in the rehabilitation of the mentally ill.

Speaking at the 52nd annual convention of the P.E.I. Women's Institutes, Urban McQuaid, Southport, said: "You and I can play our part by accepting people who have a mental breakdown as sick people needing treatment."

"We can do more for mental sickness than all the psychiatrists, treatment and medicine in the world can do," he said.

He told the members briefly about the CMHA's "foster home" program for mental patients and suggested they might help out by visiting the patients in these homes.

"It gives the patient a feeling of being accepted," he said. "I know they'd appreciate a visit from individuals or groups."

BREAK BARRIERS

Mr. McQuaid also suggested the organizing of picnics for mental patients as excellent club projects. "It is one of the best ways we have of breaking down barriers."

He told them about one patient, a girl who hadn't spoken a word for three years. She met a former school friend at such a picnic and sat down and talked with her for 15 minutes.

"I think you women can do a lot in your communities by accepting mentally sick people," he concluded.

Also speaking early yesterday afternoon was Mrs. Walter Shaw, who brought greetings to the group.

A memorial service in honor of deceased WI members was the challenges facing women in a changing age. Parents, she stated, are urged to encourage their children to get as broad an education as possible, but it was also important for adults to develop diversified interests as they faced increased leisure of the computer age.

Through national and international projects of the WI, women had a good opportunity to learn about people in other lands and to build more "bridges of understanding."

"In our own communities, in our own province and in our own country, we certainly need more understanding and more tolerance. Let us build those bridges both long and strong and if any group can do this, the Women's Institutes can."

Mrs. Matheson described some of the projects institutes could undertake on the national level. These included the "make Canada lovelier" section of Centennial efforts; writing of village histories, and co-operating with development of WI work in the Canadian north.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP

Following the national president's address, a life membership was presented to Mrs. L. G. Ramsay of Indian River, retiring provincial president. The citation was read by the first vice-president, Mrs. Arthur Campbell, Springbrook.

Charlottetown YMCA director John Evans conducted a "get acquainted hour," and North River WI served refreshments.

Today's agenda includes a panel discussion, workshops on home decorating, and a business session.

A tea at Government House this afternoon will conclude the convention.
